PREFACE.

1145958

"Honor thy FATHER and thy MOTHER, that thy days may be long upon the land which the LORD THY GOD giveth thee."-Exodus, 20:12.

THE Fifth Commandment of the Decalogue stands foremost in the Second Table of the Law. As the First Commandment—"Thou shalt have no other gods before me"—stands at the head of the First Table, and virtually includes the remainder of that Table, so the Fifth Commandment, as it precedes, so in effect it contains the precepts that follow. It is in vain that a man who disregards the Fifth Command pretends to observe any other. A man who does not honor his parents, is not and cannot be a truly moral man. The temper of mind which impels a person to break that command which is the Leader and Chief of all the ethical precepts of the Divine Law, will, when occasion shall arise, impel him to break all the rest.

Our habits of obedience or disobedience to the Law of God begin here. It must be so, because our parents are the persons with whom our earliest human relations connect us; and indeed for a time, our parents stand to us in the place of God.

Gener "

We come, then, to this conclusion—" Reverence for parents is essential to a sound moral character."

This is the starting point of the volume before us. Without this great fundamental idea, this book had never been undertaken.

My Father! my Mother! how they loved me! how they watched over me! how they labored for my good! With what untiring assiduity they provided for my tenderest years! How carefully they trained me in the ways of virtue and religion! To them, under God, I owe all I am, all I have, all I hope for, here and hereafter. They are departed; I shall never behold them more on earth :---but can I forget them? can I cease to reverence them? shall their memory ever fail to be fragrant? Never, oh never! As time rolls on, I see more and more reason why I should cherish their memory.

But what my parents were to me, their parents were to them. My grandfather and grandmother cherished for my father the same tender affection, and with the same diligence labored for his good. All that my father was, he owed, under God, to the care bestowed on him by the natural guardians of his being. The same holds true, through all the generations of the Past. And thus the Fifth Commandment binds us to reverence and honor ALL our ancestors, as far as made known to us, and so far as those ancestors were worthy of such regard. As I ought to keep alive, and keep warm in my inmost heart the memory and the virtues of my immediate progenitors, so I ought, as far as possible, to reverence and honor those who preceded them in the parental relation. I ought not willingly to suffer their memory to perish. If I do, I sin against them, and against God.

If reverence towards our own parents tends powerfully and necessarily to form and to promote a truly virtuous character, so reverence towards our earlier progenitors must have somewhat of the same tendency and effect. It follows, that those who are indifferent and careless in this respect must lack some at least of the elements of a sound moral character.

The end and scope of Genealogical research are, for the most part, very different in this country and in England. There, the endeavor is to connect one's self with noble or distinguished families, or to ascertain one's right to titles or estates. Here, nothing of the kind is open to us. The aim of those who pursue genealogical inquiries on this side of the great water, can only be to connect themselves with the earliest, the best, the purest days of New England. Such studies must therefore have a good moral effect. We are carried back to a consideration of the high aims, the pure motives, the severe trials, the exhausting labors, the noble character of the fathers of our commonwealth. We are led, moreover, to a more just appreciation of our present privileges, and of those free institutions which cost so much sacrifice and suffering.

I am content to trace my ancestry to my earliest American progenitors. Here is the true place to stop in our genealogical inquiries. I have no desire to cross the Atlantic in quest of an earlier sire. I have little sympathy with that feeling which leads men to ransack the rolls and charters of feudal antiquity. The true nobility is that of character; and nowhere, the Divine Model aside, shall we find nobler exhibitions of character than in the First Age of New England. I am well aware that those men were not perfect; many of their proceedings are open to criticism, and even to censure; yet the world has never yet seen, in the founders of any other community, such purity of purpose, such exalted public virtue. God was with them in a remarkable degree. For the sake of his cause, and for the welfare of his kingdom, they left their pleasant homes in Old England, and settled on these then inhospitable shores. And HE, whose Word was ever their guiding star, never forsook them, but carried them triumphantly through toils and dangers which would have proved insurmountable to other men. By his peculiar blessing, they kindled a light on this Western Continent which is destined never to go out; they founded institutions of government and of religion which are never to perish; the influence of their principles and of their great example is becoming more potent and more extensive with every succeeding year. And it is not too much to hope that God, the Author of all good, designs through their means, and by means of those who follow in their steps, to enlighten and bless the whole world.

These thoughts have been uppermost in the mind of the compiler of this volume, while pursuing the protracted and exhausting labors which are now brought to a close. Possessing advantages for researches of this nature, which comparatively few enjoy, and having leisure to use these advantages, he has felt it to be his duty to contribute, as far as in his power, to the illustration of the history of the several Families mentioned in these pages.

To do honor to the memory of a revered and excellent mother, and to preserve an account of her ancestry, was the impulse that led the way in the preparation of this volume. The History of the GILES Family, and of the JENNISON, LINDALL, and MARSHALL Families, were all compiled under the influence of this motive. As the affair proceeded, the author became interested in the history of other families, not of his mother's lineage; and for various reasons was induced to give the work a wider scope, and to place in this volume many names which were not included in his original design. The number of pages became more than double of what was intended when the printing commenced. The title chosen for the volume at the outset-"The Giles Memorial"could not, however, be changed, as it had gained a permanent foothold in the running title. Had the writer foreseen the extent which the book has ultimately reached, some other designation might have been adopted. And yet, as the author designed a volume which should, in its essential features, correspond to his other publication, and be parallel with it, there may, after all, be no impropriety in the title as it stands. "The Vinton Memorial" was planned with special and primary reference to the family of the writer's father. The present volume was planned with primary reference to the family of the writer's mother; it was designed to be a monument of filial affection and honor to her whogave him being; on no other ground would it have been undertaken.

THE GILES MEMORIAL.

As the book must have some title, what better title, all things considered, could it bear than—"THE GILES MENORIAL?"

I began to collect information touching the ancestry of my mother, early in the winter of 1851-2, pursuing the inquiry at first merely for my own satisfaction. As early as March, 1852, I embodied what facts I had gathered respecting the Giles, Jennison, and Lindall families, in a MS. volume of 96 pages. To this I made additions from time to time; although my leisure during several years was chiefly occupied in the preparation of the "Vinton Memorial." A little more than two years ago, I began the preparation of this volume for the press. During these last two years I have devoted the greater part of my time to it. The work has been arduous and exhausting. It has required a vast amount of patient and careful research. The records of twenty-four cities and towns, of several churches, and of six counties, have been thoroughly examined, either by myself or by others. The Old Colony Records, the Massachusetts Archives, the Muster-Rolls of the "Old French War," (1755-1762,) the Muster-Rolls of the Revolution, and those of the existing Civil War, have been carefully explored. A considerable number of Town Histories, of printed Genealogies, and many other books, have been inspected. The Genealogical Register of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society has been often and diligently consulted. Grave-yards have been laid under contribution. A number of ancient and valuable MSS., such as the Pejepscot Papers, the Autobiography of Deborah Sampson, the Diary of John Marshall of Braintree, and of Col. Robert Hale of Beverly, the Family Memoirs of Hon. Abraham Holmes of Rochester, and others, have been used. A very large number of Family Records have passed under examination. Nearly seven hundred letters have been written and received in reference to matters contained in this volume.

If the reader should find some errors, let him not wonder. The atmost care and diligence will not exclude all errors from a book like this. I have done all in my power to verify every statement. But it was not in my power to be personally cognizant of every fact stated on these pages. In nearly every case, I must rely on records obtained, and on the testimony of others. Information thus obtained must of course be sometimes imperfeet and illusory. Family Records, Town Records, Oral Testimony, Grave-stones even, are not always reliable. By way of precaution against errors, the reader will do well to consult the ADDENDA on page 166, and the Postscript at the end.

In treating of the earlier times, I have given much space to conveyances of land, believing that such documents serve, in no small degree, to illustrate the standing and circumstances of the persons chiefly concerned. I have also thought it desirable to introduce many facts from the Massachusetts Archives, and especially from the Muster-Rolls of the Old French War and of the Revolution. They give us impressions of the exertions, the trials, and hardships of those times, which can be obtained in no other way.*

To the numerous individuals whose kind and efficient aid I have received in gathering the materials for this volume, I desire to render my grateful acknowledgments. In the Remarks Preliminary to the Genealogies of the HOLMES, LEONARD, CURWEN, ROBINSON, and SAMPSON Families, I have given credit to several of my co-laborers in fields of research connected with those names; and it does not seem necessary now to repeat what is there said. Time and space, indeed, would fail, were I to mention all who have kindly furnished information for this volume; but it would be unjust not to name in this connection Mrs. Sarah Giles Beach of Gloversville, N. Y., Mr. Jones Very of Salem, Mr. Jacob Stone of Newburyport, Mr. David W. Holmes of Boston, Rev. Edwin Jennison of Winchester, N. H., Mr. Samuel S. Leonard of Worcester, Orsamus H. Marshall, Esq., of Buffalo, Mr. Joseph A. Sampson of Boston, Thomas D. Webb, Esq., of Warren, Ohio, and William L. Weaver, Esq., of Willimantic, Ct., who have taken a lively interest in this work, and have contributed, some of them largely, to its completeness. Nor must I omit to mention my uncle, Thomas Giles of Rockport, or my friend Edwin H. Sampson of Boston, without whose encouragement, of another kind, these pages would never have seen the light.

I must also present my hearty thanks to the printers, Messrs. Henry W. Dutton & Son, and to their skilful and obliging foreman, Mr. Henry R. Danforth, for the accurate and faithful manner in which the mechanical execution of the work has been performed.

This volume contains about 11,000 names, and from 15,000 to 20,000 dates.

Any additional information, or correction of errors, will be gladly received.

^{*} Hon. Simon Cameron, Secretarv of War in the earlier part of the administration of President Lincoln, states in his Annual Report, Dec. 1, 1861, that at one time, during the Revolutionary War, Massachusetts, with a population of 350,000, had 56,000 men in the field, or one out of six of her entire population. How many there were in the naval service of the country, and in privateers, it is impossible to ascertain. How were these soldiers and sailors rewarded ? Consult pp. 50–53 and p. 61 for the answer!

EXPLANATIONS.

The contents of the ensuing volume are artanged on the same general plan which was pursued in the Vinton Memorial, and which has, the compiler understands, given universal satisfaction.

The several Genealogies, herein contained, are entirely distinct and isolated from each other. Each is a separate work of itself.

The individuals in any one of these Genealogies-for instance, in the Giles Genealogyare arranged under a consecutive numbering, running on throughout that part of the volume. This numbering is found on the left hand of the page, before the name of each individual in the series of recorded descendants. Thus, on page 11, are found fifteen children of Eleazar Giles, numbered from 21 to 35 inclusive.

This mark, †, following a consecutive number, and immediately before a person's name, denotes that a distinct and additional notice of that person is reserved for a separate and subsequent paragraph. The place where this promise is fulfilled will be found by looking an equation paragraphic free parts indicated provides in balance with the folding of blocking for the consecutive number when it afterwards occurs in heavy type, like this [$\mathbf{658}$] in the middle of a line, and occupying a line by itself. Thus Samuel Giles, whose consecutive number, found on page 11, is 33, is afterwards found on page 16, as a citizen and the head of a family.

Only one number belongs to an individual. By means of this, and in the use of a copious INDEX, he is immediately found, and his ancestry and posterity are easily traced.

If there be occasion to mention an individual elsewhere, his place is indicated by the con-secutive number; thus, on page 90, line 11, Samuel Giles [254] refers to the consecutive number 254 in the Giles Genealogy; and on p 421, line 6, Ezra Sampson [485] refers to the consecutive number 485 in the Sampson Genealogy.

A small figure after a name denotes the generation to which the individual belongs. Thus, Journ Gittes, page 37; John Giles is thus described as of the Fourth Generation from Edward Giles, his first American ancestor. In like manner, ZABDIEL SAMPSON,⁶ page 450, is the sixth in descent from Abraham Sampson¹; Abraham himself being reckoned as the first.

When a woman's name occurs in this fashion, thus, THANKFUL (SPROAT) BENNET, page 386, the reader will understand the name in parenthesis to be her original or maiden name, and the name following to be the name acquired by marriage. When deeds or probate records are referred to, thus, "Plym. Prob. 21 : 164," the figures before the colon [:] denote the volume, and the figures after the colon denote the folio, where the deed or other document quoted may be found on record.

Midd, stands for Middlesex; Soff, Suffok; Plym, Plymouth; &c. a. means "aged," and signifies that such a year of the person's life had been completed, w. means "in the year of one's life" [actatis] and signifies that the year of his life had not been completed at the person's death E. g., we 69, in his 69th year.

b. signifies born; bap., baptized; dau., daughter; m., married; unm., unmarried; d., ? indicates uncertainty in what immediately precedes. died.

H. C. 1766, means that the person graduated at Harvard College in such a year. When a town is named without any specification of State, Massachusetts is to be understood, unless the place be universally known, as Portland or Providence.

Previous to the year 1752, two methods of reckoning time existed in Great Britain and her Colonies. According to one of these methods, the year began on the 25th of March; February being the twelfth month; this was the civil or legal year. According to the other method, the year began on the first day of January, December being the twelfth month; this was the historical year. In old records these two methods were frequently combined. Thus, Feb 9, 1723-4; which means that the year was 1723 of the civil, but 1724 of the his-torical year. When in dates between January 1 and March 25, only one reckoning is used, a year is for the most part to be added, to make the record conform to our present usages. In the following pages this practice of "double-dating" will be occasionally found. То change Old Style into New, add ten days to dates between 1600 and 1700; or add 11 days to dates between 1700 and Sept. 3, 1752. At the date last given, the New Style was inaugurated by Act of Parliament; the third of September being counted the fourteenth, and the year made to begin in January.

THE GILES MEMORIAL.

· Jutroductory Statements.

GILES, or less frequently, GYLES, is an old English name, quite familiar to the readers of English history. It has been known for some centuries both as a christian name, and as a surname. It is the name of a parish in London, Saint Giles; and would seem to be the name of a patron saint. It appears on college catalogues, and wherever there is occasion to exhibit the name in its Latin form, as Ægidius, from which it is evidently derived. Camden, in his Nomenclature of Surnames, published in London, 1637, says: "GILES, miserably disjointed from Ægidius, as Gillett from Ægadia by the French, the name of Duke Rollo's wife. It may have been a Greek name, for that Saint Giles was an Athenian, and so drawn from $At\gamma(\delta_1 or)$, a kid, a young goat, diminutive of dt?. Yet some probably fetch Giles from Julius."

There can be no doubt that both the name and the family are strictly of English origin.

It appears that the name is one of much respectability in England, having enjoyed the honors of knighthood. Several coats of arms— I know of three—are in existence, which are of unquestionable antiquity, and are in possession of different branches of the family in this country. They differ in some unessential particulars, but the escutcheon or shield is precisely the same, and may be thus described:

Per chevron, argent and azure, a lion rampant, counterchanged, collared or.

The crest, a less important matter, differs in different cases; some having a lion's head, others a lion's gambrel holding an apple-branch.

The following is a description of a coat of arms, now in possession of George Mountfort, Esq., of Boston, whose mother was a Giles, and which he inherited from his grandfather, Mr. John Giles of Boston:

"Per chevron, argent and azure, a lion rampant, counterchanged, collared or. Crest, a lion's gambrel, erect and erased, gules, enfiled with a bar gemelle or, holding a branch of apples of the last leaved vert."

From "A View of Devonshire in 1630, with a Pedigree of most of its Gentry, by Thomas Westcote, Gent., edited by the Rev. George Oliver, D. D., and Pitman Jones, Esq., Exeter, [Eng.,] 1845,"* I quote the following:—

^{*} This volume, though unquestionably written more than two hundred years ago, was not published till 1845. It is characterized as "a desideratum in the History of

"GILES of Bowden, in the parish of Ashprington, and of Dean Prior, Devon, knight.—ARMS—a chevron, argent and azure, a lion saltier, counterchanged, gorged with a collar or."

"John Giles of Bowden, in the parish of Totnes, married Eleanor, daughter and heir of — Towkerman, [Tuckerman,] and had issue, William, who married Joan, daughter of John Blackall, (alias Blackaller.) of Great Totnes, and had issue, John, William, (who married,) and Joan, (married to Richard Savery of Totnes). John married Agnes, daughter to Sir Hugh Stukely of Affeton, knight, and had issue, Sir Edward Giles, knight, [and four daughters] Jane, Christiana, Joan, and Agnes, [whose marriage connections are given]. Sir Edward Giles of Bowden, knight, (Sheriff of Devon,) married Margaret, daughter and heir of Edmand Drew, Esq., of Hayne, in the parish of Newton St. Cyres, and reliet of Walter Northcote, Esq. Sans children." P. 530.

In Burke's Encyclopædia of Heraldry—a work of standard authority—is the following :—

"GILES (Bowden, Co. Devon). Per chev. ar. and az. a lion ramp. counterchanged. Crest—A lion's gamb. erect and crased sa. holding a branch of apples of the last leaved vert." The genealogical statement by Westcote is sanctioned.

I am not ambitions of the honors of heraldry, but introduce these quotations merely to show that the Giles family in America, to whom the following sheets relate, was one of respectable position in society before its emigration to this country. Although lapse of time has somewhat obscured the evidences which might otherwise have been adduced of this fact, enough remains to justify the statement now made. The coats of arms, of which I have spoken, fully establish this fact, as they also establish the unity of the family.

Among the Patentees in the Great Charter* of King James I., granted November 3, 1620, usually called the Plymouth Charter, we find the name of Sir Edward Giles of Devonshire. He is the Sir Edward mentioned by Westcote, in the quotation already made. He was a member of the third parliament of James I., 1620-1, in which there was a strong infusion of the Puritan spirit. We would not be confident in a matter now incapable of proof. We do not claim him as our ancestor; for it seems he had no children. But it strikes us as altogether probable that Edward Giles of Salem, 1634, our ancestor, was a relation of his. The coat of arms, now before my eyes, of which a copy forms the frontispiece of this volume, and which has unquestionably been transmitted through a number of generations, probably from Edward Giles of Salem himself, is almost identical with that borne by the family of Giles-Sir Edward Giles-of Bowden, Devonshire, England. This coat of arms bears all the marks of age, though at first splendidly drawn and embellished with gold and brilliant hues, and it now belongs to a family in Beverly, in the direct line of descent from Edward Giles of Salem, and residing a few miles only from the County, after two centuries." The following account is given of the author: "Thomas Westcote, the author of the 'View of Devonshire,' now for the first time submitted to the public, was baptized at Shobrook, Devon, June 17, 1567. He was buried, Mareh 6, 1636-7. His will is dated Feb. 20, 1636-7."

^{* &}quot;The great civil basis of all the subsequent Patents which divided New England,"-somebody has called it.

his home in South Danvers. As strengthening the probability already noticed, I quote the language of John Gyles, son of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid: "I have been advised to give a particular account of my father, which I am not very fond of, having no dependence on the virtues or honors of my ancestors to recommend me to the favor of God or men." These words certainly imply that his ancestors were both virtuous and honorable. The allusion to honors conveys an impression that he might, had he chosen, have commended himself to favorable attention on the ground of ancestral dignity.

The true nobility, however, is that of character. To know and to do the will of God; to comprehend our true relations to God and our fellow men; to receive and rely on Christ as our only Saviour; to answer the great purposes of our existence here, and thus to become fitted for endless glory and felicity hereafter; is a dignity compared with which all earthly honors fade away. "A christian is the highest style of man." A large proportion of the individuals who will be mentioned in the subsequent pages have been of this description. Their names, though not recorded in the Herald's Visitation, are in the Book of Life.

GILES and GYLES are one and the same name, these two forms being used at pleasure in some of the early documents. Both modes of spelling sometimes occur in the same conveyance of land. These two forms of the name seem to have possessed an equal degree of favor till about the year 1700; since which, the descendants of Edward Giles of Salem have written the name as I have now exhibited it. The descendants of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid, however, continued to use the y; while the posterity of his brother John, after a variety of usage, at length preferred the other vowel.*

The reader must here be cautioned, however, against an error into which Mr. Savage has fallen, in his Genealogical Dictionary. GILES and GILE, though so nearly alike in form, are far from being the same name. They differ more in sound than in spelling. Giles, and Gyles also, are pronounced with the g soft, as in giant, ginger, gypsum. Gile has the g hard, as in give, gild, gird. The two names, Giles and Gile are therefore essentially and radically different; and it is much to be regretted that they are put together by Mr. Savage, in his elaborate and valuable work. Thus, along with GILES, EDWARD, of Salem, 1634, and GILES, ELEAZAR, his son, also of Salem, he places "GILE, JOHN, probably of Dedham, freeman, May 10, 1643," and "GILE, SAM-UEL, of Newbury, freeman, May 18, 1642." But on turning to the List of Freemen, as printed in the Geneal. Register, Vol. III., pp. 189, 190, we find the name in both these cases spelled GUILE, i. e. with qhard; a rough, guttural sound, very unlike the soft, smooth q of the Giles family. The names in the List of Freemen were doubtless written by the recording officer according to the sound, as they were prononneed in his hearing. Mr. Paige, who copied the List, and furnished it for the Register, assures us that "the orthography of the original is carefully preserved." The two men, therefore, John Gile and Samuel Gile, should not have been placed with the Giles family; but GILE should have been assorted with GULD, to which in sound it almost exactly corresponds. I have been familiar with both names, GILE and GILEs, from my earliest years, and know them to differ essentially.

^{*} In those early times, the same name was often spelled in many different ways, e.g.: Lindall, Lyndall, Lindale, Lendall; also, Farrar, Ferrar, Farrer, Farro, Farrow, Farrah. Who would, in these more careful days, suppose that Farrabas, Ferebas, Farrowshow, Forbas, Forbus, Forbush, Furbish, Forbes, and Fobes, were identical; and that a reduction of three syllables into one had at last been accomplished ? And yet these ten forms had one common origin, and five of them were borne in the same family circle! See Geneal. Reg., Vol. VII., p. 135.

first Generation.

EDWARD GILES' was the earliest American ancestor of that portion of the GILES Family to which the compiler of this work belongs.

It is probable that there were two other individuals of the name residing or sojourning in Salem, not long after his settlement there; and that they were his brothers. The consideration of this point is deferred for the present.

Edward Giles is first made known to us under the date, May 14, 1634, when he was admitted a freeman of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay. This fact is conclusive evidence that he was a church-member; an order having been passed, May 18, 1631, at the second General Court,* held after the arrival of Winthrop, and the transfer of the charter to New England, that "to the end the body of the commons may be preserved of honest and good men, no man shall, for the time to come, be admitted to the freedom of this body politick but such as are members of some of the churches within the limits of the same."

The Massachusetts Colony has been greatly reproached for the passage of this order, and for the politico-ecclesiastical system which immediately grew out of it; but it has never yet been shown in what other possible way the great enterprise in which the colonists had embarked could have been saved from entire failure. There were not a few "old planters," intelligent, shrewd, able men, such as Blackstone at Shawmut, Maverick[†] on Noddle's Island, Walford at Mishawum, and Morton at Mount Wollaston, who were conforming Episcopalians, ardent friends of prerogative, and unfriendly, to a greater or less extent, to the designs of Winthrop and his associates; and there were likely to be many more. It was of the utmost importance that some measure, some test, should be adopted, to guard against the danger of having the government fall into other hands. The measure actually adopted was in accordance with the usages of the old world, which made civil franchise dependent on church membership. At the same time it was not liable to the objections which had been justly urged against those ancient usages. It placed the civil government, indeed, in the hands of men who held certain religious or ecclesiastical views. But it invaded no man's private interests; it endangered no man's property, liberty, or life. Men who preferred other systems of faith, or of church polity, lived in perfect security, so long as they abstained from endeavors to overthrow the constitution. The Colony was in fact a close corporation, established by English law, on land secured to them by royal charter against all others; with power to add to its members, and to exclude all such as might reasonably be suspected of unfriendly intentions. They had the same right to do this, that a householder has to determine who shall be the inmates of his house. Our Puritan fathers came to these shores for purposes most worthy and honorable; even to found an asylum for the pure gospel of Christ, and to escape that system of ecclesiastical and civil oppression which they had found so intolerable on the other side of the Atlantic. They had the right, and the opportunity, to secure the civil authority here against falling into the hands of men of adverse aims, and thus to prevent a repetition on this new soil of the evils which they had recently escaped. The expedient which they devised was a wise and an effectual one, for it completely answered the purpose.*

Edward Giles married, as early as July, 1636, and probably three or four years earlier, the widow BRIDGET VERY. She was married to her first husband, Very, as early as 1619. Her children by first husband as before. ‡ Philip Veren of Salem, came from Salisbury in England. This the Salem Records expressly affirm. He was admitted freeman of the colony, Sept. 2, 1635. Philip Veren, junior, was admitted a member of the First Church, Salem, in 1641; and freeman, June 2, 1641. The baptism of the latter is recorded in Salisbury, Eng., March, 1619, as son of Philip Veron. In the Registry of Salisbury, the name is spelled in nine different ways: Verie, 1560, Very, 1588, Verye, Verin, Veryn, Veron, Verine, Feyrene, Ferine. The names Very and Veren were entirely distinct at the settlement of Salem, and have so continued till this day; or rather Veren has altogether ceased, so far as I know, to be borne by living men. But those names were certainly identical not very long before the settlement of Salem; and we are therefore strongly persuaded that Bridget Giles's first husband was of Salisbury or its vicinity.

^{*} This remarkable law continued in force till the new charter obtained from William and Mary went into effect, in June, 1692; a period of sixty years. It is no real exception to this statement that an order by King Charles II. was made in 1662, to abrogate this law. The law was not in fact annulled, nor did the practice cease. To state the case more fully; a letter came from the king to the General Court of Massachusetts, dated June 28, 1662, in which, among other things, he "commanded that all freeholders of competent estates, not vicious in conversation, orthodox in religion (though of different persuasions concerning church government) might have their vote in the election of all officers, civil and military." Compliance with this mandate was delayed till Aug. 3, 1664, when the Court passed an order ostensibly in pursuance of it, but in substance an evasion, and the practice went on as before.

were doubtless born in England. It is altogether probable that her first husband died in England, and that she was married a second time just before the departure of herself and second husband for America. It cannot be supposed that a widow unprotected, with three or four young children, would encounter the hardships and dangers of a new settlement.

Edward Giles, in 1636, received two grants of sixty acres each, or one hundred and twenty acres of land in the whole, on Cedar Pond, in what was then the township of Salem. They were among the "Grants at Large" made by the Town to 100 or more of the first settlers at the same time.* We are thus enabled precisely to identify his residence. Cedar Pond is now in the southwest part of South Danvers, and less than a mile from the line which divides that town from Lynnfield. The South Reading Branch Railroad passes very near its southern margin. From the eastern end of this pond runs Goldthwaite's Brook, which meets the tide-water at Salem. Half a mile east of the pond, on the north side of this railroad, is a remarkable bowlder, called Ship Rock, from a fancied resemblance to the hull of a vessel. It is ascended by means of an iron ladder, placed there by the Essex Institute, who now own the rock, and the top commands an extensive view, including South Danvers and Salem. This rock seems to have been, in the early times, known as Wigwam Rock; and as such is mentioned as one of the bounds, "on the east and to the south," of the farm which Samuel Very, step-son of Edward Giles, purchased, in 1656, of Richard Way of Dorchester; which had formerly belonged to Hilliard Veren, and was granted by the town to Philip and Joshua Veren, in 1634. This farm of Samuel Very contained one hundred and seventy acres, and seems to have extended from the rock already mentioned westward towards Cedar Pond. Westward of Samuel Very's farm was the farm of his mother, Bridget Giles, then a second time living in widowhood, which had formerly belonged to her second husband, Edward Giles. The farm of Edward and Bridget Giles included meadow-land on both sides of Goldthwaite's Brook; for we find such land mentioned in her will.

The house where Edward Giles, and after him his widow Bridget, lived, was on the north side of Goldthwaite's Brook, about sixty rods from the building now occupied as the South Danvers Alms House, on a road which existed in the rear of the building just mentioned, and half a mile west of the mill lately owned by James N. Buffinn. The house had disappeared before the recollection of the aged people now living in the vicinity; the road itself was closed and turned into pasture and woodland long ago; but the cellar is still visible, though overgrown with blackberry vines, and the well is there, now covered with a stone. The spot is still, in the recollection of the aged people, known as the "Very Lot." On this spot and the vicinity, the descendants of Bridget by both husbands resided about a century and a half. In 1793, George,' Jolm,⁴ Amos,⁴ and William' Very sold to Nathaniel Nurse "all their right, &c., to the estate of their honored father Samuel Very, decensed."[‡]

^{*} In 1639, we have on record—" Granted to Edward Giles eight poles of ground lying in the common over against his ten acre lott to be laid out by the Town, it is to build him a honse there."

t We scarcely need to remind the reader that Danvers was a part of Salem till 1752.

Edward Giles—or Gyles, for the name was written in both forms probably died before 1650. But Bridget, his widow, lived till 1680, as is evident from the probate of her will.

There is no will of Edward Giles on record, or any conveyance of land in which he is either grantor or grantee, save the original grants from the town in 1636 and 1639. But Bridget Giles was his administratrix, as appears from a deed quoted, p. 12; and Bridget Giles of Salem, "widdow," conveys, Nov. 10, 1671, to Eliczer Giles of Salem, husbandman, twenty acres of land, formerly belonging to her husband, Edward Giles, bounded in part by land of her son John Giles. [Essex Deeds, Salem, 4:131.

Bridget Giles made her will on the 14th of the 11th month, 1668, that is, January 14, 1668–9. It was proved 30th of 9th month, 1680, or November 30, 1680. The following is a copy:—

"The last will and testament of Bridget Giles of Salem, widdow. I being weak of body, but well in my understanding, do dispose of what the Lord hath left me in manner and form as follows.

Imprimis, I give to my son Samuel Very twenty shillings.

I give unto my son Thomas Very twenty shillings.

I give to Mary Cutler of Redding, the wife of Thomas Cutler, forty shillings.

I give to Bridget Very, the daughter of my son Thomas Very, a cow, to be due to her when she shall be eighteen years of age, or at the time of her marriage.

I give to my son Eleazer Giles one ten acre lot, which sometime belonged to goodman Addams of Newbury, of whom my husband bought it; and I give to him all my meddow on both sides of the brook.*

. . . and the remainder of my estate, housing, land, &c., I give to my son Jøhn Giles, whom I ordain and appoint my sole executor." [Essex Prob., 1:86.

From this will it is evident that Edward Giles was the second husband of Bridget, and that she lived till the age of about eighty years. She must have been born about the year 1600.

Bridget had by her first husband, Very, born doubtless in England-

2, ELIZABETH BISHOP of New Haven, Ct., Sept. 25, 1677. They were married by her father, a magistrate of the Connecticut Colony. She was b. July 3, 1657, and was the dau. of James Bishop, Esq., of New Haven, who was Secretary of the New Haven Colony, 1661, before its union with Connecticut; Representative of New Haven, 1665; Assistant of Connecticut Colony, after the union, 1668; and Deputy Governor of Connecticut, from 1683 to 1690-"until his death," says

Mehitable Giles, was b. in England, 1604; had a grant of land in Salem, 1643; admitted freeman, May 6, 1646; was selectman of Glonecster, 1646 and 1670, besides often in intermediate years; d. March 25, 1675; his wife Joan d. May 25, 1695. His son John, husband of Mehitable, was b. 1636, probably in England. He had also a son James, b. Sept. 16, 1643. [Savage's Geneal. Dict.

Mr. Savage,—except when the government and charter were suspended by the usurpation of Sir Edmund Andros, in 1687 and 1688. He died June 22, 1691.

Eleazar Giles lived in Salem, the part which is now South Danvers, all his days. He was a "husbandman," or "yeoman;" a man of respectable standing, as appears from his alliance with the family of Lieut. Gov. Bishop; and possessed a competent, though not large, estate. His name often occurs in conveyances of land, as grantor or grantee. Some of these I will here quote, as illustrative of his condition and relations:—

1663. Eleazar Giles of Salem, for £8, conveys to John King of Salem ten acres of land in Salem, "which my mother gave me," bounded W. on land of Samuel Very, and S. on my own land and my brother's. [Essex Deeds, Salem, 5: 62.

1671, July 10. William Lord of Salem, for £12, sells to Eleazar Giles of Salem, husbandman, two acres of meadow-land on Cedar Pond, in Salem, which land was formerly excepted and reserved out of the farm now owned by Samuel Very; it is described as being "at the north end of the Great Meddow, on the westward side of a brooke that runs down through the medow." It was "formerly excepted and reserved out of the farm of Samuel Very by Mr. Philip Veren, who was the first possessor thereof." For Philip Veren, see pp. 5, 6. In this deed, Veren and Very occur as two distinct names. [Ibid, 5:111.

1681, March 28. Eleazar Giles of Salem, yeoman, and Elizabeth his wife, convey to John Nurse of Salem, two acres of meadow land in Salem, being the same which was conveyed to him in the last preceding deed. [Ibid, 10: 27.

1695-6, Feb. 11. Eliezer Giles of Salem, yeoman, and Elizabeth his wife, for £100 currant money of New England, convey to William Brown, Esq., merchant, of Salem, my present homestead in Salem, containing about 20 acres, more or less, dwelling-house, out-houses, orchard, and the land adjoining. [Ibid, 11 : 74.

1695-6, Feb. 28. Thomas Baker of Topsfield and Priscilla his wife, for £100 currant money of New England, convey to Ensign Eleazar Giles of Salem, yeoman, 40 acres of land, more or less, in Salem, bounded N. on Stone's Plain and Ipswich road, E. on John King's land and Mr. Parkman's; S. on Very's meadow and Mr. Parkman; W. on the farm called Henry Bartholomew's. No house or other building is mentioned. [Ibid, 11: 221.

Same day, Eleazar Giles, for £39.2, mortgages one half of the above described premises to Thomas Baker of Topsfield. Mortgage discharged, Nov. 11, 1718. [Ibid, 11:173.

Nov. 11, 1718. [Ibid, 11: 173. 1698, March 31. Eleazar Giles, for £20, sells five acres of the above land (apparently) to Samuel Gardner of Salem. He also sells eight acres for £30 to Samuel King of Salem, April 6, 1699. [Ibid, 12: 190, and 15: 288.

1698, June 17. Eliezer Giles of Salem sells to George Loskier of Salem, 4 acres and 26 poles of meddow land in Salem. [Ibid, 13: 200.

1704, Nov. 27. Eliezer Gyles of Salem, yeoman, for ± 52 , mortgages to William Brown, Esq., 30 acres of land, bounded on the north by the road from Ipswich to Boston. Mortgage discharged, Sept. 3, 1716. [Ibid, 16: 152.

In both of the two deeds, last quoted, the name is spelled Giles and Gyles in the same document, but the signature to both is GILES.

1724, June 23. Eleazar Giles of Salem, yeoman, gives his personal estate to his wife Elizabeth Giles. [Ibid, 43 : 251.

1725, Nov. 24. Eleazar Giles of Salem and Elizabeth Giles his wife, in consideration of a bond for the maintenance of them, &c., convey to their sons Edward Giles and Samuel Giles, their dwelling-house, land, &c. [Ibid, 45: 177.

1725-6, March 8. Eleazar Giles and Elizabeth his wife give their consent to a deed whereby Edward Giles, their son, sells to Joseph Putney, Jr., of Salem, a shop in Salem, with the land it stands on. [Ibid, 53 : 157.

This Joseph Putney married Mehitable, dau. of Eleazar Giles.

In the interval between the deed last quoted, and that which I shall next quote, the death of Eleazar Giles must have occurred.

1727, June 29. Elizabeth Giles of Salem, widow of Eleazar Giles of Salem, deceased, for £30 in Province Bills, conveys part of the homestead to her son Samuel Giles of Salem, "Joyner." [Ibid, 46 : 116.

1729, May 2. Elizabeth Giles of Salem, widow, conveys land to her son Edward Giles of Salem, bricklayer. [Ibid, 54:16.

The name of Eleazar Gyles appears in a List, made 1714, of those who were "legall proprietors of y^e comon and undevided Lands in y^e township of Salem, by y^e Laws of this province, y^t had Cottages and Dwelling places before y^e year 1661." The name of Benjamin Very, his nephew, also appears; but neither uncle or nephew was married in 1661, and it would seem that Benjamin Very was not then born! [Geneal. Reg., Vol. VII., p. 151.

Eleazar Gyles and his brother John Gyles signed a Petition to the General Court in 1668, against Imposts. It was also signed by 228 other inhabitants of Salem, whose names are printed, with the petition, in the Geneal, Reg., Vol. IX., pp. 81–85.

He was constable of Salem in 1676. He presented a petition to the General Court, Oct. 22, 1680, praying for indemnity for losses sustained by him in the fall of Indian Corn received by him for rates. This petition is still extant, in the Massachusetts Archives.

Eleazer Gyles and Elizabeth Gyles, with thirty-eight others, were dismissed, June 25, 1713, from the First Church in Salem, in order to become a distinct church at the Middle Precinct, now South Danvers. His nephew, Thomas Very, was dismissed at the same time. Before this time, they must have gone three or four miles—and the younger people, at least, must have walked that distance—to meeting. Of the new church, Rev. Benjamin Prescott was ordained pastor, Sept. 23, 1713. He was b. in Concord. Sept. 16, 1687; H. C. 1709; dismissed Nov. 16, 1756; d. May 28, 1777, a. 90.

There had previously been a church in North Danvers, then called "Salem Village"; famous in the history of the Witcheraft delusion, 1692. Hence the church formed in 1713, came to be in the "Middle Precinct." This was sometimes called "Salem Precinct."

Eleazar Giles died probably in the year 1726, a. 86. I have found no will of his, or settlement of his estate, on record.

His widow Elizabeth d. in 1733, a. 76. Samuel Giles was appointed, Oct. 29, 1733, administrator on the estate of his mother Elizabeth Giles, late of Salem, widow, deceased, intestate. [Essex Prob. 21 : 6.

JOHN GILES,² second son of Edward¹ and Bridget Giles; b. in Salem, [South Danvers,] April 15, 1645; m. 1st, before 1671, ----GILES, dau. of John Giles. 2, in 1679, ELIZABETH (GALLEY) TRASK, dau. of John Galley of Beverly, and widow of Osmund [Osmyn?] Trask of Beverly.[‡]

The proof of the first marriage is found in a Deed, dated Feb. 8, 1708-9, in which John Giles of Beverly, in the County of Essex, yeo-

* The oldest stone in the South Danvers Burying Ground is placed at this child's grave, and bears the following inscription :

HERE LYETH Y. BODY OF JAMES GYLES AGED ABOUT 10 YEARS DECEASED Yº 20 OF MAY 1689.

The foregoing is on the head-stone. On the footstone is the following simple but beautiful stanza :

Mind not the graue where His dear dust is laied But bless aboue wheither His souls connayd.

t Beverly was a part of Salem till 1668. It was previously called "Bass River," and "Cape Ann Side."

Galley's Bridge, in Beverly, sometimes erroneously called "Gallows Bridge," undoubtedly derived its denomination from this John Galley, who lived in that vicinity. John Galley had eight acres of land laid out to him in 1672, on Long Hill, adjoining Thomas Picton's land. The land last named (Picton's) was sold to the town in 1668, "for the use of the ministry forever;" and was afterwards purchased by Rev. John Hale, the first minister, descended to his posterity, and still remains in their hands.

man, and Elizabeth his wife, "for that love, good will, and natural affection which I bear to my loving son Eleazar Giles, carpenter, and my loving son-in-law John Wheeler, cooper, both of Beverly, convey a certain parcel of land in Beverly formerly belonging to my father-in-law John Giles of the town and county aforesaid;" also another parcel of $7\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land in Beverly. [Essex Deeds, 21: 30.]* Moreover, John Giles, in the record of his second marriage in 1679, is called a "widower." We know that he had a wife in 1671.

The proof of the second marriage is three-fold: 1. John Gallee of Salem, aged 78 in 1683, made his will in 1683, in which he mentions John Giles who m. his dau. Elizabeth. 2. John Giles of Beverly, and Elizabeth his wife, dau. of John Galley of Beverly, deceased, convey land, Jan. 27, 1706–7, to John Wheeler and Mary his wife, their daughter. [Essex Deeds, 32:80.] 3. Elizabeth Gyles, now wife of John Giles of Beverly, formerly wife of Osmund Trask, late of Beverly, deceased, administratrix of his estate, conveys land. In this deed, dated Feb. 18, 1687–8, she mentions her sons by her former husband, viz., Samuel, Benjamin, Joseph, William, and Edward Trask. [Essex Deeds, 36:45.

John Giles resided in Salem, i. e. in South Danvers, until his second marriage in 1679, as will appear from the deeds now to be quoted:---- 1671, Dec. 7. John Giles of Salem, husbandman, sells to William Trask and his brother John Trask, both of Salem, a "ten aere lot" of upland in Salem, bounded on lands of John Southwick and Samuel Very. In this deed his wife is said to give consent, but her name does not appear. [Essex Deeds, Salem, 3 : 155.

1679, April 18. John Giles of Salem, yeoman, for £150 conveys to Vzall Wardall [Uzal Wardwell] of Ipswich, house carpenter, my dwelling-house, with all the out-houses, Barne, &c., with all the land they stand upon, and all my land adjoyning and belonging thereto, being by estimation 9 or 10 acres, more or less, which is situate, lying and being within the township of Salem, and now in the possession and occupation of me the said John Giles, bounded S. W. on the comon land, W. on land of Samuel Very, N. on John King, and E. on land of Eleazar Giles. Bridget Giles, mother of the said John Giles, and executrix or administratrix of Edward Giles, deceased, gives her free consent to the above conveyance. No wife is mentioned. [Tbid, 6 : 120.

In 1679, on his second marriage, he removed to Beverly, and resided there till his death. He lived in the immediate vicinity of the easterly end of Beverly Common, as we learn from the following deed:—

1705–6, March 13. John Giles, Eliezer Giles, "carpenter," and John Wheeler, "cooper," all of Beverly, convey to the town of Beverly,

^{*} This deed seems, for the purposes of this volume, one of great importance. There is a possibility, indeed, that Giles, here, may be a clerical blunder for Galley; but this is not to be supposed without necessity. If the name correctly stands in the document, then are we informed of the existence of a third Giles in the first generation of Salem men. The names are, 1. Epward, father of him whose name stands at the head of this article. 2. THOMAS, father of the wife of Thomas Very, on page 7. 3. JOHS, father-in-law of the subject of this article. But of neither Thomas or John have we any farther account. Perhaps they returned to England, as we know many did. But why should land, once belonging to the father of the first wife, be given to the second wife's children ?

22 acres of land. [Essex Deeds, 17:111 and 19:66.] The land conveyed in this deed now constitutes the Beverly Common, lying on the S. side of Dane Street, and extending from Essex Street to Hale Street. John Galley, his father-in-law, lived in that vicinity, perhaps on the same spot. Eleazar Giles, his son, in 1723 lived in a house very near the east end of the Common, on what is now Hale Street.

1690, May 7. Thomas Wade of Ipswich, for £12 "currant Spanish money," sells to John Giles of Beverly, 34 acres of salt marsh in Chebacco parish, now the town of Essex. [Essex Deeds, Ipswich, 5: 311.

1696, Nov. 14. John Giles of Beverly, yeoman, and Elizabeth his wife, for £14, convey to Cornelius Larcom of Beverly, yeoman, 31 acres of salt marsh in Chebacco. [Essex Deeds, 13:10.

1708-9, Feb. 8. John Giles of Beverly, and Elizabeth Giles his wife, in consideration of what my son Eleazar Giles, and my son-inlaw John Wheeler, both of Beverly, have engaged to do for me, grant to them certain privileges, viz., three parts of four of all my household goods, stock, and moveables, of what kind soever, with the use of half of my barn during my natural life, and my wife's natural life; after which said barn, with my now dwelling-house to be entirely to my son Eleazar Giles. [Ibid, 21 : 29.

1715, Dec. 6. In a deed bearing this date, John Giles, Senior, of Beverly, is spoken of as deceased. [Ibid, 30:185.

The last named, Return Giles, is not recorded as a dau. of John Giles, but it is recorded that Samuel Wardwell of Andover m. Return Giles of Beverly as above; and there was no other Giles in Beverly who could be her father. We shall have frequent occasion to note the imperfection of the early records.

JOHN GILES,³ (Eleazar,² Edward,¹) son of Eleazar² and Elizabeth (Bishop) Giles; b. in Salem, (South Danvers,) Aug. 31, 1681; m. Nov. 7, 1706, ANNE ANDREWS, dau. of John and Anne (Jacobs) Andrews, and gr. dau. of George Jacobs, all of Salem.*

* John Andrews and Anne Jacobs were married, 1691-2. [Geneal. Reg., Vol. VI., p. 206.

1706-7, Jan. 30. Anne Andrews of Salem, widow, and relict of John Andrews of Salem, shipwright, deceased, in consideration of the love, &c., convey to my three He resided in Salem, within the present limits of that city, as we infer from his membership in the Tabernacle Church, in 1735. He was a "seaman," and perhaps a shipmaster. He seems to have been less favored in his worldly lot than his brothers, Edward and Samuel; since we find only one conveyance of real estate in which his name occurs. It is the following:—

1711, April 11. Anne Andrews of Salem, widow, daughter of George Jacobs senior, hate of Salem, deceased; John Giles of Salem, seaman, and Anne Giles his wife, one of the grand-daughters of the said George Jacobs; Elizabeth Andrews and Mary Andrews, single-women, grand-daughters of said George Jacobs, for $\pounds 65$, convey to John Jacobs of Salem, husbandman, seven acres of land in Salem, at a place known by y° name of Royall Side, bounded W. on North River, &c. The four women here named made their marks as signatures to this deed! [Essex Deeds, 24:105.

The wife of John Giles³ had a brother John Andrews, who was with "Capt. Samuel King and others in the Expedition to Canada."

John Giles³ was a member of the First Church in Salem, until the disruption of the church, in 1734, when he adhered to Rev. Mr. Fisk, the pastor, and assisted in the establishment of what was finally known as the Tabernacle Church.

We know not when John Giles³ died. He seems to have been living in 1738, when his son John⁴ still bore the suffix of "Junior."

All the children of John and Anne Giles, of whom we have any account, are the following; baptized in the First Church, Salem—

41. †John,4 bap. April 9, 1710; m. Mcrey -----.

42. Mary,4 bap. Aug. 26, 1711.

I have no doubt that there were others, and in particular a son Eleazar. The Salem Records about this time, and for a long time after this, are shamefully defective.

daughters, Anne Gyles, Elizabeth Audrews and Mary Andrews, all my right, &e., to y^e estate of my Honoured father George Jacobs, Sen¹ of Salem, deceased, &e. [Essex Deeds, 19: 155.

¹George Jacobs was hanged at Salem for witcheraft, Aug. 19, 1692, together with Rev. George Burroughs, John Proctor, and John Willard of Salem Village, and Martha Carrier of Andover. These persons were all, it is believed, highly respectable. George Burroughs grad. H. C. 1670, and was some time minister of the gospel at Casco, Salem Village, and Wells. Martha Carrier was the wife of Thomas Carrier of Andover. She was convicted on the testimony of her three unnatural children. The scene at the execution was most revolting. Five respectable individuals, all protesting their hnocence, were put to a shameful death in the presence of a great multitude, for an imaginary offence, on evidence which would not now be sufficient to hang a dog !

The bones of George Jacobs were found in the early part of June, 1854, at Danvers-port; so I was informed, a few days afterward, by a gentleman from that place. That the bones found were those of George Jacobs, was ascertained from the fact that the land where they were found helonged to him, and has until recently remained in the possession of his descendants. He was an old man, and the bones found were those of an old man; and uniform tradition points to the spot as the place of his interment. 1710–11, Feb. 28. Edward Giles of Boston, bricklayer, for £71.5, conveys to John Osburne and William Osburne Jun^t of Salem, 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land in Salem, "being part of y^t land whereon my father Mr. Eleazer Giles now liveth: bounded S. with the town comon, W. with y^t part of my land whereon my said father now liveth," &c. [Essex Deeds, 23:101.

1715–16, Feb. 4. Edward Giles, late of Boston, now resident in Salem, mason, for £70 current money of New England, conveys to John Osburne and William Osburne, in equal halves, a parcel of meadow and upland, containing 6 or 7 acres, near said Giles's house, and bounded E. on the land formerly sold to these two men. [Ibid, 27: 229.

E. on the land formerly sold to these two men. [Ibid, 27 : 229. 1715-16, Feb. 15. Edward Giles of Boston, bricklayer, "in consideration of the dutiful regard and natural affection which I bear to my honoured and Tender mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Giles, wife of my honoured father, Mr. Eleazar Giles," conveys to her a dwelling house, and about three acres of land in Salem. [Ibid, 27 : 234.

1729, Dec. 19. Edward Giles of Salem, bricklayer, for ± 20 , conveys to Samuel Giles of Salem, joyner, $\frac{1}{2}$ acre of land in Salem, bounded N. on a brook which parts it from Osborne's land, with half of the dwelling-house on the premises. [Ibid, 55:51.]

From these quotations it appears, that Edward Giles⁹ was a "bricklayer," or "mason"; that he resided in Boston in 1710, and till 1715; that in 1715, he came back to Salem, or rather to South Danvers, and spent the remainder of his life there. It further appears that he had a house there; but was not married, since no wife concurs in these conveyances of land, and no record appears elsewhere of wife or children. It also appears, from a document quoted on page 10, that he and his brother Samuel took care of their parents in their old age, at least after 1725.

He died intestate in the spring of 1734, at the age of 45. His brother Samuel was appointed administrator on his estate, June 8, 1734. [Essex Prob., 20: 26.

JAMES GILES,³ (Eleazar,² Edward,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Salem, (South Danvers,) May 15, 1691; m. 1, 1716, ELIZABETH CHURCH of Marblehead. 2, MARTHA NURSE of Salem, Dec. 20, 1737.

Our knowledge of him is extremely limited. The Salem Records fail us from their miserable poverty; and the county records fail us also, there being no conveyances of land, or settlements of estates, which give the smallest information touching him. There is but a scrap of church record respecting his posterity. He probably resided in Marblehead, and may have been a fisherman. He was living in 1743.

His children, so far as the record goes, were-

 James,⁴ bap. 1718; a fisherman; of Salem; m. 1740, Hannah Very,⁴ dau. of John⁵ and Hannah Very of Salem.^{*} James Giles signed a receipt for thirty pounds of sugar had of Elias Hasket Derby, Salem, Ang. 2, 1787.

SAMUEL GILES,³ (Eleazar,² Edward,¹) brother of the preceding, and son of Eleazar² and Elizabeth (Bishop) Giles; b. in Salem, (South Danvers,) Dec. 17, 1694; m. Sept. 10, 1719, SUSANNA PALFREY⁴ of Salem, youngest dau. of Walter Palfrey,³ sailmaker, who was grandson of PETER PALFREY.17 The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Samuel Fisk, of the First Church.

Eleazar Giles and ---- Woodwell, both of Salem, m. May 29, 1759.

Eleazar Giles and Rebecca Muchmore, m. Jan. 27, 1762." Whether these scraps of record refer to one, two, or three Eleazars, is to me unknown. I suppose here are two Eleazars. But whose sons are they ? I presume them to be sons of John³[28] and of James³[32]. No doubt their grandfather was Eleazar Giles,² who was b. 1640 and d. 1726. But their birth or baptism is nowhere recorded. Perhaps there was but one Eleazar, and he the son of James.

Eleazar Giles of Salem, cooper, made his will, April 28, 1772, and gave his wife Rebecca all his property. No children are mentioned. [Essex Prob., 47: 255.

I find also the following on Salem records :

"Ezra Giles m. to Mercy Atkinson, March 24, 1768." His parentage is not ascertained, but he was probably a son of James Giles3 in the text.

I hazard the conjecture that James Giles,4 who m. Hannah Very, 1740, had a son James,⁵ who moved to Sutton, and is the man intended in the subjoined quotations from the Massachusetts archives :

James Giles of Sutton was a private in Capt. Doggett's company in Col. Ebenezer Learned's regiment in 1775.

James Giles was a private in Capt. Ashley's company in the First (Col. Joseph Vose's) Mussachusetts regiment of the Continental army, and served three years, from Jan. 1, 1777 to Dec. 31, 1779, at forty shillings per month. James Giles was a corporal in a company of "Three months' men," from July t Rev. John White, an excellent Puritan minister of Dorchester, in England, having watched the progress of the colony at Plymouth, and perceiving that it was likely to continue and to prosper, excited several gentlemen of that place and vicinity to prepare for another settlement in New England. For this purpose a trading company was formed, composed chiefly of merchants of Dorchester, parishioners and friends of Mr. White, since known as "The Dorchester Company." This company began a plantation at Cape Anne in 1624. Of this new settlement, Roger Conant, who had been obliged in 1623 to leave Plymouth, on account of a difference of views touching church government between him and the people there, and who was now-in the early part of 1624-at Nantasket, was appointed governor, "and to have the managing and government of all the company's affairs at Cape Anne." The settlement there, after an experiment of two years, was found likely to fail. The stockholders in the company did not realize their expected profits in the fisheries and beaver trade with the Indians; they had indeed met with heavy losses; and most of the emigrants returned to England. Notice was therefore given by the company, in 1626, to such of the emigrants as remained, that the enterprise would be relinquished. The Dorchester Company was accordingly dissolved.

Mr. White, however, grieved at this abrupt termination of a plan which he had so long cherished, and which he fondly hoped would be for the advantage of religion, wrote to Mr. Conant, in 1627, urging him not "to desert the business;" and promising to obtain a patent for him and to provide all needful supplies of men, provisions, and goods, if Conant would remain in the country, and if the "three honest and prudent men" would stay with him, who had been associated with him

^{*} I find on Salem records the following :

He resided within the present limits of Salem from about the time of his marriage till he was sixty years old, when he removed to Danvers. He lived on Essex Street, Salem, on the south side of that street, nearly opposite to where the Franklin Building now stands. On the same lot of land, was his shop, where for many years he carried on the trade of a "joiner" and "cabinet-maker." He was successful in business, and became possessed of what was, for those times, a handsome property. Capt. Samuel Very, his grandson, stated, about 1829, that he owned several houses in Salem—his mansion-house, on Essex Street, near the "Archer Building," (afterwards called the "Franklin Building,") in the vicinity of the comveyance, however, of only one house to him, or rather of a houselot, on which he built the mansionhouse and shop which he occupied during most of his active life.

1720, Dec. 7. John Richards of Boston, mariner, and Mary his wife, for £65, convey to Samuel Giles of Salem, "joyner," a lot of land in Salem, bounded E. on land of Nathaniel Phippeny, [Phippen,] W. on land of said Richards, S. on land of Jonathan Archer, and N. on the Main Street or Highway; measuring in front upon the said street 63 feet, 11 inches, and in length from front to rear 78 feet. [Essex Deeds, 39: 249.] No buildings are mentioned; but we know that on this land he built his mansion-house, and shop, and here he lived thirtythree years. Nathaniel Phippen was the husband of Margaret Palfrey, sister of Mrs. Susanna Giles. They probably lived in the next house.

Six weeks afterwards, he sold a strip of this land, on the east side, ten feet wide.

1720-1, Jan. 19. Samuel Giles of Salem, joyner, and Susanna his wife, for £11 in current money of New England, or Province Bills of Credit, sell to Nathaniel Phippen of Salem, cooper, a piece or parcel in the management of the plantation under the Dorchester Company. Such was the language in which Mr. White described JOHN WOODBURY, JOHN BALCH, and PETER PALFREY.

John Woodbury afterwards settled in Beverly, then a part of Salem, where he was deputy 1635, and where he d. 1641. He was the ancestor of the Woodbury family of Beverly, and of Hon. Levi Woodbury, Secretary of Treasury under Van Buren, 1837-41.

John Balch was from the vicinity of Bridgewater, Somersetshire, Eng. He was admitted freeman, May 18, 1631; had a grant of 200 acres at the head of Bass River, Beverly, (a like grant also was made to Conant, Woodbury, and Palfrey); was selectman of Salem; and d. about June, 1648. His son Benjamin, b. 1629, is supposed to have been the first white male child born in the Massachusetts Colony. His son John m. Mary, dan. of Roger Conant. [See Geneal. Reg., Vol. IX, p. 233.

Peter Palfrey was admitted freeman, May 18, 1631, at the same time with Conant, Balch, and Woodbury. In 1632, he was deputy with Conant from Salem to the General Court. He was also selectman of Salem. In 1653, he removed to Reading, where he d. Sept. 15, 1663. He had several dans, but I do not find that he had more than one son, viz., Jonatham, bap. Salem, Dec. 25, 1636, who was probably grandfather of Susanna Palfrey in the text. He (Peter) was the ancestor of the Palfreys of Boston, of whom Hor. John Gorham Palfrey is one; and of the Palfrays of Salem, who substituted a for e in the name, more than 150 vears ago.

Faireys of Boston, or whom nor, some Gornam Fairey is one; and of the Faireys of Boston, or whom nor, some Gornam Fairey is one; and of the Faireys of Salem, who substituted a for e in the name, more than 150 years ago. These three men determined to abide with Conant; and he, having previously examined "a place called Naumkeag," a few miles to the west of Cape Anne, and preferring it to the latter as a place for a town, removed thither, with his three coadjutors and the remainder of the settlers, and laid the foundations of Salem, early in the autumn of 1626. Capt. John Endicott, with an additional number of of land in Salem, containing $2\frac{1}{2}$ poles, more or less, bounded N. on the Main Street, there measuring 10 feet; E. on land of the purchaser, 80 feet; S. on land formerly of Samuel Archer, 7 feet; W. on land of the conveyer, 80 feet. [Ibid, 49:238.

1732, Aug. 21. John Smith of Salem, shipwright, for £6, releases and quitclaims to Samuel Giles of Salem, "the now dwelling-house of said Samuel Giles with the land belonging thereto." The boundaries are the same, and the land is the same as in the deed from Richards, in 1720. We now find on it a dwelling-house. [Ibid, 59: 269. 1730, Aug. 31. This common land was in Danvers, on the road to Ipswich. See pp. 9, 10, and below.

1754, May 11. Samuel Giles of Salem, "cabinet-maker," and Susanna his wife, for £240, convey to Susanna Grafton of Salem, spinster, his mansion-house, shop, barn, out-house, and the land thereto belonging, situated in Salem, bounded N. on the Main Street, there measuring 53 feet 11 inches, E. on land of Nathaniel Phippen 78 feet, S. on land of Jonathan Archer, W. on land of Joseph Grafton 78 feet. Warwick Palfray and Samuel Jenison are witnesses. [Ibid, 101:1.

This, then, was the termination of his residence in Salem. The currency at this time was on a specie basis, and the sum received for the property sold was equivalent to 800 Spanish dollars; which may have been as much then as 4,000 dollars are now.

1757, Nov. 29. Samuel Giles of Danvers,* joyner, and Susanna his wife, for £42.13.4, convey to Joseph Pierpont and Thomas Porter, both of Danvers, shopkeepers, land in Danvers, being ten rights in the common lands on Stone's Plain, together with my shop that stands on said Plain. Thomas Giles, son of the grantee, and Joshua Safford, apprentice to Thomas Giles, are witnesses. [Ibid, 107 : 43. Samuel Giles was a member of the First Church in Salem. In emigrants, and authority to act as governor, arrived at Naumkeag, Sept. 6, 1628, and in July following the place received the name of Salem. The Colony was still weak, amounting, after Endicott's arrival, to "not much above 50 or 60 persons," lodged in "about half a score of houses." Higginson's Company, in June, 1629, made the whole number about three kundred.

Samuel Giles was a member of the First Church in Salem. In 1734, a violent disruption of that body took place, and an embittered controversy arose, which continued many years. A majority of the church—it was a bare majority—with Rev. Samuel Fisk,[‡] their pastor,

left their old house of worship, and founded another church, which yet long claimed to be the First Church. The controversy was settled in 1762, when the church which seceded with Mr. Fisk took the name of the Third Church. Their meeting-house having been consumed by fire, Oct. 6, 1774, a new one was erected in 1775, which was called the Tabernacle. The church has since been known as the Tabernacle Church.

1734. October. Samuel Giles, and his sister Mehitable, with twentytwo other male members, continued to worship at the place where the First Church had been wont to meet. John Giles, his brother, with twenty-three other male members, adhered to Mr. Fisk, at the same time.* It seems that Mr. Fisk's adherents excommunicated the other party.

There is no record of the death of Samuel Giles or of his wife; nor any will, or settlement of his estate; nor any information relating thereto. At least, the most diligent search has failed to discover any. But as there is no record concerning him later than 1757, and as his grandson, Samuel Giles of Kingsborough, N. Y., did not remember him, the probability is that he did not long survive the year just written.§

To gratify a curiosity which may arise in regard to the causes of so sad and memorable a contention, we transcribe from "A Just and Impartial Narrative of the Controversy between the Rev. Mr. Samuel Fisk, the Pastor, and a number of the Brethren of the First Church of Christ in Salen," published in Boston, 1735, the four charges which were made against Mr. Fisk by "the aggrieved Brethren." They were as follows :

"1. That Mr. Fisk had set aside a Publick Lecture, which had been preached to the First Church of Christ in Salem for near a century without any intermission.

"2. That he interpolated in the Church Records, certain words, purporting to be a vote of the church in regard to said Lecture.

"3. A publick allusion to said Vote in a sermon, charging the church with the guilt of neglecting it.

"4. Neglecting to call a church meeting in regard to a brother, who had absented himself from communion."

Eleazar Glies [91] of Beverly, and that his name was Eleazar. Yet the records of the First Church, Salem, give his name, when baptized, as Samuel. Perhaps he was baptized as Samuel, and his name afterwards changed to Eleazar. Or the recording officer forgot the right name, and through inadvertence substituted Samuel, the name of the father, for Eleazar, the name of the venerable grandfather. This might easily occur, especially if there happened to be an interval of several days between the transaction and the record. Such a mistake does sometimes occur, as I have had opportunity to know, in other cases.

ELEAZAR GILES,³ (Eleazar,² Edward,¹) brother of the preceding, and youngest son of Eleazar² and Elizabeth Giles; b. in Salem, (now South Danvers), July 8, 1698; m. ELIZABETH ------.

There is no record of him, except of his birth, in the county of Essex. But I am fully persuaded that he is the same individual who died in Hopkinton, in the county of Middlesex, in the year 1749, and whose sons, Ebenezer, James, and Joseph, afterwards settled in Townsend in the same county. The facts, which I am about to state, are derived in part from the Middlesex Probate Records, and in part from the Town and Church Records of Hopkinton. Notices of some of his children follow, from the Massachusetts archives.

He seems to have settled in Hopkinton about the year 1724, since we find that Eleazar Giles and Elizabeth his wife, were admitted to Rev. Samuel Barrett's church, in that place, Nov. 8, 1724. This church was organized with fourteen members, and Mr. Barrett ordained, on the 2d September, in the same year. Hopkinton was incorporated as a town, Dec. 13, 1715.

Eleazar Giles was constable in Hopkinton, 1727; and one of the school committee in 1740. In 1746, he witnessed a deed of gift of land from John Young, grandfather of the noted Brigham Young of Utah, to Rev. Mr. Barrett.

He was a mason, but cultivated a farm of 581 acres of "leased land" in Hopkinton. The land was on a perpetual lease, and the fee simple was in Harvard College.§ This was the homestead, and Eleazar

§ Edward Hopkins, an eminent Puritan merchant in London, emigrated to New England in 1637, being then about 38 years of age. He took up his residence in Hartford, and for several years alternated with John Haynes in the office of governor of the Connecticut Colony. In 1652, he returned to England, where he died, March, 1657, leaving a high reputation in both sides of the Atlantic for integrity and public spirit. In his will, dated March 7, 1657, he left 500 pounds for the interests of education in New England, to be paid in six months after his wife's decease. This was understood as a bequest to Harvard College, and to a grammar school in Cambridge. The decease of the wife, who was a dau. of Governor Eaton of New Haven, was above forty years later than that of the testator. It being then neces-sary to bring a suit in chancery against the executor of the executor, the money was not paid to the trustees appointed by the college and grammar school till 1714. This fund was then invested in the tract of land which was bought of the Natick

Giles's interest in it, was appraised in the Inventory of his estate at £940, old tenor; which, as the currency was at its lowest depth of depreciation in 1749, amounted to only 418 dollars. The whole amount of the Inventory was £1,442.5; equivalent to 640 dollars, and includes some other property. Inventory dated Aug. 7, 1749; presented by Elizabeth Giles, adm^{*}. [Midd. The estate was divided, June 24, 1750. One third of the property was set off as dower to the widow. All the remainder was set off to Eleazar Giles, second son of the deceased, provided he pay £104 in money to his eldest brother, Samuel Giles, and to each of his brethren, John, Daniel, Ebenezer, James, and Joseph, £52.1.6, in Bills of Public Credit. At forty-five shillings for a dollar, the rate at which the old currency was redeemed in 1750, the amount paid to Samuel was short of 50 dollars, and to each of the others only 23 or 24 dollars. There was a sister Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Howard, who had already had her portion. [Ibid, 37 : 287-290.

Elizabeth Giles, widow of Eleazar Giles, m. Benjamin Brooks of Townsend, Oct. 26, 1749.

Ebenezer Giles, James Giles, and Joseph Giles, minors, and children of Eleazar Giles, late of Hopkinton, deceased, had a guardian appointed at their own election, Feb. 28, 1757, to wit, Isaac Farrar, husbandman, of Townsend, who gave bonds in the sum of £300, with Benjamin Brooks of Townsend, as surety. Indians, and has since been known as the town of Hopkinton, so named in honor of Edward Hopkins, and in part of the adjoining town of Upton. These lands were disposed of in preptual leases to tenants, at the rate of one penny sterling per acre for the first 99 years, and after that three pence sterling per acre. But after the first 99 years were expired, the enhanced rents could not be obtained from the tenants, and an arrangement was made, under the authority of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of which a certain sum of money was paid from the public treasury, and the tenants obtained a final acquittance. The fand has been judi-ciously managed, and now amounts to more than $30,000. [Savage's Winthrop, Vol. I., p. 275, edition 1853.

* In a return dated March 23, 1757, Daniel Giles of Hopkinton, one of the above children, appears on the "List of Alarm men." [Mass. Archives.] The alarm men included all the men who were exempt from training ; even ministers, physicians, ferrymen, &c.

Schans, ferrymen, ec. Daniel Giles of Hopkinton was a private in the king's service, in the company of Capt. Samuel Peck, from April 24 to Nov. 20, 1759. He also was a private in the company of Capt. John Dunlap, from June 18 to Dec. 3, 1760. [Ibid. The Giles family in Hopkinton seem all to have removed to other places, at different times, from 1750 to 1765—Ebenezer, James, and Joseph to Townsend, Samuel perhaps to Berkshire county, and Daniel perhaps to New Salem. JOHN GILES,³ (John,² Edward,¹) eldest son of John Giles² of Beverly; b. in Salem, (or what is now South Danvers,) about 1671; m. 1, in Marblehead, March 29, 1694, ABIGAIL RAYMOND of Beverly. 2, in Salem, May 9, 1709, ESTHER SWINNERTON, probably a dau. of Dr. John Swinnerton of Salem, who d. Jan. 6, 1690-1.* She was living, a widow, in Beverly, 1755.

We first find a notice of him, in active life, in 1695, April 26, when Henry Coombs of Lynn, for £18, sold to John Gyles Junior of Beverly, "cordwainer," a dwelling-house and one acre of land adjoyning, "in Salem within the precincts of the village." [Essex Deeds, 10:163. This deed, therefore, indicates the time of his removal from Beverly to North Danvers, then called "Salem Village," where he spent the remainder of his days. He was not only a "eordwainer," but a cultivator and owner of land. He appears to have been successful in business, to have acquired a fair property, and to have been a respectable and worthy man.

1697, June 24. John Hadlock of Salem and Sarah his wife, for £1.10, convey to John Giles of Salem, cordwainer, three-fourths of an acre of land, in Salem, bounded E. on the land which he purchased two vears before. [Ibid, 12:10.

1700, July 2. Samuel Parris t of Newton and Dorothy his wife, for £17, convey to John Giles of Salem Village, "shoomaker," an orchard in Salem Village, containing about two acres, which I purchased of John Shepard in 1691. [Ibid, 14:210.

1709, June 16. John Hadlock of Salem and Sarah his wife, for £84, convey to John Giles of Salem, cordwainer, thirteen acres of land in Salem, near the "said Giles his house" in Salem. [Ibid, 21:154.

1719-20, Feb. 29. John Giles of Salem, cordwainer, no wife is mentioned,] for £12, conveys to John and William Osburn of Salem, his right in the common and undivided lands of Salem. [Ibid, 38:81. 1722-3, Jan. 1. John Hutchinson Junr of Salem, for £74, mort-t This was Rev. Samuel Parris, formerly pastor of the church in "Salem Village," in whose family the unhappy "Salem Witcheraft" began, in Feb. 1692. He was b. in London, 1653; ordained pastor, Salem Village, Nov. 1689; left his pastoral charge there in June, 1696; resided in Concord, 1704; preached in Dunstable, 1711; d. probably in Sudbury, 1720. He did much to promote that terrible delusion.

As a matter of curiosity, though not strictly belonging to the design of this volume, we give the following abstract of the will of this unfortunate man, as recorded Midd. Prob., 16 : 46. The will is not dated, but was proved March 28, 1720:---

WILL OF REV. SAMUEL PARRIS OF SUDBURY .- No wife is mentioned. The testator has five children; viz., his dau. Elizabeth Barron, wife of Benjamin Barron, dau. Dorothy Brown, and dau. Mary Parris; also sons Noyes Parris and Samuel Parris. These two sons are minors. Noyes Parris having dedicated himself to Parris. These two sons are minors. Noves Parris having dedicated himself to learning, shall have his father's library, saving such books as are in English, which shall be divided among the testator's three other children, namely, Samuel Parris, Dorothy Brown, and Mary Parris. The testator owns part of a plantation, equal to twenty acres, in the island of Barbadoes. He has in that island an uncle, John Parris, Esq., who was, in 1656, attorney to the testator's father, Thomas Parris of London. This property in Barbadoes descended to the testator from his father as sole heir. He bequeaths to my son, Samuel Parris, my Indian woman Violett. gages to John Giles of Salem, cordwainer, 8 acres of land in Salem. [Ibid, 43 : 86.

1729, March 27. William Porter of Topsfield, yeoman, and Phebe his wife, for £21, convey one acre and 93 poles of land in Topsfield to John Giles of Salem, "yeoman." [Ibid, 52:180.

John Giles was wounded by the Indians in their attack on Haverhill, Ang. 29, 1708, when Rev. Mr. Rolfe, minister of that place, was killed. See Lindall Family, in the sequel.

He was a member of the church at Salem Village, now North Danvers. He was baptized in mature years, May 26, 1700, with his children, John, Bridget, and Abigail, at the time of his admission to that church. His second wife, Esther, was "received to full communion" there, Sept. 5, 1712.

The estate is settled, and a division made among the children of the deceased, viz., John Giles, eldest son, two shares; Abigail Giles alias Hutchinson, Hannah Giles, Ruth Giles alias Cummings, Elizabeth Giles, Mary Giles, Esther Giles. Elizabeth Giles is said to have been 19 years old in 1731, and Mary, 16 at same time. [Essex Prob., 21 : 9.

ELEAZAR GILES,3 (John,2 Edward,1) son of John2 and Elizabeth Giles of Beverly; b. there, March 19, 1679-86; m. April 24, 1702, LYDIA GROVER of Beverly. She was probably a grand-dau. of Edmund Grover, who was of Salem, 1637, and died in Beverly, June 11, 1683, a. 82. He had a son Nehemiah.

He was a "carpenter," though sometimes called a "wheelwright;" and spent his life in his native town of Beverly. He seems to have possessed a fair property. See several deeds quoted in the account given of his father.

He lived, in 1723, very near the easterly end of the Beverly common, on what is now Hale Street. In 1751, his son-in-law, Benjamin Jeffery, occupied the same house.

1713-14, March 4. Samuel West of Beverly, yeoman, and Mary his wife, for £40, convey 12 acres of land in Beverly to Eleazer Giles of Beverly, wheelwright. [Essex Deeds, 31:173.

He d. April 24, 1740. His wife Lydia d. Jan. 25, 1748-9.

He made his will, April 8, 1740; it was proved May 5, 1740; recorded Essex Prob., 24:201. He gives his wife Lydia the whole income of his estate during her natural life, if she remains his widow. After her decease, the whole shall go to my son-in-law, Benjamin Jeffery, husband of my dau. t We derive this date, and some others, from a MS. of Col. Robert Hale,4 just mentioned, preserved in the office of the town clerk of Beverly. It is of special value to such as have oceasion to investigate the history of families living in Beverly about the middle of last century. According to this MS., Mial Giles of Beverly died at Louisburg in 1759, doubt-

JOHN GILES,4 (John,3 Eleazar,2 Edward,1) son of John3 and Anne (Andrews) Giles of Salem; bap. April 9, 1710; m. MERCY -----.

He was a "husbandman," and resided in Salem, in that part which is now South Danvers. He, or his wife, or both, were members of the Third Church in Salem. But Sarah, their eldest dau., was baptized in the First Church in Salem; the remaining three in the Third (or South Danvers) Church. This may indicate a corresponding change of residence, about 1732.

1737-8, Jan. 25. John Giles Jun^r of Salem, husbandman, for £15 in Bills of Credit, conveys to George Gould of Salem, half a share in a township of land "lately granted by the General Court of Massachu-setts Bay to Capt. Samuel King and others who were in the Expedition to Canada, which right was originally allowed to me for my uncle John Andrews."* [Essex Deeds, 77:217.

* The "Expedition to Canada," here mentioned, was, I presume, that ill-starred * The "Expedition to Canada, new field from Boston for the One of the Structure and the structure expedition, which sailed from Boston for the St. Lawrence, Aug. 9, 1690, with the small-pox on board. It was under the command of Sir William Phipps, who proved himself wholly incompetent to conduct such an enterprise. The attack on Quebce was too long delayed, and proved utterly unsuccessful. The expedition was undertaken at the cost of the Province, and the expense of it crippled the Province many years after. To provide funds, it became necessary to emit "Bills of Credit" to the amount of 50,000 pounds; the bad precedent led to still further issues of the same unworthy currency; a ruinous depreciation took place; gold and silver coin wholly disappeared, and the country seemed fast verging to a condition of hopeless bankruptcy, till the opportune arrival, in Sept. 1749, of a large amount of money, sent from the Royal Treasury to refund the charges incurred by the Province in 1745 in the capture of Louisburg, afforded the means of deliverance. The amount thus received was £183,649 sterling, in silver and copper coin; and it was immediately applied to the redemption of the almost worthless paper. Scarcely were has any event caused more gladness than the landing of this money on the Long Wharf in Boston. It consisted of 215 chests of silver dollars, each chest containing 3,000 dollars on an average, and 100 casks of copper; or, as stated otherwise, 653,000 ounces of silver, and 10 tons of copper coin. So low had the old currency sunk, that the law passed in 1749 for its redemption provided that one Spanish milled dollar should be given for forty-five shillings of the old tenor.

The fifteen pounds which John Giles received for his half share in the township, were equivalent to only twelve silver dollars! The township "granted by the General Court to Capt. Samuel King and others," was doubtless the territory now included in the towns of Chesterfield and Goshen, in Hampshire county. Or rather, that township was granted in part to the survivors of the Canada expedition and their heirs, and in part to the survivors of the Narraganset expedition, 1675, and their heirs.

SAMUEL GILES,⁴ (James,⁵ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) son of James⁵ and Elizabeth Giles; bap. 1728; m. Aug. 27, 1762, LYDIA DECOSTER of Marblehead. This marriage was by an Episcopal elergyman, and is recorded in Salem, where it was doubtless solemnized, though the parties are said to be "both of Marblehead." Whether there was a prior marriage, we know not.

Samuel Giles was a "shipwright," and spent his life in Marblehead, which seems to have been his native town.

1760, Nov. 10. Samuel Giles of Marblehead, shipwright, administrator of Alice De France^{*} of Marblehead, widow, deceased, sells to Samuel Rogers of Marblehead, taylor, for £81.10, a house and land in Marblehead, near Nick's Cove. ELEAZAR GILES,⁴ (Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) eldest son of Samuel³ and Susanna (Palfrey) Giles of Salem; bap. in First Church, Nov. 5, 1721; m. ELIZABETH SMITH of Salem, April 5, 1743. She was baptized, at adult age, Dec. 30, 1744, in the Third Church in Salem, now the church in South Danvers.¹

* I presume that this was the mother of Samuel Giles' wife. Samuel Giles had a grand-dau. Alice.[184]

[‡] The case of this man has caused the compiler of this volume no small perplexity. He is certainly the father of Capt. Eleazar Giles, ⁵ b. Oct. 1744; d. 1809. The eldest dau. of Capt. Eleazar Giles, Elizabeth Wright, is still living, 1862, though in her nineticth year. Her mind is very clear and intelligent, and she well recollects the early past. Very particular inquiry has been made of her at different times within the last few years, and she is very positive and decided in the statement that the name of her father's father was Eleazar, and that her father's mother was named Elizabeth. Capt. Eleazar Giles was certainly the nucle of Capt. Samuel Giles of Salem, (b. Sept. 18, 1787; d. March, 1850); and this last was second cousin to my mother, they having the same great-grandfather. My cousin Thomas Giles well known to my uncle, who is here my principal informant.

The town records of Silem are wholly silent in regard to the children of my greatgreat-grandfather Samuel Giles, [33] as they are in multitudes of other cases. The records of the First Church give him a son Samuel, but not a son Eleozar. Nothing more, however, is ever heard or seen of this son Samuel. With all these things in view, I decide that the Samuel of the church records, baptized Nov. 5, 1721, is no other than Eleazar, the father of Capt. Eleazar Giles; for Eleazar must have been baptized in the First Church about that time; and the record means Eleazar, though it says Samuel. He lived in South Danvers, after his marriage, until July, 1746, when he appears to have removed to a small tenement in Salem, on the east side of Bridge Street, near Beverly bridge, or ferry, as it then was. Here he lived probably till near the close of his life. He was a "fisherman," and from what I shall quote from the Massachusetts Archives, seems to have been well skilled in nautical affairs, though less competent to conduct his own pecuniary concerns. The last few years, or months, of his life were spent in Beverly, where he d. in the summer of 1781. His son Eleazar was his administrator. 1746, July 23. 1746, July 23. Jane Massey of Salem, widow, for five shillings, conveys to Eleazar Giles of Salem, fisherman, a small piece of land in Salem, bounded North on the sea. [Essex Deeds, 88 : 172.

As no building is mentioned as standing on this land, he must have erected a dwelling-house there, as we find him living there afterwards. It was on the east side of Bridge Street, next to the water.

1758, March 22. Eleazar Giles of Salem, fisherman, and Elizabeth his wife, for £14.12, mortgage to Miles Ward Jun⁷ of Salem, merchant, a dwelling-house, and a quarter of an acre of land, thereto belonging, situated in Salem, near Beverly ferry, where he the said Eleazar Giles now dwells. This mortgage was discharged Oct. 27, 1758, doubtless from the avails of his pay as a seaman in the ship King George. See below. [Ibid, 106 : 150.

1767, Aug. 12. Execution is levied upon the goods and estate of Eleazar Giles of Salem, fisherman, for £13.3.11, besides cost, which is $\pounds 1.7.2$, at the suit of Samuel Buffum of Salem, shopkeeper. Buffum, being a Quaker, made affirmation, instead of the oath required by law. [Ibid, 121 : 140.

The dwelling-house and land of Eleazar Giles were taken to satisfy this execution. But he must have found some means to redeem it, for we find it in his possession at the time of his death, as appears from the following :—

1782, Nov. 12. Eleazar Giles of Beverly, mariner, administrator on the estate of Eleazar Giles, late of Salem, but last resident in Beverly, mariner, deceased, intestate, for £105, conveys to William Homan of Beverly, merchant, two parts in three of a dwelling-house and about 40 poles [$\frac{1}{4}$ acre] of land, situated in Salem, bounded N. and E. by the sea, W. by the highway, &c. [Ibid, 140: 42.

The currency, in 1782, was greatly depreciated.

Eleazar Giles of Salem was a seaman in the armed ship King George, Benjamin Hallowell, Jun⁷, Esq., commander, from March 22 to Oct. 21, 1758. There were in this ship 259 men, including officers. Their names are given in the Pay-Roll. [Mass. Archives.

This ship was owned and kept in commission by the Province of Massachusetts Bay, and was doubtless employed in guarding the coasts of Massachusetts and Maine.*

^{*} The commander of this vessel, Benjamin Hallowell, married, June 13, 1746, Mary Boylston, b. Feb. 19, 1722, dau. of Thomas Boylston, shop-keeper, of Boston, and sister of Nicholas and Thomas Boylston, who were both wealthy men of Boston. (See Vinton Memorial, p. 310.) Capt. Hallowell occupied the mansion-house still standing at the corner of Boylston and Austin Streets, on Jamaica Plain, near Boston. At the breaking out of the Revolution, he adhered to the royal party;

Eleazar Giles of Salem was not in this vessel in the year 1759 nor 1760. But he was "Pilott," and Thomas Giles was "son to the Pilott," of the same armed ship King George, under the same commander, from April 10 to Oct. 22, 1762, being 28 weeks. The pay of Eleazar Giles during this time was 100 shillings ($16.66) per month. This was equal to one half the pay of the commander, Hallowell. The pay of his son, Thomas Giles, and of the crew generally, was 53s. 4d. ($8.89) per month. There were 182 men in the ship, including officers. Mass. Archives.

This was the last year of the war, and the vessel was not in commission afterwards.

* I find the following in one of the muster-rolls of the Revolution :-

Mark Giles of Salem was a private in Capt. Bowne's company in Col. Thomas Garduer's regiment, 1775. [Mass. Archives.] I am strongly inclined to refer this record to Clark Giles in the text. I find no

Mark Giles in Salem about this time, and do not believe there was one of that name here. So far as I know, the name Mark has never been borne by a descendant of Edward Giles' of Salem; though it has been common in the Dover branch. Gardner's regiment fought at Bunker's Hill, near the close of the day, and did good service in covering the retreat. Gardner was mortally wounded, and died July 3.

Isaac Very and a Samuel Very, both of Salem, were privates in Capt. John Taplin's (of Southboro') company, in Col. Jonathan Bagley's regiment, in 1758. They enlisted May 2, and were discharged Nov. 20. [Ibid.

Isaac Very of Salem, aged 43, enlisted April 6, 1759, in a regiment commanded by Col. Ichabod Plaisted, to be under the orders of Gen. Jeffery Amherst, for the invasion of Canada. He was also in the king's service as a soldier from April 28 to Dec. 6, 1760. [Ibid.

THOMAS GILES,⁴ (Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) youngest son of Samuel³ and Susanna (Palfrey) Giles of Salem; baptized Feb. 7, 1730-1; m. in Salem, Nov. 4, 1753, MARY JENNISON, 5 b. about 1734, only surviving dau. of Rev. William Jennison,4 who had been pastor of the East Church in Salem from 1728 to 1736, by his wife Abigail, dau. of James Lindall, Esquire, a prosperous and wealthy merchant of Salem. [JENNISON 57.] In the record of the marriage, both of the parties are declared to be "of Salem." After the death of her father, 1750, and perhaps from a previous date, it would appear that Mary Jennison resided with her relatives, the Lindalls, in that place. It appears, moreover, that she inherited some of the large property of her said grandfather.

Thomas Giles resided, after his marriage, in South Danvers, and his children were baptized in the church in that place. He was a "cabinetmaker," a trade which he doubtless learned of his father.

His wife was, for those times, a well-educated woman, and possessed great worth of character. She spent much time in instructing her children; and they were left chiefly to her care, the father being absent in the service of his country. Samuel, her second son, in particular, retained to the end of his long life a most vivid remembrance of her and her early instructions.

Tradition reports that she and her husband commenced life in a style above what they were able to support, and that they thus became reduced in their worldly circumstances. If this were so, it may account for the sale of their interest in a portion of her mother's estate so soon after her decease.

I find but one deed on record, in which his name occurs, either as grantor or grantee; and that is the deed to which I have now made allusion. I infer from this that he was not possessed of much worldly property in his own right; though his connection with so influential a family as the Lindalls indicates a respectable position in society; and he had of course a life-estate in the property of his wife.

1765, June 25. Thomas Giles, now resident in Danvers, cabinetmaker, and Mary his wife, formerly Mary Jenison, daughter of Abigail Jenison, late of said Danvers, widow, deceased, intestate, for £55.4s. lawful money, convey to Samuel Jenison of New-London, Connecticut, merchant, all the interest of the said Thomas and Mary in the Real Estate in Danvers, which the said Abigail Jenison left to them at her death; particularly two third parts of 17 acres of woodland, also 3½ acres of land in Danvers.* [Essex Deeds, 115: 275.

There was other property, besides what was alienated by this deed, which Mrs. Mary Giles inherited from the Lindall family, as appears from the following petition to the Judge of Probate of Essex County, dated Jan. 3, 1785 :—

"The petition of James Lindall Giles, Mary Giles, and Abigail Giles, children of Mary Giles, late of Salem, deceased, humbly sheweth, that Mary Giles, our late mother, died seized of some lands and other estate in Salem aforesaid; and prays that your Honor would grant unto our elder brother Thomas Giles of Boston, a Letter of Administration," &c.

"BOSTON, JAN. 3, 1785. This may certify to whom it may concern, that we the subscribers have often heard our two brothers Samuel Giles and William Giles, who are absent, say, that it was their desire that their elder brother Thomas Giles of Boston would take care and transact all matters relating to what might be coming to them at the decease of their and our mother, Mary Giles.

> JAMES LINDALL GILES, MARY GILES, ABIGAIL GILES.

Witness—

William Sadler, Sally Atwood.

Besides the "lands and other estate in Salem aforesaid," there were also lands in Danvers, which Mrs. Mary Giles inherited from the Lindall family, as appears from the following alienation of them :—

1792, May 24. Thomas Giles of Gloucester and James Lindall Giles of Salem, children of Mary Giles, late of Salem, deceased, for £2.8s. lawful money, paid by Nathaniel Nurse of Danvers, yeoman, sell, convey, and forever quitclaim to him all their interest in a parcel of land containing 12 acres, bounded S. on the county road, W. on land of Nathaniel Nurse, N. on Benjamin Proctor, E. on land of Joseph Newhall. [Essex Deeds, 165 : 204.

^{*} Mrs. Abigail Jennison d. at Danvers, Jan. 1, 1765, et. 52. Samuel Jennison, the grantee in the above deed, was her son, and brother of Mrs. Mary Giles. The phrase, "Lawful money," came into use immediately after the redemption of the old currency, in 1750, and was used to denote the new currency, resting on a specie basis, which then followed. Six shillings and eight pence of this currency were by law declared to be equivalent to an onnce of coined silver, or a French crown. The phrase was retained till within the writer's recollection.

1792, June. Samuel Giles of Weathersfield, Vermont, and William Giles and Mary Giles, late of Brookfield, Mass., and Abigail Giles, lately living with the aforesaid Samuel Giles, for £2.8s., paid to each by Nathaniel Nurse, sell, &c., the same 12 acres. [Ibid.

1793, April 15. James Lindall Giles, tailor, and Mary Giles, spinster, both of Salem, for £5.5s. lawful money, convey to Jonathan Trask of Danvers, 31 acres of land in Danvers. [Ibid, 155: 228.

1793, June 8. Thomas Giles of Gloucester, sailmaker, and Mary his wife, for £2.17s. lawful money, convey to Jonathan Trask of Danvers, all their interest in 31 acres of land in Danvers. [Ibid, 156:175.

I presume that the property thus described and thus alienated, by the children of Mrs. Mary Giles, descended to her from her grandfather, James Lindall. But she had other property in Danvers, bequeathed to her by Mary Lindall, her aunt, as appears from the following document, executed about a year after the death of her husband :----

1776, June 27. Mary Giles of Danvers, widow, conveys to her brother William Jennison of Douglas, in the county of Worcester, one quarter part of a farm in Danvers, the whole farm containing 85 acres, "being the same farm which our aunt Mary Lindall, formerly of Salem, lately of Charlestown, Mass., single-woman, deceased, devised to Edward Goldstone Lutwyche, the said William Jennison, my brother Samuel Jennison, and myself, to be equally divided," &c. [Ibid, 134:234.

I have gone thus largely into the matter of inheritance derived from the Lindall family, because it is of importance in itself, and because the descendants of Thomas and Mary (Jennison) Giles will be glad to see thus fully illustrated a matter in which they have always felt a special interest. I have heard it spoken of from my childhood; and LINDALL has ever been with me a cherished name.

Thomas Giles⁴ was a soldier in the "Old French War," the war which resulted in the expulsion of the French from Canada. How long he continued in this service, does not appear. I do not find his name on any of the muster-rolls belonging to that period, preserved in the Massachusetts Archives; notwithstanding those rolls contain the names of many men from Danvers, Salem, Beverly, and other towns in that vicinity. I find the name of Joshua Safford* of Danvers, an apprentice (servant he is called) of Thomas Giles. But the name of Thomas Giles, after the most careful search continued through several days, I did not find, except in a doubtful case.[‡]

* Joshua Safford was a private, from April 3 to Nov. 20, 1758, in a company of foot in His Majesty's service, under command of Capt. Andrew Fuller, in a of toot in His Majesty's service, under command of Capt. Andrew Fuiler, in a regiment of which Jonathan Bagley of Amcsbury was colonel, raised by the Province for the reduction of Canada. On the several rolls of Col. Bagley's regi-ment, in 1758, were borne the names of 1,028 men. [Mass. Archives. There were, not unfrequently, negroes and Indians in the companies raised by the Province during this war. I found many rolls, belonging to the year 1758, containing the names of negroes and Indians mingled with the names of other soldiers. This shows the extreme urgency of the times. 4 The "Billeting Rolls" of this period contain the names of the soldiers who t The "Billeting Rolls" of this period contain the names of the soldiers who were furnished with meals by the innholders in different parts of the country, especially on the line of march to Canada, as the troops marched to the seat of war What then? Shall we conclude, in opposition to the positive assertion of his son, that Thomas Giles did not serve his country at that great crisis? We will rather attribute the deficiency to the well-known imperfection of records; a lesson we have been learning all along, in these genealogical investigations. Public records do not, and cannot, contain everything; and many things which they ought to contain were omitted through the carelessness of the recording officer.

Samuel Giles, second son of Thomas Giles,⁴ stated that, so far as he could recollect, he never saw his father till he (Samuel) was six years old; that his father was a soldier in the "Old French War;" that he suffered much while on the Canada frontier; and that in giving an account, to his wife after his return, of his hardships and sufferings, he could not refrain from tears; which his little boy, Samuel, observing, wondered at, not understanding why his father should weep, now that he he had got home.

In that great struggle, the colonies put forth their utmost strength. On the issue hung their dearest interests. Massachusetts, in particular, raised in one year, 1758, seven thousand men for the conquest of Canada; besides six hundred men maintained for coast and frontier defence. The same Province also advanced, the same year, not less than one million of dollars for the same purpose.^{*} It is pleasant to think that our ancestor, Thomas Giles, had a part in this struggle.

When the encroachments of the British ministry and parliament had again put in peril all that our fathers held dear, and the colonies were at length aroused to an armed resistance, Thomas Giles was among the first who repaired to the Revolutionary standard. Though he had passed the meridian of life, we find him in the host that beleaguered the British forces in Boston, after the battle of Lexington. On the memorable seventeenth of June, 1775, he faced the myrmidons of oppression on Bunker Hill. In that sanguinary fray, he fought with undaunted courage; and just as he was ready to fire away his last cartridge, he was heard to exclaim, "Heaven direct the charge!" The Provincial troops on Bunker Hill, on that occasion, it is well known, exhausted all their ammunition. The day after the battle, while trying on some new clothing in a tailor's shop, he suddenly fell, and instantly expired. This may have arisen from the fatigue and exhaustion of the battle; for it does not appear that he was wounded. The troops suffered much from the heat of the weather, and an enforced abstinence from food, through the day, as well as from the severity of the encounter.[†] and returned. The uniform charge is sixpence a meal for each man. The account was made out, and paid by the Province.

* Holmes's American Annals. Hildreth's History of the United States.

t Here, again, the records fail us; for after repeated and most careful search was made out, and paid by the Province. In "an account for billeting men on their return from the army, by Thomas Adams, Cambridge, Dec. 20, 1758," appears the name of Thomas Giles, "2 meals," who is said to be one of "Capt. Gorges men," that is, one of the company of Capt. Samuel George, "in Col. Bagley's Regm." Capt. George's company were from Amesbury and vicinity. Col. Bagley's regiment, we know, had men from Salem, Beverly, &c. But as the name of the soldier above mentioned is elsewhere given as Thomas Gilbs, there may be room for doubt whether Thomas Gilbs of Danvers is meant. [Mass. Archives, Vol. VII., 1758–1760.

SAMUEL GILES,4 (Eleazar,3 Eleazar,2 Edward,1) eldest son of Eleazar³ and Elizabeth Giles of Hopkinton; bap. Dec. 20, 1724; m. Sept. 20, 1749, MARY AXTELL of Grafton.

We know but little respecting him. He continued to reside in Hopkinton till the year 1762; and not long afterwards seems to have moved away; as the whole family did about that time.

Samuel Giles of Hopkinton was a private in the company of foot of the Province troops in His Majesty's service, under the command of Capt. Aaron Fay, in a regiment raised for the reduction of Canada. whereof Ebenezer Nichols was colonel. He enlisted March 29, 1758, and was in the service till Nov. 10, 1758. Pay £1.16s .= 6 dolls. per month. Mass. Archives.

Samuel Giles of Hopkinton, aged 30, enlisted April 6, 1759, in a regiment commanded by Col. John Jones, for the invasion of Canada.

among the muster-rolls and pay-rolls of 1775, the name of Thomas Giles4 is not to be found. We find his son Thomas's name, but not his.

The proof of what is affirmed in the text is, however, entirely satisfactory. His son Samuel often stated that his father was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and that he died in the manner above described. This statement was introduced into the sermon preached at the son's funeral, by Rev. Dr. Yale of Kingsborough, and has sermon preached at the sou's tuneral, by Rev. Dr. Yale of Kingsborough, and has never been doubted. Dea. Sanuel Giles was accustomed to speak of it as a well-ascertained fact. He further stated that once, when on a journey, in a sleigh with a pair of horses, probably in the winter of 1800, to Gloucester, Mass., to visit his friends, and passing through New Hampshire, he (Samuel) called at a blacksmith's shop to have some repairs made, or it may be, to get a horse shod; when a man who accompanied him called him by name. At the sound of it, the blacksmith started, and inquired if he were related to Thomas Giles. "That was my father's name," replied Samuel. The blacksmith then said, he stood by his side in the battle of Ruher Hill and as he reised his nices to disphare is for heat birts in the last time he battle of Bunker Hill, and as he raised his piece to discharge it for the last time, he exclaimed, "Heaven direct the charge !"

The time and manner of his death were doubtless well known to his family; and a mistake here is hardly possible.

As no other engagement of the Revolution possesses so deep and peculiar an interest as that of Bunker Hill, so no other engagement is involved in so much obscurity, and has occasioned so much controversy. The American forces had not then been thoroughly organized; the muster-rolls are very imperfect; the orderly books were not well kept. Even the order book of General Ward notices the engagement in a very negligent, cursory manner. It has always been extremely difficult to ascertain who were there, and who were not. Exact order and discipline were not observed; men fought when and where they pleased. It has even been a question warmly debated, Who was the commander of the American troops on that memorable day? Whether in fact they had any commander?

It appears from a muster-roll, made out in the autumn of 1759, that Samuel Giles "never joined" the company into which he enlisted in April of that year; which was that of Capt John Nixon. [Ibid.

* We are left in the dark tonching the subsequent history of this family. It is not improbable that they removed to some place in the county of Berkshire. I find that Samuel Giles was in a company of militia from the county of Berkshire, who marched to reinforce Gen. Stark. The service continued from Oct. 11 to Oct. 28, 1781. [Mass. Archives.

I assign to this place, as its most probable location, the following piece of information :---

A few years ago, as my consin Lucy Giles, wife of my consin Eben Giles, [41] was returning from the West, and passing through Michigan, a blind lady, accompanied by a little girl, entered the car in which she was travelling. Lucy, observing the name GILES on this lady's bundle or other packet, and having her curiosity thus excited, inquired if that was her name. Receiving an affirmative answer, some further conversation followed. After Lucy's return, some correspondence ensued. At length a letter was received from this lady's brother, Mr. Orson Spicer Giles, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, who says that his grandfather, JOSEPH GILES, removed from Massachusetts to Marlborough, Vt., soon after the commencement [qu. Close ?] of the Revolutionary war; that he had three children, JOSEPH, LYDIA, and ROBERT; that Robert m. Diana Spicer, and moved to Franklin Co., in Mass., where he had Robert, in 1809, and Daphne Smilh, Oct. 3, 1812. This last is the blind lady above mentioned. She has been blind since she was fourteen years old; spent two years in the New York Institution for the Blind; has supported herself by writing and selling books. This was her business at the time when she and Lucy Giles met in the cars. In the autumn of 1857, she was married to Johu Jenkins, and has gone to reside in Minnesota.

Joseph Giles, her grandfather, was probably b. 1759, son of Samuel⁴ and Mary (Axtell) Giles.

She was a truly religious woman, and consecrated all her children to God in baptism.

His mother, widow of Eleazar Giles, was married to Benjamin Brooks of Townsend, Oct. 26, 1749, and took her three youngest children with her, viz., Ebenezer, James, and Joseph. Or, if they did not go then, they went shortly after, for we find them in Townsend in 1757, when Isaac Farrar of that town was appointed their guardian.

1759. Ebenezer Giles of Townsend was drafted out of Capt. John Stevens' company. Mass. Archives.

Ebenezer Giles spent the remainder of his days in Townsend. The time of his death does not appear. All his children, save John, removed to Pawlet, Vt.

I have found no conveyance of land to him.

He was a "yeoman," as all his brothers seem to have been. He came from Hopkinton to Townsend, with his mother, probably about 1750, and resided there till after the Revolutionary war, when he seems to have moved away. The place to which he moved is not ascertained.

Aug. 30, 1696, dau. of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Cutter) Hall of Medford. She d. in Medford, May 21, 1754. 2, Nov. 25, 1756, LYDIA ATWOOD of Woburn. She was probably widow of John Atwood.

Like his father, he was a "cordwainer," though, like him also, an owner and cultivator of the soil. He lived in Medford from the time of his marriage, 1718, until a little while before his father's death, in 1731, when he returned to "Salem Village," where he resided till the sale of his property in 1746. He then seems to have returned to Medford, where he resided, at least till his second marriage, in 1756. His last days appear to have been spent in Woburn, where he died Jan. 20, 1761, and was buried in the Old Cemetery in that place. [Gravestone.

He and his wife Susanna removed their relation from the church in Medford, and were "propounded for communion by letter of dismission from [said church to the church in Salem Village] May 2, 1731." [Records of Church in North Danvers.

He was administrator, 1731, on the estate of his father. [Essex Prob., 19:13.

1731, Nov. 15. John Giles of Salem, administrator on the estate of John Giles, late of Salem, deceased, for £32, conveys four acres of land in Salem to Benjamin Towne of Topsfield. [Essex Deeds, 60: 12.

1731, Nov. 16. Benjamin Towne of Topsfield, and Susanna his wife, for £33, convey the same four acres of land to John Giles of Salem, cordwainer. [Ibid, 60 : 33.

1732, Sept. 2. Benjamin Towne of Topsfield, and Susanna his wife, for $\pounds 48$, convey to John Giles of Salem, cordwainer, $3\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land in Salem, in two parcels; the first parcel being the two acres which John Giles, deceased, bought of Samuel Parris, July 2, 1700. [Ibid, 60:218.

1746, March 31. John Giles of Salem, cordwainer, and Susanna his wife, for £620, old tenor, convey to Solomon Putnam of Salem, blacksmith, my now dwelling-house and three acres of land in Salem, adjoining the same; also 13 acres of land in Salem. [Ibid, 88:99.

The sum here received was equivalent to about 370 silver dollars.

We think he did not reside in "Salem Village" after this. We find in Medford a record of his daughter's death, in 1750, of his wife's death, in 1754, and of his second marriage, in 1756.

ELEAZAR GILES,⁴ (Eleazar,³ John,² Edward,¹) eldest son of Eleazar³ and Lydia (Grover) Giles of Beverly; b. there, Oct. 18, 1704; m. 1730, REBECCA CHAPMAN of Beverly, published Oct. 25, 1730. Like his father, he was a "wheelwright;" like him, too, he spent his life, except the last two years, in Beverly.

1729-30, Feb. 14. Thomas Hardee, 3d, of Bradford, and Hannah his wife, for £171, sell to Eleazar Giles, Jun^r, wheelwright, a dwellinghouse and two acres of land in Beverly, bounded E. on land of Eleazar Giles, Senior, S. on the highway ,W. on the Training field. The Training field here doubtless means the common. [Essex Deeds, 52:146.

Eleazar Giles of Beverly was a private in a company of fifty men, including officers, enlisted in Beverly, 1744, for the Expedition against Louisburg. Mass. Archives.

According to Col. Hale's MS., (see p. 24, note,) he d. at Louisburg in 1746. The date is not more fully given.

*I have placed Jonathan and Martha in the above list because I find them recorded as of Danvers at the time of their marriage; and I can think of no other man who could be their father.

In taking leave of Danvers, I would say that the only two names of persons belonging to the Giles family found on the Town Records there, are stated to be the following :

Benjamin Giles m. 1810, to Huldah Southwick. No children.

Charles Giles m. 1842, -

I know not their line of descent, and put them here because I know not their proper place.

t He was a descendant of Nathaniel Wallis, who was born in Cornwall, Eng., in 1732; settled in Casco; was driven away by the Indians, 1675; came to Beverly, where he died, Oct. 18, 1709, a 77. See a subsequent page in this Memoir.

JOHN GILES,4 (Eleazar,3 John,2 Edward,1) brother of the preceding; b. in Beverly, April 24, 1711; m. MARTHA PITMAN of Beverly, Sept. 25, 1730.

Like his father and elder brother, he was a "wheelwright."

1742, Nov. 16. John Giles of Beverly, wheelwright, and Martha his wife, for £65 in Bills of the Old Tenor, convey land in Beverly, partly bounded on land lately belonging to his father Eleazar Giles, also a house. [Essex Deeds, 82 : 166.

The consideration for which this property was sold being so small, only a little over 50 dollars of "hard money"-worth then, it is true, four times its present worth-that we deem the seller to have been not in prosperous circumstances.

The children of John and Martha Giles were-

Sarah,⁵ b. June 18, 1731; d. in 1733. 163.

1631. A child,5 b. in 1733; d. in 1737.

1641. Sarah,⁵ b. Feb. 27, 1737-8; d. in 1737.

Col. Hale's MS. (see p. 24, note,) states that John Giles lost four children, one in 1733, and three in 1737. These three probably died of the throat-distemper, which committed great rayages about 1737 in New England, earrying off great numbers of children, even whole families; which was doubtless the fact in this instance.

SAMUEL GILES,⁴ (Eleazar,⁵ John,² Edward,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Beverly, Feb. 12, 1716-17; m. 1747, EUNICE HER-RICK, b. June, 1718; published, Nov. 23, 1747. She d. Dec. 20, 1799, a. 81 yrs. 6 mos.

He lived in Beverly; probably spent his days there.

He was a "joiner;" lived and died in Beverly.

1745-6, Feb. 18. Bartholomew Brown of Beverly, and Lydia his wife, for £50, convey a house, shop, and 12 poles of land adjoining, situated in Beverly, to James Giles, joyner, and Edmund Giles, cooper, both of Beverly, in equal proportions. [Essex Deeds, 87: 213.

This Bartholomew Brown was the husband of James Giles's sister Lydia.

1751, May 6. James Giles of Beverly, joiner, and Hannah his wife, convey to Edmund Giles of Beverly, cooper, his part of the purchase made Feb. 18, 1745–6. [Ibid, 96 : 138.

James Giles of Beverly was a private soldier in the king's service, in the company of Capt. Stephen Whipple of Ipswich, in the regiment of Col. Jonathan Bagley of Amesbury, from May 2 to Nov. 10, 1758; a regiment "raised by the Province for the reduction of Canada." He was in the Expedition against Canada and at Lake George. Wages $\pounds 1.16.0 = 6$ dollars per month. On the several rolls of Col. Bagley's regiment are borne the names of 1028 men. [Mass. Archives.

James Giles of Beverly, aged 36, enlisted in His Majesty's service, March 23, 1759, in a company commanded by Capt. Andrew Giddings. He continued in the service till Nov. 8, 1759, at £1.16 per month. [Ibid.

He was also a private in Capt. Giddings's Co. in Col. Bagley's regiment, in the king's service at Louisburg, when discharged, Jan. 12, 1761. [Ibid.

He died April 14, 1764.

Capt. EDMUND GILES,4 (Eleazar, 3 John,2 Edward,1) youngest son of Eleazar³ and Lydia (Grover) Giles of Beverly; b. there, Aug. 22, 1725; m. July 9, 1744, ESTHER ELLINGWOOD, b. Jan. 29, 1721-2, dau. of Ralph and Sarah Ellingwood, and grand dau. of Ralph Ellingwood, all of Beverly.*

He lived and died in Beverly. He was a "cooper," and also a "mariner," as appears by conveyances of land in which his name is mentioned. He was master of a schooner in 1768, owned by Jonathan Ropes. He bought land in Beverly in 1763 and 1769, also in 1774. [Essex Deeds, 114: 230, and 127: 18, and 134: 143.

He died, intestate, about 1786; as appears from a deed dated June 22, 1787, wherein Edmund Giles of Beverly, cooper, admr. of the estate of his father Edmund Giles of Beverly, cooper, deceased intestate, sells to George Cabot, Esquire, of Beverly, 2 acres 95 poles, of his said father's land. [Essex Deeds, 148:39.

The children of Edmund and Esther Giles, b. in Beverly, were-

* He was doubtless a grandson of Ralph Ellingwood, who embarked at London in the Truelove, Sept. 1635, as Ralph Ellwood, a. 28. He was of Salem, 1637, (the part now Beverly,) and was one of the founders of the church in Beverly, 1667. The name is also written Ellenwood.

SAMUEL GILES,⁵ (Samuel,⁴ James,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) supposed to be the son of Samuel Giles⁴ of Marblehead, by his wife Lydia Decoster; b. there about 1763; m. 1784, ELIZABETH REITH.

I think I do not err in inserting this individual in this place, with the parentage preceding, and the progeny following; yet the case is not wholly free from uncertainty. I find the records quoted below; and I think there is a very strong probability that the father of the family whose names follow, was the son of Samuel and Lydia (Decoster) Giles of Marblehead; though the records fail here. The residence and similarity of names favor the supposition. There are two Samuels and two Lydias, and an Alice, among the children. Compare this with the supposed grandfather's family.

Samuel Giles was a fisherman, and lived in Marblehead.

Jan. 15, 1791. Samuel Giles of Marblehead, mariner, buys a house. [Essex Deeds, 153 : 5.

May 28, 1794. Samuel Giles of Marblehead, fisherman, and Elizabeth his wife, for £19, sell to John Jarvis of Marblehead, fisherman, one moiety or half part of the northwest end of a certain dwellinghouse, situate at the southwest part of Training-field Hill. [Ibid, 157:180.

Feb. 25, 1802. Benjamin T. Reed and William Reed of Marblehead, merchants, for 180 dollars, convey land to Samuel Giles of Marblehead, fisherman. [Ibid, 169:230.

Capt. ELEAZAR GILES,⁵ (Eleazar,⁴ Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) eldest son of Eleazar⁴ and Elizabeth (Smith) Giles of Salem; b. in Salem, the part now S. Danvers, Oct. 1744; m. March 9, 1768, SARAH ELLENWOOD of Beverly. They were published Dec. 27, 1767.

He was a seafaring man; a shipmaster; a man of great personal courage, determination, and energy. At the age of twenty-four, he commanded a schooner belonging to Salem, and owned by John Prince and Miles Ward, Junior.*

In the war of the Revolution, we find him for a time in command of the private armed brig Saratoga of Beverly, belonging to John and Andrew Cabot. Thomas Giles of Salem, his brother, was a "lad" on board of the same. The owners, in a certificate, say that neither these nor the other fourteen men on board, whose names are given, have been, within the preceding three years, in the service of the United States. [Mass. Archives.] There is no date to the list of men, nor to the certificate; but the Saratoga was doubtless fitted out after the surrender of Burgoyne, Oct. 1777, which made the name so renowned.

"In 1776, Capt. Eleazar Giles sailed from Beverly in a brig of ten guns, and soon after fell in with a fleet of merchantmen, laden with stores, bound from Jamaica for London, four of which he succeeded in capturing, viz., the ship Lucia, 400 tons; brigs Alfred, Success, and another, name unknown, of 300 tons each." Whether the vessel in which he made this successful cruise was the brig Saratoga, we are not informed. Perhaps it was; and the small number of men on board, as given in the certificate of the Messrs. Cabots, may have been all that remained after manning the four captured vessels. If so, the success-vessel, of equal or superior force, and relying on the boasted bravery of a newly-shipped crew, he gave battle. Immediately upon the attack, a portion of his men proved by their conduct that his confidence in their bravery had been misplaced; and after a short, but sharp, engagement, in which he was wounded, he was compelled to surrender, and was carried into Halifax." [Stone's Hist. of Beverly, pp. 70, 71.

The battle with the Biritish vessel is represented by his daughter, who is still living, as having been very severe. His brothers Thomas and Benjamin were killed, and his brother-in-law Benjamin Ives was wounded. Capt. Giles himself was severely wounded in the leg, and was obliged to have the limb amputated, twice in one day, below and above the knee. This operation was performed at Halifax, by Dr. Jeffries, who was then sojourning at Halifax, since of Boston, assisted by the surgeon of the privateer, Dr. Elisha Whitney of Beverly. Mrs. Wright says the privateer in which her father made this unfortunate cruise, was the brig Saratoga of Beverly. A wooden leg supplied the place of the original member, and he lived thirty years afterwards.

After the war, he went as master and owner of a brig, which was built for him, and altered into a ship. It was called the Harriet, the name of his then youngest daughter; and was employed in the Liverpool trade. He was supposed to be the possessor of a large property; but dying abroad, his family were wronged out of it, and little or nothing came to them.

His home was in Beverly. He was a warm and active politician.

1777, March 31. Isaac Kimball of Beverly, cordwainer, and Abigail his wife, for £600, sell to Eleazar Giles of Beverly, mariner, a dwelling-house and 30 poles of land in Beverly. [Essex Deeds, 135:50.

1794, Oct. 31. Eleazar Giles of Beverly, mariner, buys land in Beverly. [Ibid, 163:84.

He adopted a young man of foreign birth, who afterwards bore the name of Mark Giles. This young man resided in Beverly; m. Judith Haskell; and d. there, leaving a son Eleazar, b. Jan. 10, 1826, and a dau. Martha. Eleazar Giles was Second Lieut. of the Beverly Light Infantry, Co. E. in the Eighth Regiment of Mass. Volunteers, (three months men.) in the campaign of 1861.

Capt. Eleazar Giles d. in Liverpool, in 1809. His funeral was attended by a large number of friends, and people in good standing. Rev. Elisha Williams, Baptist minister of Beverly, was administrator on his estate.

He followed the sea from childhood. He was with his brother-inlaw, Capt. Eleazar Giles, [91] in the privateer brig; was wounded in the severe encounter with the British vessel; was taken prisoner, and carried into Halifax. After the war, he was a shipmaster, and lived in Beverly. He was master of the Sirius, or Ceres ;- his grand-dau., Mrs. Meacom, who gave me the account, and who also gave me the subjoined account of the family, could not tell which of these names the vessel bore. The vessel was bound to Corunna in Spain, in 1790; but was lost, it was supposed, on George's Bank, with every one on board.

Samuel Giles of Salem, aged 14, stature 4 feet 11 inches, light complexion, was one of the erew of the private armed ship Jack, Nathan Brown, commander, in 1780. This vessel had 76 men, including officers. Mass. Archives.

I suppose that the quotation, just made, refers to him, but am not certain. If it does, it probably states his age much below the truth, as is sometimes done.

After the war, he resided in Salem, and followed the sea. He was mate of a brig. In 1803, he went to sea, and never returned.

THOMAS GILES,⁵ (Thomas,⁴ Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) eldest son of Thomas⁴ and Mary (Jennison) Giles of South Danvers; b. there, Oct. 6, 1754; m. June 22, 1780, MARY SOPER MARSHALL, b. in Boston, Aug. 9, 1756, dau. of Zerubbabel and Elizabeth (Soper) Mar-They were married by Rev. Stephen Lewis of Christ shall of Boston. Church, Boston. On the same day, and by the same elergyman, her mother was married to her fourth husband, Luke Howell.

Thomas Giles learned the trade of sailmaker, of Nieholas Lane, at his loft on Union Wharf, in Salem. He was reputed an excellent workman.

At the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, he took arms in behalf of his country, and continued in the military or naval service, with a slight intermission, which we shall notice in its place, until the very close of the war. Of this, the proof is abundant and wholly satisfactory; and it is believed to be a case which had few parallels in the history of that great contest. His widow often said, in the hearing of her children, that their father served his country through the whole of the Revolutionary war—five years in the army, and three in the navy. I remember to have heard this statement from my mother, when I was young.

The muster-rolls and pay-rolls of the Revolution, preserved in the Massachusetts Archives, are known to be very imperfect. There are scaree any, for the year 1776; while those for 1775 have many deficiencies. Those for 1777, and the following years, are, to a great extent, wanting; and, indeed, were it not for the "Continental Army Book," the names of the brave soldiers from the Bay State, during three-fourths of that great struggle, would be wholly unknown. The pay-rolls of the frigate Alliance, and of many other ships of war, are not to be found. It is supposed that all these missing rolls are in the War office at Washington. For purposes of genealogical investigation, they might as well be at the bottom of the Red Sea. But notwithstanding these deficiencies, the State Archives furnish ample proof of what has been asserted of the revolutionary services of our ancestor.

I now quote the following certificate :---

"COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Secretary's Office, Boston, Nov. 21, 1860.

"I hereby certify, that from an examination of the books and documents relating to military services in the war of the Revolution, which remain in this department, it appears that the name of Thomas Giles is borne on the return of Capt. Timothy Barnard's company, in Col. Moses Little's regiment of eight months' service. Name borne on coat roll, dated in camp, Dec. 11, 1775, as private from Amesbury.

"Also, on Continental army books, in Col. Calvin Smith's regiment, Capt. [Daniel] Pillsbury's company, from May 3, 1777, to May 3, 1780, 36 months, as private from Newburyport.

"Also, on roll of officers and marines on board ship Mars, Capt. Simeon Sampson, commander, from June 8, 1780, to March 12, 1781, nine months and four days, as sailmaker.

"In testimony whereof, I have hereunto affixed the seal of the Commonwealth, the date above written.

(Signed) OLIVER WARNER, Secretary of the Commonwealth."

It appears from the muster-roll, that Thomas Giles enlisted May 15, 1775, in Capt. Timothy Barnard's company, of Little's regiment. Mr. Frothingham, in his History of the Siege of Boston, informs us that only Perkins's, Wade's, and Warner's companies, of Little's regiment, were in the battle of Bunker Hill; though Lunt's company of sixty men were in the fight near its close. It appears, therefore, that Thomas Giles' was not present in that memorable encounter; and I have never heard that he was present; though I have shown that his father was there, and died the next day. Little's regiment was from Ipswich, Newbury, and the vicinity.

Mrs. Beach, of Gloversville, N. Y., niece to Thomas Giles, [319] has in her possession a copy of Watts' Psalms and Hymns, on the fly-leaf of which is the following: "Thomas Giles-His Book, 1776-Bought of Mr. John Murey [Murray] in campt on Prospect hill ye 9th of Jany." Here is full proof of his being in the army at the beginning of 1776.

The lack of army rolls for 1776 has already been noticed. There is no reason, however, to doubt that Thomas Giles continued in the service through the whole of that year, and the year following.

The "Continental Army Book" is a kind of ledger, or account book, in which the individual soldiers are credited with their services, and charged with the amounts received by them, respectively. For the purpose of showing how the soldiers of the Revolution were dealt with, 1 will here quote the account with Thomas Giles.

^{*} Thomas Gites is not said to belong to Newburyport, but for that town me enlisted. See "Loose Rolls," in the Mass. Archives. Lieut. Col. Smith belonged to Newburyport. See Coffin's Hist, of Newbury. \ddagger This means that one Spanish milled dollar was worth $32\frac{1}{2}$ of the "current money" of the day. In fact, at the date of the certificate, May 25, 1780, it was worth fifty or more of that currency; and within a year afterwards, the currency sunk to a hundred for one !

From the above account, it appears-

That Thomas Giles enlisted, May 3, 1777, in the thirtcenth Massachusetts regiment, for three years, and faithfully served out the whole time.

That the bounty for enlisting, which was to be £30, or 100 dollars, was NOT PAID, but comes into the foregoing account as a mere makeweight, and in fact was NEVER PAID.

That he was to receive 40 shillings, or $6.66, a month, for his services.

That he was actually paid only a small part of this small stipend; the government being in debt to him, at the close of the war, $\pounds 61.7.7$, out of $\pounds 72$, for his three years' service in the army, 1777-1780.

It is not likely that he was paid in any better style for the remaining two years of his service in the army, 1775–1777, and his three years' service in the navy.

There is reason to think that, at the close of the war, the United States were in debt to him not far from five hundred dollars. THIS DEBT HAS NEVER BEEN PAID. Let the reader take his pen and calculate what this sum, with eighty years' interest, would amount to at this time !

The following is a copy of his discharge, now in the hands of his son Thomas :---

"Thomas Giles, a soldier in the Thirteenth Massachusetts regiment, having served three years, the time for which he enlisted, as a good soldier, is hereby discharged from the service.

CALVIN SMITH, Lt. Col. Com^{dt}.

Highlands, 2 May, 1780."

On the foregoing discharge, is the following endorsement :---

"This is to certify, that Thomas Giles has returned in his arms and accoutrements. N. GREEN, Q. M.

May 2, 1780."

Thomas Giles, after his honorable discharge from the army, returned to Boston, which, at this time, he seems to have considered his home. His father was dead, and the family was probably broken up. In the following month, as we have seen, he was married to a native of that city. But before the nuptials, and, as it would appear, on the very day when his "intention of marriage" was signified to the town clerk, he shipped as sailmaker of the armed ship Mars, in the service of the State of Massachusetts, under the command of that brave officer, Capt. Simeon Sampson of Kingston.*

* Capt. Simeon Sampson was born in Kingston, Mass., in the year 1736. He was a descendant of Miles Standish and of John Alden. At the commencement

The short interval of five weeks, between his discharge from the army and his enlistment on board the Mars, is, I believe, the only interval between his enlistment, May 15, 1775, in Little's regiment, and his dis harge from the frigate Alliance, at the end of the war.

He was sailmaker of the ship Mars, from June 8, 1780, to March 12, 1781, as already stated. His wages were £33.15 per month. [Mass. Archives.

The currency being then greatly depreciated, probably to the low rate of sixty for one, the wages allowed did not exceed two dollars per month.

A foot note contains a "Power of Attorney," which the subject of this article executed and gave to his wife, before the ship sailed on her cruise.*

The Mars sailed from Boston in the latter part of July, 1780, probably with dispatches for France. On the 12th of March, 1781, Thomas Giles was transferred from this ship to the Continental frigate ALLIANCE. the "crack ship" of the American Revolution, then lying in the port of L'Orient, in France, under the command of that meritorious officer, Capt. John Barry.[†] He was sail-maker of the Alliance, as he had been of the Mars.

of the Revolutionary war, the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts appointed him their first naval captain. He immediately took command of the brig Independence, belonging to the Colony, which was built at Kingston under his direction. In this vessel he was eminently successful, but was taken by the British in the autumn of 1776. After his return from captivity, he was appointed to the command of the brig Hazard, belonging to the State, and took several prizes. In 1779, he commanded the Continental packet-ship Congress, and carried despatches to France; returning in the winter of 1780. Soon after, he was promoted to the command of bedning in the winter of most. Boost and, it is pointed to be contained of the Mars, a larger ship, likewise belonging to the State; and in this vessel he was employed in the most responsible trust, in carrying despatches, and in one ernise carried one of our ministers to Europe. The British flag-ship Trial was captured by him while in the Mars. At the close of the war, he retired, like most of the Winn which are a start in the start of the start of the start, in the base of the faithful servants of our country, with a very scanty estate, and a numerous family dependent on him for support. He died at Plympton, to which place he removed in 1788, of apoplexy, June 22, 1789, æ. 53. His descendants reside in Western New York. [Thacher's History of Plymouth.]

t The frigate Alliance, of thirty-two guns, built at Salisbury, on the Merrimae, and so named in honor of the alliance with France, was fitted out in 1778, by order of Congress, and became the favorite ship of the Americans. She filled a space in the public mind, like that which has more recently been occupied by the Constitution. She was a beautiful and an exceedingly fast-sailing ship. It is said that in 1782, when chased by a two-decker of the enemy, she ran fifteen knots an hour by the log, with the wind a beam, in making her escape. She sailed for France, Jan. 11, 1779, under the command of Capt. Landais, a Frenchman, having Lafayette on board as passenger. The command was given to a French officer, in compliment to the new He was in the Alliance, May 28, 1781, when she had that severe encounter with two English armed ships, which is related in the note at the foot of this page. He continued in her till the war was over, and was in her when she brought from France the Treaty of Peace.

He was doubtless in many other battles, by land as well as by sea; he encountered many dangers, and suffered many hardships, the memory of which has vanished from the earth. Would that we could trace all his experience during those eight long years! But no memorial now remains of all those exposures and sufferings.

He was sick once, I presume dangerously sick, when he was at Havana in the Alliance. The details are unknown.

It is painful to reflect that for all these services, perils, and hardships, he received, as we may say, nothing at all by way of recompense. Nor have his family ever received a dime by way of pension or otherwise. The matter was brought to the notice of Congress, a few years ago, and some relief asked for his family. The justice of the claim was fully acknowledged. The case was seen to be peculiar. A bill was reported, by a committee, granting the desired relief; but through the opposition of some of the Southern members, ever ready to manifest their hatred of the North, the bill failed of a majority in that body.

allies of the republic. She arrived at Brest, Feb. 6. Soon after, the Alliance was one of the squadron which left L'Orient, under the command of the celebrated John Paul Jones, to cruise on the coast of Scotland. The squadron consisted of the Duras, Alliance, Pallas, Vengeance brig, and Cerf cutter. The Duras was a large old Indianan; her name was now changed to Bon Homme Richard, in compliment to Doctor Franklin. The Pallas had been a merchantman. The Vengeance was a small brig. The Duras, Pallas, and Vengeance were French vessels, expressly bonght for this expedition, and for this particular service, which was to furnish employment for that daring officer, John Paul Jones, on the British coasts. Few Americans were on board: the crews being a motley collection from all the maritime nations.

The squadron sailed June 19, 1779, and returned about the last of the same month. It again departed from L'Orient, Aug. 14. It sailed around Scotland; and, on the 23d of September, the British frigate Serapis, of far superior force, was taken by Paul Jones, in the Bon Homme Richard, after a most prolonged and desperate contest. The corvette Countess of Scarborough, the consort of the Serapis, was also taken, by the Pallas, at the same time. Through the gross misconduct of Landais, who refused to obey the orders of the commodore, and even fired into his vessel while engaged in a struggle terrible beyond almost all precedent, the Alliance failed of rendering any aid in this memorable conflict. As may be supposed, the villainous Frenchman was soon dismissed from the service.

At the close of 1780, Capt. John Barry was appointed to the command of the Alliance, and sailed from Boston early in February, 1781, with Col. John Laurens as passenger for France. On the way, she captured the privateer Alert. After landing Col. Laurens at L'Orient, she sailed again in March on a cruise, having in company the ship Marquis de la Fayette, of 40 guns, bound to America with stores. April 2, she captured two Guernsey privateers, one the Mars, of 26 guns and 112 men; the other the Minerva, of 10 guns and 55 men. She took them without resistance. After parting company with her consort, the Alliance had a severe action with the sloop-of-war Atalanta, of 16 guns and 130 men, and brig-of-war Trepassy, of 14 guns and 80 men. This was on the 28th of May, 1781. There was no wind, and the sea was perfectly smooth. The Alliance was becalmed, and hay like a log in the water. The other vessels got out their sweeps, and selected their positions at will. The cannon was well served on both sides. At length the enrign of the Alliance was shot away; and the people of the hostile ships quitted their guns and gave three cheers for victory. Capt. Barry was wounded, and carried below. The Lieutenant left in command on deck, seeing no chance of success, went below and asked the Captain if they should surrender. The noble man replied, "No1 if the After the conclusion of the war, Thomas Giles returned to the bosom of his family, and took up his residence in Boston, which was his wife's native place. Here his first three children were born. He remained in that metropolis till April, 1786, when he removed to Sandy Bay,* then a Precinet in Gloucester, but incorporated Feb. 27, 1840, as a distinct town by the name of Rockport. He continued to work at his trade, that of a sailmaker,—being an approved workman,—till his decease, which occurred Nov. 18, 1795, in the following manner:—He went to a well, to get a pail of water' for his family. Letting down his pail with a pole, which was then a common method, he lost the pail, and descended into the well to recover it. He obtained it, and had got part of the ship cannot be fought without mc, I'll be carried on deck again." This reply so inspirited the men, that they fought with new courage. A light breeze spiringing up, the Allianee obtained a temporary advantage : and ponring a broadside into her antagonists, she compelled them both to haul down their colors. The enemy's ships were much cut up, and lost 41 men in killed and wounded. The Allianee had 11 killed and 21 wonded.

In 1782, Capt. Barry in the Alliance was actively employed, but there were no memorable engagements resulting in captures. Among other services, the Alliance was sent to Havana for specie. Shorty after leaving port, she was chased by a squadron of English frigates; one of which, the Sibyl, she engaged with very heavy loss on the part of the enemy. The Sibyl had, it is said, 37 killed and 50 wounded, while the Alliance had only 3 killed and 11 wounded. The other English ships coming up, the Alliance hauled off.

At the close of the war, there remained only two frigates in the American marine, the Alliance and the Hagne. Not long after, the Alliance was sold, and converted into an Indiaman. [Cooper's Naval History. Lossing's Field-book of the Revolution.

Mrs. Sarah Choate of Rockport, b. 1777, dau. of Benj. Soper Marshall, and niece of the wife of Thomas Giles, said in 1854, "I remember, perfectly well, to have heard my nucle say, that he was on board of the frigate Alliance when she fought the two ships; that the Captain was wonnded, and carried below, much covered with blood; that, not long after, the Lientenant went below, and asked the Captain if they should surrender; to which he answered, 'No! if the ship can'tbe fought without me, I'll be carried on deek again." This same account she had given in former years.

The news of peace between the United States and Great Britain was first received in Boston, April 23, 1783. The Preliminary Treaty was signed at Paris, Nov. 30, 1782; but as late as Jan. 21, 1783, it was known merely as a rumor in the English capital. The first publication of what was supposed to be the terms of a Treaty of Peace was in a Postscript of the London papers, Jan. 28, 1783. The king's proclamation was first published, Feb. 15, 1783. So reluctant were the king and the ministry to acknowledge the independence of the United States. "I was," sail the king to John Adams, on the first audience of the latter, "I was the last man in my dominions to consent to the independence of your country." It is well known that the negotiation was tedious and intricate, and that the patience and firmness of the American plenipotentiaries, Adams, Franklin, Jay, and Lanrens, were severely tried.

The frigete Alliance brought this treaty to Boston, where she arrived as above. Thomas Giles was in her at the time. Old Mr. Nathaniel Foster, a fisherman, of Rockport, told my uncle, Thomas Giles, in 1813, that he well remembered being at anchor, in a fishing vessel from that place, near Thatcher's Island Light, on a foggy morning in April, 1783, when the Alliance hove in sight, close in with them in the direction of the Salvages, bound for Boston. The frigate spoke with them, inquired their bearings, and said they had on board the Treaty of Peace. "And your father," added the old man, "was in her. I knew him well."

* Is "Sandy Bay" a corruption of Tragabigsanda, the name of the Turkish lady to whom Capt. John Smith owed his escape from slavery among the Tartars, and whom he remembered when he gave that emphonions name to Cape Anne? Prince Charles (afterwards king Charles I.) changed the name to that of his mother, Anne of Denmark.

way up, when his foot slipped, he fell into the well, and no assistance being near, he was drowned. Thus did the man, who had braved death in every form, on the field of battle and on the man-of-war's deck, come to his end in an unthought-of way. He was but 41 when he died; and as his children were all young at the time,-the eldest at home being but eleven years old,-this may account for the fact that so few of the details of his personal history, though an eventful one, are known.

He left little or no property; his best years having been given, without recompense, to the service of his country. His widow found herself left in straitened circumstances. She had six young children, beside the eldest, who was with a friend in Boston. She had no earthly friends on whom to rely; and no earthly resources, but her own energy and resolution. But her courage did not fail. She opened a little shop, and, by the blessing of God on her endeavors, she was enabled to keep her children together, to provide for them decently, and to train them up for respectability and usefulness. She lived to see them all, except one who died young, comfortably settled around her. She built a house with the avails of her industry and economy; and lived in comfort, though not in affluence. She died of jaundice, Sept. 27, 1822, a. 66.

MARY GILES,⁵ (Thomas,⁴ Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) eldest dau. of Thomas⁴ and Mary (Jennison) Giles of South Danvers; bap. Feb. 1, 1756; m. SOLOMON STEVENS.

From a deed, which is quoted on p. 31, it appears that she was still a "spinster," in April, 1793, being then 37 years of age. When her marriage took place, I have not been able to learn. I suppose it was not till a number of years afterward. Her uncle, Dr. William Jennison, who d. May 8, 1798, gave her ten dollars in his will. At the date of the will, she was still unmarried; but the date of the will I know not.

Mr. Stevens, her husband, had some peculiarities; he has been described as "a queer specimen of humanity." He owned a farm in Springfield, Windsor County, Vermont. In April, 1816, they removed to Genesee County, N.Y.; my informant thinks, to LeRoy. In 1819, they removed to Indiana. She became deranged in the winter of 1815-16, or not long before, and seems never to have fully recovered. She died many years ago, having had no children.

Deacon SAMUEL GILES,^b (Thomas,⁴ Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) second son of Thomas⁴ and Mary (Jennison) Giles; b. in South Danvers, April 6, 1757; m. Jan. 8, 1783, in Springfield, Vt., LAURANA HOLMES, b. in Pembroke, Mass., Jan. 17, 1762, dau. of Hezekiah and Mercy (Bisbee) Holmes of that place.*

At the age of eight years he left home, and seems never to have returned to reside with his parents. Ile lived with John Jacobs of Sutton, in the section of that town which is now Millbury, from the age of eight to that of fourteen. I account for his going so far from home, by the consideration that his mother's brother, Dr. William Jennison, lived in

* Mercy Bisbee was the dau. of John Bisbee by his wife Abiah Bonney. They were of Plymouth County, the Old Colony. Undoubted tradition reports that Mercy's grandmother once walked fifteen miles on snow-shoes, to visit her daughter, and arrived just at the time when her presence was most needful. Whether it was at Mercy's birth does not appear; but it was certainly an errand of Mercy.

Hezekiah Holmes was a blacksmith, and very ingenious at his trade. He was a man of rohust health, and of great physical power. He also possessed a vigorous understanding and a sound judgment, and sometimes amused himself with writing poetry. A poetic paraphrase by him, of the 137th Psalm, is still remembered. He was a selectrano of Pembroke, and held other town offices. If ewas an officer in the "Old French War," and—a little less than two years—in the war of the Revo-Intion. About the year 1773, he removed with his family to Springfield, Vt. He afterwards removed to Kingsborough, N. Y., where he spent his remaining years.

Hezekiah Holmes of Pembroke was Lient. in His Majesty's service, in the company under the command of Capt. John Loring, in the expedition against Crown Point, from Feb. 18 to Oct. 27, 1754.

Hezekiah Hoimes of Pembroke was First Lieut. in His Majesty's service, in a Company of Foot, under the command of Capt. Abel Keen, in the regiment of Col. Thomas Doty, raised by the Province for the reduction of Canada, from March 13 to Nov. 25, 1758, at £5 per month. [Mass. Archives.

Hezekiah Holmes also had a son Orsamus, the only son who lived to manhood, who was a soldier three or four years in the Revolutionary war. Orsamus Holmes has given the following account of his services and hardships, in a statement now before me. Though not strictly belonging to this volume, I here transcribe it, as it will serve to convey a definite impression of the hardships endured by the soldiers of the Revolution.

"In May, 1775, being then a resident in Pittsfield, Mass., and in the seventeenth year of my age, I enlisted as a private in a company of Provincial troops, com-nanded by Capt. Lusk, in Col. Easton's regiment. This regiment soon after joined General Montgomery's army at Crown Point. The army moved down Lake Champlain to St. John's, where was a British fort and garrison. After demanding a surrender and receiving a refusal, Gcn. Montgomery commenced a siege. In this siege very severe hardships were endured by our troops. Our encampment was a mile and a half from the fortress, on low clayey ground, which was inundated by a rain in the month of September, which continued a week with scarce any intermission. To keep out of the muddy water, the soldiers were obliged to set crotches in the ground, put poles on them, and cover them with small brush, on which they slept in their tents. Many were not careful of their health, and were attacked with billous complaints. Some were discharged, some sent home on furlongh, and some died in camp. Our regiment was so reduced that, for a considerable time, one com-pany had only one private fit for duty. When we were called on the main guard, we had no shelter, but were obliged to stand or sit in the rain; and frequently were called on fatigue duty to haul cannon through the mud, like a team of horses or oxen. About the first of November, our reduced regiment, now consisting of only about two hundred rank and file, were sent to Sorel, where Lake Champlain dis-charges its surplus waters, through the river Sorel into the St. Lawrence. On our way, our numbers were augmented by a few Canadian volunteers. About the time of our arrival at Sorel, the British garrison at Montreal evacuated that place, taking passage in eleven sail of vessels, deeply laden with clothing and military stores, Douglas, an adjoining town. Several Danvers people had removed to Sutton not long before; and perhaps Jacobs was one of them. At fourteen, Samuel Giles was apprenticed to Daniel Porter, a tanner and currier, in Topsfield, a town contiguous to Danvers. He lived with him till he enlisted in the army.

In his twentieth year, he followed the example of his elder brother Thomas, and entered the military service of his country. He seems to and descended the St. Lawrence. Our regiment succeeded in capturing the whole fleet, a short distance above the mouth of the Sorel river; thus procuring a welcome and much needed supply for our suffering army.

"After the surrender of St. John's, the army of Montgomery descended the St. Lawrence to the neighborhood of Quebec. Before we left Sorel, my first enlistment expired. I then enlisted under Capt. Babcock, in Major Brown's detachment. Not long after our arrival at Quebec, many of our officers and soldiers were attacked with the small-pox, of which some died. The army suffered greatly by the inclemency of the weather, in that cold, snowy region. On the night of December 31, 1775, an attempt was made to take the city by assanlt. Gen. Montgomery fell, and with him his aid, [Capt. Macpherson,] and also Capt. Cheeseman, which caused the attempt to fail. On the 1st of May, my second enlistment expired; and I again enlisted in Capt. Wheeler's company, in the regiment of Col. Porter. May 6, our army left Quebec, and continued their retreat till they reached Ticonderoga. In Nov., 1776, the brigade, to which I belonged, was called to the assistance of the army of Washington, and marched to Morristown, N. J. On the 31st of Dec. my enlistiment again expired, and I returned home to my father in [Springfield] Vermont, having been absent almost three years. When Burgoyne's army appeared before Ticonderoga, JJuly 1, 1777,] the militia of Vermont were called for. I went for one. The militia arrived just in time for a precipitate flight before the enemy. I next enlisted nuder Capt. Allen, in a regiment commanded by Col. Herrick, denominated the Green Mountain Corps. Our duty was constant scouting in the woods, and other lurking-places of the enemy.

"On or about the 6th of November, 1777, Čapt. Allen called for volunteers to pursue the British, who were evacuating Ticonderoga and Crown Point; and a few militia joined us. On the night of Nov. 12, a militia-man and myself, from venturing too far, were taken prisoners by the British. We were conveyed to St. John's; and thence to Montreal and Quebec. On the 26th July, 1778, about ten o'clock at night, myself and three others made our escape from on board a prisonship, leaving about 35 of our fellow-sufferers behind. The ship's watch and two sentinels were on deck at the time. We crossed the St. Lawrence in the ship's boat, and entered the woods without guide or compass. We travelled sEVENTEN DAYS in that dreary region. The first seven days we subsisted on four hard biscuits and about eight ounces of salt pork a day. The remaining ten days we lived principally on the inner bark of the white pine! On the seventeenth day, we were taken by the Indians, and carried to Montreal. But on the night of the 18th of September, 1778, three of us escaped again by leaping from the windows of the second story of the Provost prison, which had a guard of eighteen men, three of whom gnarded the prison at the time. We then made for the gate of the prisonyard, where we were attacked by the sentinel, and one of us slightly wounded. After opening the gate, we ran for the walls of the city, leaped from them, and reached the St. Lawrence about two miles below the city, where we found a caroe without paddles. By the aid of two stakes from a fence, we succeeded in crossing the river, though it was four miles wide, in safety. Sixteen miles from the St. Lawrence, we came to the Chamblee river, which we crossed in a canoe on the second night. After much fatigue, encountering many difficulties and dangers, crossing rivers, and being pursued by Indians, whose grasp we twice eluded by stratagem, on the fourteenth day we reached a frontier settlement at Monekton, Vermont.

"Let Americans remember their obligations of gratitude to God for our deliverance, and forget not the fathers of the Revolution who were the instruments in procuring our independence."

Orsamus Holmes was a fine singer. When a prisoner, he would often provoke the British soldiers by singing patriotic songs. have enlisted at first for six months. March 1, 1777, he enlisted for three years. After his discharge in 1780, he enlisted again, for one year ; and, at a subsequent time, for three months. His daughter, Mrs. Beach, often heard him say, that he served in the Revolutionary war nearly five years.

From the "Continental Army Book," it appears that Samuel Giles, corporal, of Topsfield, enlisted March 1, 1777, for three years, in Capt. Page's company, in the Eleventh Massachusetts Regiment. That regiment was then commanded by Col. Ebenezer Francis of Beverly. It was raised by Col. Francis a few weeks before. At the time of Samuel Giles's enlistment, it was stationed at Ticonderoga. After the death of Col. Francis, it was commanded by Col. Benjamin Tupper, then of Chesterfield, but a native of Sharon, near Boston, (b. 1738,) and after the war one of the two leaders (the other was Gen. Rufus Putnam) of the party which commenced the settlement of Ohio, and of the Great Northwest, at Marietta, in 1788. He d. June, 1792.

In the account, which follows his name in the "Army Book," Samuel Giles is charged with sundry items, like those which appear in the account with his brother Thomas, (for which see p. 50,) and credited in the same way. The "Town Bounty" from Top-field, March 1, 1777, was £14.13, and its value is set down at £14.4. This Bounty, as in the other case, is charged Dec. 31, 1779, as a part of his regular pay,

Who was the father of William Ilolmes of Pembroke ?

We do not know. But there is a strong probability that he [William] was a grandson of Rev. Jons Hotakes of Duxbury. This worthy man is supposed to have been the eldest son of Licut. William Holmes, who was of Plymonth in 1634, and of Scituate, 1643.

Rev. John Holmes was ordained, 1659, pastor of the Church in Duxbury; being the second minister of the second church in the Plymouth Colony. He was much respected, and was endeared to his people by the humility and meckness of his character. His name is not found in the list of graduates of Harvard College, but it is known that he was an under-graduate at Cambridge in 1658. Rev. Ralph Partridge, the first minister of Duxbury, who was settled there in 1637, died a few days before the probate of his will, which was May 4, 1658; and Mr. Holmes may have been desired immediately to fill his place, being doubtless well known to the people and then in the second account, March 1, 1780, he is credited with it. His wages at the close of his three years' service, at forty-four shillings (= $7.33) per month, amounted to £79.4; of which there was a balance due him of £64.17.6.

The pedigree of Laurana Holmes, wife of Dea. Samuel Giles, has not been fully made ont. Her father, Hezekiah Holmes, was the son of William and Bathsheba Holmes of Pembroke. But the name of the father of William Holmes has not been ascertained.

Samuel Giles had his full share of perils, exposures, and hardships, We know what they were, for we have heard of them from his own lips. He was with Washington at the crossing of the Delaware, and the consequent battle of Trenton, Dec. 25, 1776. The following March, he joined the Eleventh regiment at Ticonderoga, and shared in the disasters and sufferings, as well as in the triumphs, of that memorable campaign. Burgoyne having invested that fortress, on the first day of July, 1777, and having occupied Sugar Hill, an eminence which had been believed to be inaccessible, and which perfectly commanded the American defences, Gen. St. Clair found himself under the necessity of abandoning the place, which was done on the sixth of that month. His force amounted to 3000 men; and the evacuation of a stronghold like Ticonderoga, which was supposed to be impregnable, sent a thrill of astonishment and dismay through all the Northern States. The rearguard of St. Clair's retreating army, consisting of the regiments of Hale, Francis, and Warner, was overtaken, a few minutes after seven o'clock on the morning of July 7, at Hubbardton, Vt., by a detachment of Burgoyne's army, consisting of light infantry and grenadiers, under

The children of Rev. John Holmes, so far as known to us, were Joseph, Mary, Isaac. But there may have been others; as the records are known to be deficient. I have seen a MS. Genealogy of the descendants of Rev. John Holmes,—made out by his descendant, Mr. David W. Holmes, now of Cambridge,—which does not profess to be full or complete; and while I do not there find any of the Holmes family of Pembroke,—the genealogy being chiefly compiled from the Kingston records,—the similarity of names is such that I cannot doubt that the Pembroke Holmes family were descended from the Duxbury minister; e. g., I find Ephraim, Leanuel, and Laurana, which are unusual names, in both families. Pembroke joins Kingston and Duxbury; also Halifax.

Ephruin Holmes of Ilalifax is known to have been a brother of Hezekiah; and he is believed to have had a brother John. But neither of these appear on the Pembroke records.

It may he well to note here that Hon. John Holmes⁶ of Alfred, Me., was of this family. ILe was son of Melatial,⁵ b. in Kingston, March 30, 1745, who m. Hale's regiment, without waiting for the shock of battle, made a hasty and inglorious re-The two remaining regiments, numbering only about 700 men, treat. sustained the attack with so much resolution and gallantry, that the British grenadiers at first broke and gave way. They soon formed again, however, and used their bayonets (a weapon in which the other party were deficient) with so much effect, that the Americans were thrown into confusion, which was increased by the arrival of the Brunswickers at the critical instant, who were immediately led into action. The conflict, which lasted an hour and a half, (from 71 to 83 o'clock, A. M.) was one of the most sanguinary, for the numbers engaged, that occurred during the war. Col. Francis* was killed, with nearly 200 of his men.[‡] The entire loss of the Americans, in killed, wounded, and prisoners, was 324. The royal troops, including British and German, had 183 killed and wounded. The Americans, overpowered by greatly superior numbers, fled on all sides; Hale, who had sought safety by flight, was not long after overtaken, and compelled to surrender.

Samuel Giles spoke of being in this terrible fray, and of the fall of Francis and many of his men, when the compiler visited him, in May, 1823.

In October, 1777, he was present at the surrender of Burgoyne, at Saratoga, an event which filled the whole country with joy and hope.

The ensuing winter, 1777–8, he spent in the camp at Valley Forge, on the Schuylkill, fifteen miles from Philadelphia, under Washington. He often spoke of the hardships and distresses of that dreadful season. Before the battle of Hubbardton, he had a good supply of clothing; but in the utter rout of that occasion, or in the hot pursuit that followed, he was compelled to leave it by the way-side; and with only the remnants of his summer apparel, he spent that severe winter at Valley Forge; where, also, he had the small-pox. The suffering was general and extreme throughout the camp. The only shelter for the soldiers were rude huts. Provisions nearly failed. There was a great want of clothing. Many, for lack of shoes, went barefoot on the frozen ground. Few had blankets for the night. Nearly three thousand, it is stated, were at one time incapable of bearing arms.

He was in the battle of Monmouth, Sunday, June 28, 1778, and frequently spoke of his sufferings at that time from the extremely hot weather.

He had many narrow escapes from death. At Hubbardton, a ball

^{*} Col. Ebenezer Francis, b. in Medford, Dec. 22, 1744, removed to Beverlv, 1764. His only son Ebenezer, b. Oct. 15, 1775, was for many years a merchant of Boston, and President of the Suffok Bark, where he originated the well-known "Suffok Bark System," which, during more than forty years, assured to New England a sound paper currency, based on the speedy exchange of bank bills for specie or its equivalent, at the counter of the Suffok Bark; all the banks, out of Boston, which were parties to the arrangement, (and nearly all were,) being obliged to keep a constant deposit of five thousand dollars for that purpose in said institution. He died in Boston, Sept. 21, 1858, leaving the largest estate ever accumulated in New England. He came to Boston in Jan. 1787, a poor boy, and died in the possession of a property of from 3½ to 4 millions of dollars. See Geneal. Reg., Vol. XIII, p. 88. ‡ For an interesting account of Col. Francis and the battle, see Stone's History of cut his coat—probably a thin, summer coat—across his shoulders. At another time, his musket was broken in his hand by a ball. Once, as he was standing in the door of a house, by the side of another man, looking at a company who were performing military exercises before the house, the man by his side was shot dead by one of the company, who had neglected to draw the ball from the cartridge. On various other occasions he barely avoided death. He retained a vivid remembrance of the scenes of the Revolution, and recounted them, with much animation, till the close of life. He was much affected with a sense of the goodness of God in his preservation, so that he perished not in his sins.

Samuel Giles was never paid for his five years' Revolutionary services. He was furnished with an army certificate, which he parted with for a few shillings, despairing of ever getting more for it. The person to whom he sold it, and who "came around, picking up such things," obtained for it a considerable sum of money.

When the first Act of Congress was passed, providing for the payment of pensions to Revolutionary soldiers, he applied for a pension, received a certificate, and for about two years drew the money. A new Act was then passed, requiring pensioners to make oath that they were destitute of property, which he could not conscientiously do. After this, an Act was passed, giving pensions to all surviving Revolutionary soldiers, without regard to the amount of their property. Under this Act, he received a pension during the remainder of his life. After his death, his widow became entitled, under still another Act, to a pension, which she received during her remaining days.

After leaving the army, 1782, he took up his residence in the County of Windsor, Vermont, then a new and inviting region; where he was married in 1783, as before related. He resided for some time in Springfield, and after that in Weathersfield, in that County and State, until March, 1792, when he settled permanently in Kingsborough, then a section of the large township of Johnstown, N. Y., about forty-five miles N. W. from Albany, and in the "Mohawk country." In this township was the elegant seat of General Sir William Johnson, who was, under the crown, Superintendent of Indian Affairs in the "Old French War," and exercised an unbounded influence over the Six Nations.* Here Saturel Giles underwent all the privations and hardships of a new settlement; and had the satisfaction, at length, of seeing the wilderness around bud and blossom as the rose.

Though not at the time regarding himself as a partaker of inward religion, he assisted in erecting a house for public worship, and in sustaining the ministry of the gospel. He was among the early subjects of the first revival in that place in 1803; a place which has since been repeatedly and eminently favored with the effusions of the Divine

^{*} He conducted an expedition against Crown Point, and signally defeated the French, under Baron Dieskan, in 1755, at the battle of Lake George. He ided in 1774. His son, Sir John Johnson, succeeded in part to his influence over the Indians, and is infamous for the part he acted, along with his savage allies, in the frontier massacres of 1778. Those incarnate fiends, John and Walter Butler, who, with more than Indian ferocity, led the combined forces of the tories and savages in the attacks made on Wyoming and Cherry Valley, in July and November, 1778, and exercised the dismal barbarities there witnessed, lived at Caghnewaga, four miles Southeasterly from the village of Johnstown, on the same side of the Mohawk River.

Spirit. He became a member of the Congregational Church there in April, 1804;* and ever afterwards presented a bright example of christian fidelity and usefulness. Not long after, he was chosen to the office of Deacon, which he sustained, with great acceptance, till the infirmities of age compelled him to withdraw from active duty. He possessed, in a high degree, the respect and confidence of his neighbors, and was always one of the first to be called on to settle any difficulty in the church or civil community.

He was exemplary in all the duties of religion and of morality. Family worship was performed as soon as the family arose in the morning; a custom well suited to impress the mind with the thought that our duties to God take precedence of all others. All were required to be present. He was always present at the meetings of the church, especially prayer-meetings, when able to attend. He often walked two miles, after the fatigues of a summer's day, to enjoy the privilege of a weekly prayer-meeting. He was an early, a consistent, and an efficient laborer in the Temperance cause; joining in the earlier movements made, in 1814, to diminish the use of distilled liquors; and arriving in due time at the position taken, about twenty years after, by all true friends of that noble enterprise, that of entire abstinence from all intoxicating drinks. He contributed liberally, and to the extent of his ability, to the cause of Foreign Missions, and to other benevolent operations.

His personal appearance, as the compiler well remembers, after the lapse of thirty-nine years, was most venerable. His silver locks, his mild yet firm bearing, his animated countenance, are still before me.

He frequently visited his friends in Boston, Rockport, &c., making the journey of 300 miles twice alone on horseback, and several times with one of his family in his own vehicle.

In February, 1837, Deacon Giles was arrested with a sudden stroke of palsy. He became helpless at once; his sufferings were at times severe; but he was, to the end, patient and submissive, humble and gentle, even cheerful and contented; calmly waiting till his final change should come. From May, 1839, till October, 1840, he and his wife resided with their daughter, Mrs. Beach. The last year of his life was spent at his son's house in St. Johnsville, and there his death occurred, Oct. 30, 1841, a. 84. His wife Laurana d. Oct. 23, 1850, a. 88.

WILLIAM GILES,⁵ (Thomas,⁴ Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) son of Thomas⁴ and Mary (Jennison) Giles of South Danvers; bap. Feb. 28, 1762; m. -

^{*} Of this church, Rev. Elisha Yale, D. D., was ordained the first pastor, in May, 1804, having previously labored some months in that place. He continued to dis-charge the duties of a pastor there, with almost apostolic zeal, fidelity, and success, until some time in the year 1832, when his advanced years required the settlement of a colleague, Rev. Edward Wall. He was b. in Lee, Mass., June 15, 1780, and died of a paralytic shock, on Sunday, Jan. 9, 1853, leaving a name uncommonly respected, through all the land, for christian picty, prudence, and devotion.

We have no record of his birth, or marriage, or death.

When a boy, he went to Whately, on Connecticut River, and lived with a Mr. Edward Brown. At the age of eighteen, or a few months later, he enlisted in the Continental army, and served something less than six months, to wit, from July 6 to Dec. 28, 1780. If e was in the second company in the Tenth Massachusetts Regiment, commanded by Col. Thomas Marshall. In a certificate, made and swo n to by the Selectmen of Whately, the length of his service is given as above, and it is stated that he marched 150 miles. In a "Descriptive List" of the "Six-months' men," who marched from Springfield, July 9, 1780, William Giles is described as 18 years of age, 5 feet 4 inches in stature, of a ruddy complexion, and a resident in Whately in the County of Hampshire.* [Mass. Archives.

In the "Continental Army Book," William Giles is said to have enlisted for three years, which must be a mistake; and is credited with his service from July 16 to Dec. 31, 1780, being 5 months and 14 days, at 40 shillings per month. [Ibid.

After the war, he returned to Whately, and was admitted to the church there, Aug. 10, 1783. Some time after this, he left Whately and took up his residence in Middletown, Ct. He was married, but to whom, and whether in Whately, Middletown, or elsewhere, I am not informed. He was living in June, 1792, as appears from a deed quoted on p. 31. He was drowned in an attempt to cross the Connecticut River in a boat alone. He left no children. His widow was afterwards married to a Mr. Duball.

He received his name from a cherished remembrance of his mother's grandfather.

He was a tailor by trade; and resided successively in Salem, Baltimore, Md., Portsmouth, N. H., and finally in Pembroke, N. H., where he d. Jan. 1821. He left no children. His widow, in April, 1823, married John Norris of Raymond, N. H., son of Deacon Norris of that place. He was a tailor formerly, but, in 1823, a yeoman. I enjoyed a pleasant visit at their house in Raymond, in Oct. 1823, while pursuing my studies at Phillips Exeter Academy.

side in the family of her brother Samuel in Springfield and Weathersfield, Vt. This brother speaks of her as "lately living with" him, in June, 1792. See p. 31. Dr. William Jennison, her uncle, who died May 8, 1798, gave her in his will ten dollars; and in that will calls her "Abigail Giles, alias Watson."

Robert Watson lived in Kingsborough, N. Y., some time previous to their marriage. About two years after that event, they removed to Salina, Onondaga Co., N. Y., and thence to Canada; where, at the end of six or eight years, he died. She then visited her brother at Kingsborough, and spent several weeks. She returned to Canada, where she married a second hushand, Bates, as already stated. She visited her brother in the summer of 1824, in company with her hushand. They appeared to be in easy circumstances; though not religious people. They returned in September to their home in Scarborough, near Toronto, Canada West. Afterwards, they resided at some place in Hamilton District, in the same province. It is supposed that both have long since deceased.

She had no children. Her second husband had a son Roger Bates, by a former marriage, who many years since resided at Syracuse, N. Y.

She is represented as having been very attractive in person, and amiable in disposition.

He served his country as a soldier five years during the war of the Revolution; enlisting when under the age of eighteen. He received a wound in the shoulder from a sabre, in an encounter with the enemy's eavalry. After the pension Act was passed in 18—, he drew a pension.

Ebenezer Giles was called out for service in Rhode Island, July 1 to Dec. 18, 1777.

Ebenezer Giles of Townsend enlisted Aug. 1, 1777, in Col. John Robinson's Company, in the service of the United States, for six months.

Ebenezer Giles of Townsend, aged 20, stature 5 feet 7 inches, enlisted July, 1779, to serve in the Continental army. [Mass. Archives.

Mary, the wife of John Giles, became an earnest disciple of Christ in the morning of life, and connected herself with the Congregational Church.

John Giles, in early life, became a decided follower of Christ, and united with the Congregational Church in Townsend. He was chosen Deacon in Dec. 1812, and sustained the office acceptably till his death. He spent all his days there, and d. Aug. 24, 1825, aged 62 years, 9 months, and 20 days. NEHEMIAH GILES,⁵ (James,⁴ Eleazar,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) youngest child of James⁴ and Elizabeth (Green) Giles of Townsend; b. there, July 1, 1783; m. Jan. 10, 1809, MARY COWDIN, dau of Thomas and Mary (Farrington) Cowdin of Fitchburg. The mother of Mary Farrington was a sister of Israel Putnam, Major General in the army of the Revolution.

Mr. Giles learned the trade of a blacksmith; but possessing strong mental faculties, and an inventive genius, he turned his attention to the improvement of machinery. The circular saw was invented by him, although it had been, six or seven years previous, without his knowledge, invented in England, where it was known as "Sheldon's Circular Saw." The Patent Laws in this country were then less definite than at present, and no patent was taken out by Mr. Giles, and thus he failed of any special benefit from what was really his invention. He was among the earliest cotton spinners in the country; having established a cotton manufactory in Fitchburg as long ago as 1812. The business was con-ducted by the firm of Farwell & Giles. He removed to Walpole, N. H., in 1828, and there having purchased a farm, he devoted himself to agriculture. He still resides in that town.

His wife united with the Congregational Church in Walpole, about thirty years ago, and was a most excellent woman. She endured a distressing sickness of many years with exemplary christian fortitude, resignation, and cheerfulness; and went to her heavenly home March 31, 1862.

The family are highly respectable in point of intelligence, moral character, and social position.

SAMUEL GILES,³ (Samuel,⁴ Eleazar,³ John,² Edward,¹) son of Samuel⁴ and Eunice (Herrick) Giles of Beverly; b. there, Dec. 18, 1750.

Samuel Giles of Salem—he is also said to be of Beverly—enlisted May 6, 1775, as a private, in Capt. Nathan Brown's company, in Col. John Mansfield's regiment. Opposite to his name is the remark, "entered in Train, June 15." This means, he was transferred at that time to the artillery company, commanded by Capt. Samuel Russell Trevett of Marblehead, in Col. Richard Gridley's regiment. [Mass. Archives.

This company, or train of artillery, or battery, as it would now be called, fought valiantly at Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775, and brought away the only field-piece which was saved, out of six taken to the field.

Samuel Giles was chief gunner in a company raised for coast defence in Marblehead, under command of Capt. Edward Fettyplace. He enlisted Feb. 14, 1776, and served till the end of the year. This company consisted of just 100 men, including officers. [Ibid.

Samuel Giles was a matross (or common soldier) in the first company in the Massachusetts train of artillery, commanded by Capt. Philip Marett, in Col. Crafts's regiment, from Dec. 1, 1776 to May 8, 1777. [Ibid.

Samuel Giles was pilot of the State ship Tartar, under command of Capt. John Cathcart, from May 30, 1782, to Nov. 11, 1782, at $\pounds 5$ per month. There were 103 men, including officers.* [Ibid.

Of the remainder of his history I am wholly ignorant.

HENRY GILES,⁵ (Samuel,⁴ Eleazar,⁵ John,² Edward,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Beverly, Feb. 14, 1753.

Henry Giles of Beverly was a matross in a company of artillery, commanded by Capt. Samuel R. Trevett, in Col. Richard Gridley's regiment. He enlisted, May 29, 1775. Previously to this, he had enlisted as a private in Capt. William Curtis's company of infantry, in Col. John Glover's regiment. [Mass. Archives.

As has been already stated, Čapt. Trevett's company of artillery was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and did good service on that memorable day.

There is some reason to think that this Henry Giles afterwards removed to Nova Scotia, and d. at Cole Harbor, five miles from Halifax, in that Province, Nov. 1832, a. 81.

^{*} David Giles was a seaman on board the brig Hazard, commanded by Capt. John F. Williams, in the service of the State of Massachusetts Bay, from July 10, 1779, to Sept. 6, 1779, one month, 28 days. [Mass. Archives.] I know not his connection with the Glies Fauily. The Hazard, in 1777-8, was under the command of Capt. Simeon Sampson of Kingston.

* The account which is given of this family was received from Mrs. Louisa Gillespie of Salem. She also says that her grandfather's name was Joseph Henry Giles ; that he was tall and thin ; he had a sash and tassel, a high cap with a waving plume, and, she thinks, a long sword, all of which he used to exhibit as worn by him in the Revolutionary War; and she says he was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and, as I understood, fought on the side of liberty. He was from Roxbury, or Salem. I am not sure of the identity of the grandfather of Mrs. Gillespie, with Henry Giles,5[167] but consider it probable.

1 James Smith, b. Nov. 21, 1730, was son of James Smith, b. Feb. 2, 1694-5, by wife Sarah Creesy, m. Feb. 2, 1719. The last named James was son of Hazadiah Smith, by wife Hanuah Grover, m. This Hannah Grover was doubtless a granddaughter of Edmund Grover, who was of Salem, 1637, and d. in Bev-erly, June 11, 1683; and either sister or cousin of Lydia Grover, grandmother of Edmund Giles5 in the text. father, grandfather, and great-grandfather all bore the name of Samuel Wonson.

When a boy of eight or ten years of age, he engaged in the naval service of the United States, in the commencing difficulties with France. At the age of fifteen, he received seaman's wages in a merchant ship. In the war with Great Britain, he was sailing-master of a large privatearmed schooner, of about 400 tons, called the Thrasher, which was fitted out from Gloucester, in 1813 or 1814, to cruise against the commerce of the enemy. After the war, he superintended the building of the ship Augusta, and went master of her, from 1816 to 1829, in the China and London trade, in the employ of Thomas Handasyd Perkins, his brother James, and John P. Cushing; the firm being James & T. H. Perkins & Co. of Boston. During that period of thirteen years, he had uncommonly good success, meeting with no serious accident, and having the entire confidence of his employers. In 1829, he retired from the sea, with an ample fortune. He was much respected as a ship-master; and, after his retirement, was often solicited, with tempting offers, to resume the occupation. A strong desire to enjoy his pleasant home overcame every solicitation of this nature.

At the age of twenty-two, he regarded himself as having become a subject of renewing grace, and united with the Baptist Church in Salem. Four years later, he removed to Gloucester, and transferred his church relations to that place. To the interests of the Baptist Church there, he was a liberal contributor. He was exemplary as a christian, and upright as a man. He spent the remaining years of life in Gloucester, and died there, March, 1850, a. 63. He had no children of his own; but adopted his wife's younger sister Eliza, who is now the wife of Rev. William Lamson, D. D., some years minister of the Baptist Church in Portsmouth, N. H., and installed pastor of the Baptist Church in Brookline, Jan. 29, 1860. They have a son Samuel.

* The pedigree of Deacon Josiah Vinton, the compiler's father, is fully given in the VINTON MEMORIAL, issued from the press early in March, 1858. The following is a synopsis:-

1. JOHN VINTON was the ancestor of all persons bearing the name of Vinton in America, except of a few who may have emigrated to this country within a few years. He is believed to have been of French extraction; the son or grandson of some pions Huguenot, exiled for religion's sake from la belle France, either about the time of the siege of Rochelle, 1625, or, still earlier, about the time of the atrocious massacre of St. Bartholomew's day, 1572; at both which times great numbers of the distressed Protestants of France took refuge in England. Of John Vinton, my first American ancestor, our information is exceedingly limited. He was probably born in England, not far from 1620, since he was a young man in 1648. He came to America perhaps somewhere about 1640, and settled in Lynn, between Salem and Boston. By his wife ANN he had seven children, between 1648 and 1662, Eleanor, Boston. By his wife ANN he had seven children, between 1648 and 1662, Letanor, Joha, William, Blaise, Am, Elizabeth, Sorah. He d. in New Haven, Ct., 1663, and his wife also was deceased in 1664, when the Court directed the children to be sent to Lynn. She received her name from a cherished remembrance of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Snow; the name Elizabeth being supplanted by Betsey, as Mary has often been by Polly, and Sarah by Sally. She was frequently ealled Eliza, and ought always to have borne that name or that of Elizabeth, though Betsey got the upper hand. Her eldest daughter was supposed to bear her name. In her younger years she was beautiful in person, and was always graceful and polite in manners. Severe and long-continued sickness broke down a constitution originally vigorous, and during forty years, ending in death, she was a constant sufferer.

She went with her parents to Sandy Bay, (now Rockport.) in April, 1786. After a short stay there, she came back to Boston, to live with her grandmother's sister, Mrs. Sarah Sweetser, of whom some notice will be taken in the Sketch of the Marshall Family. She took care of this old lady in her last years; and, in grateful recognition of the service, Mrs. Sweetser left to her by will most of her property.*

He was a "bloomer," or blacksmith, by occupation; a man of capacity, activity, and enterprise; went to Braintree, probably some time before 1708; and by his industry and thrift obtained the means of purchasing a homestead of twenty-one acres in 1714. His continued prosperity enabled him to purchase, in 1720, the BRAINTERE IRON WORKS, the first establishment for the manufacture of iron in America, and indeed the first manufacturing establishment of any sort. These Iron Works were then, however, in a state of decline; the result of early miscalculation and later competition. See a llistory of the Braintree Iron Works, in the Vinton Memorial. Feb. 28, 1734, was first cousin to JOHN ADAMS, "the very soal of the American Revolation;" the chief negotiator of the Treaty of Peace in 1783; and the successor of Washington in the Presidency of the American Republic. Josiah Vinton was a gold and silver smith, a trade which he pursued about twenty years, and then gave it up for store-keeping and agricultnre. He met with alternate successes and reverses; but was uniformly an apright, conscientious, trust-worthy man. He died of lung fever, Dec. 27, 1843, ne. 89. After the death of Mrs. Sweetser, in Aug. 1795, a. 70, Betsey Giles went to Sandy Bay, in the autumn of 1795, and was there when her father died. In the spring of 1796, she returned to Boston, and resided with Mrs. Cunningham, her mother's kinswoman, till her marriage in 1800. Mrs. Cunningham lived on the north side of Hanover Street, in a house not now standing, between Union and Marshall Streets. Thomas Dakin was, at Betsey's request, appointed her guardian, in reference to the property left her by Mrs. Sweetser. This property was sold in 1801, as appears by the following deed:

1801, Oct. 20. Josiah Vinton, Jun⁷., of Boston, trader, and Betsey Vinton his wife, for 1085 dollars, eonvey to Henry Farnham of Boston, Jeweller, the front end of a dwelling-house, whereof Sarah Sweetser, late of Boston, widow, deceased, testate, died seized and possessed, situate on Prince Street, there measuring 17½ feet, &c. [Suffolk Deeds, 199:74.

Josiah Vinton was a dry-goods merchant in Boston, from 1797 to 1824, with the exception of the interval from 1808 to 1813, which he spent in trade in Braintree. He commenced with nothing but an upright heart and a good name; and though his gains were moderate and his success not uninterrupted, he acquired ultimately a handsome property. He was eminently conscientious in the management of his business, and enjoyed in a high degree the confidence of all who had deal-

These three were cousins of Mrs. Sweetser, their mother being her annt. Mr. Dakin lived at the corner of Union and Hanover Streets, at the sign of the Blue Ball, in a house which was pulled down a few years since to widen Union Street. It was once the residence of the father of Dr. Franklin, and there is reason to think that it was Dr. Franklin's birthplaee. See Drake's History of Boston, p. 492. Mr. Dakin d. Feb. 12, 1802, a. 73. ings with him. From his promptness and punctuality in the payment of all his debts, and from never allowing himself to be embarrassed, he was often taken to be the owner of more property than he really was.

In Nov. 1824, he removed to Braintree, intending to reside there permanently. He built and occupied the house where Caleb Stetson now lives, in East Braintree. He was President of the Union Bank of Braintree and Weymouth, from May, 1832, till Oct. 1833. In March, 1836, he removed to South Boston, and continued to reside there till his death. He served the city as one of its Representatives in the Legislature during the session of 1840.

Ite united with the Old South Church in Boston, Aug. 21, 1803. Of this church he was a member till 1810, when, on the organization of the Union Church of Weymouth and Braintree, he transferred his relation to that body. In 1822, he became a member of the church then recently gathered in Essex Street, Boston. Of this church he was chosen Deacon, in Feb. 1823. On his removal to South Boston he became connected with Phillips Church in that place; was soon after chosen Deacon; and continued in these relations till death.

His natural talents were respectable; his mind was clear and strong; his judgment sound and reliable. In his early life, the schools were of an inferior order, and continued only half of the year. After coming to Boston in 1792, he resolved to supply, as far as possible, by his own unaided endeavors, the defects of his early education. It was not allowed to read or study in the store. At an early hour in the morning, therefore, as soon as he could see, and in the evening after the labors of the day were over, he applied himself earnestly to books. He thus beeame able to perform operations in algebra, to read Virgil and Livy, and to write a terse and vigorous English. Had opportunity been allowed, he would have made a good classical scholar. To the end of his life, Beza's Latin Testament was his cherished companion after publie worship on the Sabbath. But the injudicious use of his eyes in youth produced a weakness of the organ from which he never recovered.

He was retiring in his disposition, and preferred the quiet of his own pleasant home to any exhibition of himself before the public eye. He never sought for office, though it was sometimes conferred upon him. A commission of Justice of the Peace was sent to him at Braintree, without his seeking; but he never used it. Yet he never shrunk from responsibility. At different times he was called, in the Providence of God, to arduous and self-denying labors in the cause of evangelical religion, and to endure no small amount of obloquy and reproach for doing what he thought to be only his simple duty.

Deacon Josiah Vinton died of apoplexy, Oct. 17, 1857, a. 80 years, 2 months, 20 days. He was apparently in usual health up to the very moment of his departure. His departure was without a struggle, or any mention of illness on his part. "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," he was ushered into the presence of that Saviour, of whom he had been a steadfast and consistent follower during a long life. He retained all his faculties of body and mind in cheerful exercise to the end; and only three days before his decease visited the sepulchres of his fathers and of his deceased wife, in Braintree.

On the Friday evening succeeding his death, the Phillips Church unanimously adopted a resolution, to be entered on their records, recognizing "his faithfulness as an officer of the church, his devotedness to the cause of Christ, and his integrity as a citizen ;" adding, "that like a shock of corn fully ripe, he has been gathered into the granary of God."

Mrs. Vinton was conscientious, faithful, and exemplary in all the relations of life. She made a public profession of religion, at the Essex Street Church, Boston, Rev. Samuel Green, pastor, June 1, 1823, though regarded as truly religious long before. She was a faithful wife, an affectionate mother, a kind and disinterested friend. Her children had implicit confidence in her, and their best interests lay nearest her heart. She d. Aug. 9, 1849, a. 68.

MATTHEW SMITH GILES,⁶ (Thomas,⁵ Thomas,⁴ Samuel,³ Eleazar,² Edward,¹) eldest son of Thomas⁵ and Mary (Marshall) Giles; b. in Boston, Aug. 16, 1784; m. 1, Dec. 14, 1806, SALLY WEBSTER, dau. of Joshua and Esther (Pool) Webster of Sandy Bay, now Rockport. She d. March 6, 1840, a. 50 years, 9 months. 2, LYDIA (LEE) CLIFFORD, a widow, of Wenham, March 22, 1841.

His name was given out of respect to Capt. Matthew Smith, a shipmaster, who was the first husband of Mrs. Sarah (Soper) Sweetser, his grandmother's sister. See the preceding article. He has resided in Rockport all his life, except the first twenty months. He has been connected with sea-faring business; was master of his own vessel in trading voyages to Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, and to ports in the State of Maine. At the age of twenty-two, he united himself to the First Congregational Church in Rockport, under the pastoral care of Rev. David Jewett. He has ever been exemplary and devoted as a christian. When a Congregational Church was formed at Lanesville, two or three miles distant, about thirty years since, there was found to be a lack of male members. To supply this deficiency, Mr. Matthew S. Giles and his cousin by marriage, Mr. William Choate, were designated by their brethren to join and thus to strengthen the new church; in which they sustained the office of Deacon several years.

His children, all by first wife, have been-

† The pedigree of Mary Cotton Holmes appears to be as follows :---

I. ABRAHAM HOLMES, with his first wife and their children, came from Ireland in 1719, and soon joined the settlement which had been commenced by his country-men at Londonderry, N. II., the year previous.* His second wife was Mary Morrison. He was early elected an elder in the First Presbyterian Church there, and d. 1753, a. 70.

The causes were, in brief, the op-pressive rule of the government at home; advance of rents by landlords; and disstrous seasons. The first organized company of these emigrants came in five vessels, consisting of 120 families, and arrived in Bioston. Ang. 4, 1718. A portion of these settled in Nutfield, N. H., where they founded a town, which, from their celebrated city in Ireland, they called Londonderry.

He has always resided at Rockport, since he was five months old. His business, during all the earlier years of his life, was on the water, as was that also of his brothers. In 1810, he took his mother's shop, and engaged in trade; at the same time pursuing the business of navigation. He kept a store in Rockport from 1810 to 1847, without interruption. Mrs. Mary C. Giles, second wife of Thomas Giles in the text, assured the compiler, that her father's grandfather was a native of Ireland, and was one of those who settled in Londonderry in 1719. She also stated that her father, Robert Holmes, had a brother Abraham, and sisters Mary Aun and Martha. The similarity of the names in the families of John Holmes of Londonderry and John Holmes of Dunbarton, is remarkable. Six names ont of nine, in the family of the former, are found in the family of the latter. Putting all these things together, we feel warranted in the conclusion that John Holmes of Dunbarton was the son of John Holmes of Londonderry, notwithstanding the omission of his name by Mr. Parker.

I. Rev. JOHN COTTON, b. in Derby, Eng., Dec. 4, 1585, son of Roland Cotton, a lawyer of eminence; educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; rector of St. Botolph's Church in Boston, Lincolnshire, which was perhaps the most stately parish church edifice in England, a cathedral in size and beauty. This superb building, which would contain five thousand persons, he exchanged for the mud walls and thatched roof of a rude meeting-house on these western shores. He came Halifax to New York inclusive, more than thirty years; and from 1807 to 1830 was master and pilot of his own vessel, without ever meeting with any accident or damage, though often in imminent danger. He was successful in business, and acquired a fair property.

He was one of the first movers in the enterprise of the Sandy Bay Pier Company, which was started in 1809; and was a Director of the company for many years. This company began with eight thousand dollars, and expended eighty thousand, in the construction of two massive granite piers, for the protection of shipping against the northeast storms, which often beat with inconceivable fury upon that salient angle of the coast. These piers now form a safe and convenient harbor, which had been greatly needed. They were pronounced by competent judges, such as Commodore Bainbridge, commandant at the Navy Yard, and General Dearborn, Collector of the Port of Boston, the most massive piece of stone work then in America. This enterprise laid the foundation for the subsequent prosperity of Rockport. The United States Government has since laid out from eighty to one hundred thousand dollars in furtherance of the same design.

When about fifty years of age, he turned his attention more than formerly to agricultural pursuits, especially the raising of apples, with to Boston in New England, in the Griffin, a ship of 300 tons; arriving there Sept. 4, 1633, with his second wife and their children. Her name had been SARAH STORY, 4, 1635, with his second wire and their enhance. Ther hande had been SARAH STORY, a widow. She was the mother of all Mr. Cotton's (six) children. After Mr. Cotton's death, she became the wife of Rev. Richard Mather of Dorchester. "Mr. Cotton was a famous light in his generation; a glory to both Englands." [Hubbard's Hist. of N. E.] He died greatly revered and hamented, Dec. 15, 1652, a. 67. II. Rev. JOIN COTTON, his son, b. in Boston, N. E., March 15, 1639-400; H. C. 1657; m. good success. Few towns now excel Rockport in the variety and excellence of its fruit trees.

At the age of thirty, he made a public profession of religion, and united with the First Congregational Church in Rockport; of which for the last thirty-four years he has been Deacon. He has been a warm friend and generous contributor to Foreign Missions from the time of their commencement in this country, 1810; and has rarely failed of attending the meetings of missionary and other benevolent societies, when held within a convenient distance. During many years, he was a teacher in the Sabbath School; and for a few years, superintendent. Of a class of fourteen young men, which he taught more than thirty years ago, eleven became members of the church.

He was in the foremost rank, in his vicinity, of the great Temperance movement in 1826, as will appear from the following statement. In 1826, he had just purchased a considerable quantity of spirituous liquors, for sale in his store at Rockport. Such purchases were made by nearly every country merchant previous to that time. Becoming convinced that the traffic in intoxicating drinks was wrong, he resolved to sacrifice the whole. Accordingly he either poured it out, or put oil into the casks, that it might not be used as a beverage.

All his children, who are now living, with their married partners, are members of Congregational Churches, and all adorn their profession, and are useful and respected members of society.

His children have been-by first wife, Olive Tarr-

Y., Feb. 20, 1793, son of Amos Beach of that place, afterwards of Kingsborough. He died of paralysis, Nov. 16, 1861, æ. 69. She was his second wife.^{*}

After a protracted season of deep religious concern, she was brought into the light and liberty of the gospel, and made a public profession of religion by uniting with the Congregational Church in Kingsborough, under the pastoral care of that excellent and devoted minister, Rev. Elisha Yale, D. D. She improved her mind by reading, and taught school in the vicinity of her native place many summers, with good success. She has been a correspondent of the compiler of this volume forty-six years; and from her letters he confesses himself to have derived no small instruction and benefit. For her intellectual and religious character he has ever entertained a high degree of respect. She has been faithful and diligent in all the relations of life; an exemplary and devoted christian.

Amos Beach, husband of Sarah Giles, has a brother, Rev. Ebenezer C. Beach, many years pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Lysander, N. Y.

‡ She was dau, of Samuel Smith, son of James Smith, who came from Connecticut, and was one of the original members of the Congregational Church in Kingsborough. The mother of Charlotte Camilla Smith was Elizabeth, fourth dau, of Azariah Baird, who also removed from Connecticut to Kingsborough, soon after the close of the Revolutionary War.

^{*} Amos Beach, the father, born 1750, was a native of Goshen, in Litchfield County, Ct. His wife was Olive Carrington of Farmington, Ct. They first settled in Florida, N. Y., where their son Amos was born, as above. The next year, 1794, they removed to Kingsborough, where he died, Feb. 1, 1831, a. 81. The business of Amos Beach, Senior, was that of a tanner, currier, and shoemåker. The confinement of the workshop was not congenial to the taste of the son; and as the father owned a farm, the son preferred the labors of husbandry, and became a scientific farmer. He was fond of reading; but his earnest desire for literary pursuits he was not able to gratify. He early espoused the Anti-Slavery cause. His first wife was Huldah, dau. of Stephen Gillett, Esq., of Kingsborough. They were both members of the Congregational (now Presbyterian) Church in that place, before their marriage. Their first child, Edwin, died at the age of twenty months. The next, Huldah Gillett, was two months old when her mother died. Huldah m. Sept. 14, 1847, Laban Franklin Clark of Schenectady, N. Y. Vinton, who has already been mentioned as purchaser, in 1720, of the Iron Works in that town. See p. 72, note.

Mr. Vinton spent most of his childhood and youth in his father's store; being designed by his father for a merchant; but at mature age, in pursuance of a desire to be a scholar and a minister, which he had secretly but unavailingly cherished during many years, he forsook the walks of commerce and entered Phillips Exeter Academy, in June, 1823; graduated at Dartmouth College, August 20, 1828, and completed a full course of theological study at the Seminary in Andover, Sept. 1831. He received ordination as a minister of the gospel, May 16, 1832; and labored in the work of the ministry, for a longer or shorter period, in Bloomfield, New Sharon, Exeter, and Bristol, all in Maine; in Chatham, Kingston, and Stoneham, in Massachusetts; in West Randolph and Williamstown, in Vermont. He also was Chaplain of the State Almshouse, Monson, Mass., 1859–60. Having a weak voice, and a slender physical frame, he was reluctantly compelled at length to retire from the good work which he had always preferred above all others; and during the last ten years has resided in South Boston.

A more particular account of Mr. Vinton and of his kindred, on the father's side, has been given in the Vinton Memorial.

He was a Director of the State Bank of Missouri, and President of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; both of these offices being conferred on him without solicitation, and when eagerly coveted by others. In March, 1855, he refused the office of President of the Pacific Railroad Company, with a salary of 5,000 dollars, because it would interfere with his more lucrative business. He chose a sea-faring life, and rose through the several grades to that of shipmaster. He went several voyages to Canton and London with Capt. Samuel Giles [254]. On his first voyage in the capacity of master, being in a hermaphrodite brig, the Kosciusko, belonging to his father, Capt. John Burns of Rockport, and others, as he was returning home from the West Indies, he was knocked overboard and drowned. It was at daybreak, on the morning of March 9, 1832. He was at the helm, and faithfully performing the duties of his station, the crew being engaged in taking out the reefs of the sails after a heavy blow, when he was forced overboard by the spanker-boom. This was near Gayhead, Martha's Vineyard. He was expecting to reach home the next day, and was soon to be married to an estimable young lady, the adopted daughter of his father's cousin, Capt. Samuel Giles of Gloucester. Thus, in an instant, was he separated from all earthly hopes, and his lifeless form found a sepulchre in the insatiable ocean. "He was enterprising, generous, and in his death much lamented." [Cenotaph at Rockport.

About this time, he engaged in studies preparatory to the ministry, at the Oneida Institute, Whitesborough, N. Y. After a sufficient experiment, it was found that his health was not adequate to the further prosecution of those studies. He was induced, therefore, to enter on the study, and, ultimately, on the practice, of medicine. He spent a number of years as a practising physician at Racine, Wisconsin; skilful in his profession, esteemed as a man and useful as a christian. He suffered much from bronchitis, for relief from which he was induced to go to California in 1859. He died at Racine, Wis., June 7, 1862. In the first Sabbath in 1829, he united with the church under the pastoral care of Dr. Yale; his cousin, Albert Giles, accompanying him in the same delightful duty. He continued his course of study, with some unavoidable interruptions; taught school; and maintained a long and hard struggle against feeble health, and discouragements of almost every description. He studied at Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio; and subsequently at the Theological Seminary near Alexandria, Virginia. He was for some months in 1838 Principal of the Academy in Kingsborough, his native place. In 1839 he was Principal of a Female Seminary in Danville, Va. After this he "took orders" in the Episcopal Church; was assistant minister in Christ Church, Cincinnati; was located at Sandusky City in 1844, but was obliged to leave by reason of his health, which has always been feeble. From 1847 to 1854 he was Rector of St. John's Church, Troy, N. Y. Since 1854 he has been Rector of St. Jude's Church, Philadelphia.

FAMILY OF THOMAS GYLES.

The preceding pages contain a Memoir of EDWARD GILES¹ of Salem, freeman 1634, and his descendants.

There is reason to believe that about the year 1650, there resided in Salem another man of the name of Giles, to wit, THOMAS GYLES.*

The proof is scanty, and is derived, not from the records of Salem, but from those of Gloucester. The Gloucester Register of Births, Marriages, and Deaths has the following :---

"Thomas Verrey, sonne of goodwife Gyles, was married by the Deputy Governor, Mr. Endicott, unto Hannah Gyles, daughter of Thomas Gyles of Salem, upon the 6^{th} of the 5^{th} mo. 1650." The Thomas Very here mentioned was the step-son of EDWARD GILES' of Salem. He lived in Gloucester, and the record was doubtless made under his sanction. And, by the way, here is clear proof that Edward Giles was dead in 1650. See p. 7.

It is singular that no record of this Thomas Gyles exists in Salem. The Book of Land Grants, and the Registry of Births, Marriages, and Deaths in Salem, the Essex Registry of Deeds, and Registry of Probate, have all been thoroughly examined, without finding his name. Yet there is no reason, known to me, for discrediting the Gloucester record, as just now quoted. There is a tradition, believed to be well established, that a man by the name of Thomas Gyles, did, in the olden time, live in Salem, next to the Beverly ferry, where the Beverly bridge now is. Mr. Jones Very, who is well versed in the History and Antiquities of Salem, informs me of this tradition, and adds,—"The Gilesces long held land there."[‡]

I have quoted the only record, within my knowledge, in which this Thomas Gyles is mentioned. It seems evident that he did not reside in Salem, or anywhere in New England, for any great length of time. It is not an unreasonable conjecture that he returned to England with his family; as we know many did about that time.

There is no improbability in the following hypothesis; that he was a brother of EDWARD GILES¹; that he returned to England soon after 1650, to take possession of property left him by some deceased relation;

^{*} I have already said that Giles and Gyles are the same name. See p. 3. Edward Giles is sometimes Edward Gyles, and Thomas Gyles is sometimes Thomas Giles, in the early documents. But as the descendants of Thomas Gyles have been careful to retain the y, I follow their lead in this part of the volume.

[‡] I venture to suggest that this statement—" The Gileses long held land there," may possibly rest on the fact that Eleazar Giles⁴ [47] owned a quarter of an acre of land at that precise spot, from 1746 till his death in 1781.

and that he was the father of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid, who was killed by the Indians in 1689, and the father also of James Gyles and of John Gyles, of whom notice will be taken in the sequel. This is a mere conjecture; and, if the reader pleases, a mere fancy, for there is no positive proof of it. But it is not unlikely to be the true state of the matter. And there are two or three things which are in favor of this hypothesis. 1. Edward Giles being already settled in Salem, if we find another Giles there, it is a fair presumption that they were brothers. 2. A coat of arms found among the descendants of Edward Giles is almost, if not quite, identical with a coat of arms found among the descendants of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid, and another coat of arms found among the descendants of John Gyles of Boston, formerly of Pemaguid. These coats of arms are known to be ancient; probably come down from the first generation in New England. And, as it appears from Westcote's "View of Devonshire," (see p. 2,) that in 1630 the honor of knighthood had not long been enjoyed by the Giles family of that county, these coats of arms seem to prove a near relationship between Edward Giles' of Salem and the others just named. In fact, it seems to be proved that they were of the same family. 3. Capt. John Gyles, son of Thomas of Pemaguid, refers, somewhat obscurely, to the fact that his ancestors were both virtuous and honorable. If he were of the family of Sir Edward Giles of Devonshire, we can in some measure appreciate his pregnant allusion to his ancestors. Sir Edward was a man of decided religious character; a staunch Puritan; a knight, connected with influential persons; a member of parliament; and Sheriff of the County of Devon. 4. John Gyles of Pemaquid, on being compelled to quit that place, 1689, retires to Salem, where others of the family were settled.

It will be a matter of convenience to me, if the reader will allow me to proceed on the hypothesis now suggested; a hypothesis which agrees with all known facts, though it may possibly prove to be unfounded; since it gives me the advantage of presenting Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid, James Gyles of New Jersey, and John Gyles of Boston, as brothers, the sons of one man, which there is no reason whatever to doubt. And the father's name—what more likely than THOMAS GYLES?*

The father of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid died in England about the year 1673. He had, if we mistake not, the following sons, all born in England—

651. [†]Thomas,² m. Margaret —____.
652. [†]James,² m. Elizabeth _____.
653. [†]John,² b. 1653 ; m. Mary _____.

^{*} Since the above was in type, further investigations have involved in much doubt the hypothesis here suggested. James Gyles of New Jersey [652] certainly was from Kent; and a note on p. 113, which is derived from an authentic History of Kent, shows that his family had been residents and landholders in that county at least three centuries previous to his removal to America. Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid [651] and John Gyles of Boston [653] appear to have been his brothers. The evidence furnished by the three coats of arms, which are almost precisely alike, is of much value; otherwise I do not see how the family of Thomas Gyles could be related to that of Edward Giles of Salem, mless Edward Giles of Salem went from Kent, instead of Devonshire, as heretofore believed.

Second Generation.

THOMAS GYLES,² ESQ., presumed to be the son of Thomas Gyles, formerly of Salem.

There is reason to suppose that he was born in England about the year 1640. His wife was MARGARET ------. So far as we can learn, she was his only wife, and the mother of all his children.*

Our first information touching him bears the date of May 8, 1669, when he purchased of Thomas Watkins a tract of land two miles long and one mile broad, on the left or north bank of the Pejepscot River. It was at the point where that river unites with the broad Kennebec, within the present township of Topsham. These two large rivers, at their confluence, spread themselves into a broad expanse called Merrymeeting Bay. Thomas Gyles's land was bounded on the South and East by Merrymeeting Bay; North by Muddy River, which empties into that bay, and West by land of Capt. Reynolds. His land was divided from that of Reynolds by a Cedar Swamp, and by marked Reynolds, however, was not his neighbor till some time aftertrees. wards. Thomas Gyles built a house on the point of land between Muddy River and the aforesaid bay, and continued to reside there until his departure for England.[‡]

* In the collections of the Maine Historical Society, Vol. III. p. 314, there are several palpable errors in regard to Thomas Gyles, which I will take this opportunity to correct. 1. Thomas Gyles, it is said, settled near Merrymeeting Bay, some years prior to 1666. I have a copy of the deed from Thomas Watkins, which conveyed to him his estate in that vicinity. This deed is dated May 8, 1669. The consideration of £27 was to be paid in English Goods. It is certain that he did not settle there till 1669. 2. It is stated that Thomas Gyles lived on the right bank of the Pejepscot River. The right bank of a river is that bank which is on the right hand of a person whose face is toward the mouth of the river; as the Dictionaries tell us. The right bank of the Pejepscot would be its south side, in the town of Bruuswick The right bank of the Pejepsot would be its south side, in the town of Bruuswick or perhaps Bath. But Thomas Gyles lived on the north side, the left bank of the Pejepsot, in what is now the town of Topshan. 3. It is said that Thomas Gyles, at the commencement of "Philip's War," was taken prisoner, and his wife was killed while in the garden picking beans. This statement is repeated by Rev. Rufus K. Sewall, in his "Ancient Dominions of Maine." It was doubtless copied from the Maine Hist, Collections. But there is no allusion to anything of this sort in Capta. John Gyles's Narrative, from which we derive most of our knowledge of his father. Thomas Gyles. The contrary is strongly implied. "On the death of my Tather, Thomas Gyles. The contrary is strongly implied. "On knowing of missing and the death of my grandparents," says the narrator, "he [my father] with his family, returned to England to settle his affairs;" i. e. to be put in possession of the estate which his father had left him. "This done, he came over with the design to have returned to his farm; but on his arrival at Boston, the eastern Indians had begun their hostili-ties." This certainly implies that "Philip's War" had not commenced when he left Maine for England. Thomas Gyles's yonngest dau, who in 1717 m. Jonas Webber, and who was certainly born between 1680 and 1687, was named Margaret, which was the name of the wife who went with him to Merrymeeting Bay in 1669.

t The Pejepscot River is that portion of the Androscoggin which is below Lewiston Falls. Maine Hist. Soc. Collections, Vol. 111. p. 322. That designation, I believe, has ceased to he applied to the great river of Western Maine, or to any part of it. The entire river is now called the Androscoggin.

The charter of the Massachusetts Company-March 4, 1628-9granted to them all that part of New England which lies between the Merrimack and Charles Rivers, "and also all lands lying within the space of three miles on the South part of the said Charles River, or of any or every part thereof; and also all lands lying within the space of three miles to the Northward of the said river Merrimack, or of any part thereof;" and from the Atlantic Ocean straight through to the Great South Sea. Not long before the time of Thomas Gyles's settlement in Maine, it had been ascertained that Merrimack River takes its rise near the parallel of forty-four degrees, and consequently that much the greater part of New Hampshire, together with all of Maine which lies South of that parallel, came within the chartered limits of Massachusetts; thus extending the jurisdiction of that Colony as far to the Eastward as the present town of Rockland, on Penobscot Bay. Massachusetts accordingly took possession of this whole territory. This measure was cheerfully acquiesced in by the inhabitants generally, as they hoped for greater security under the powerful protection of Massachusetts, than they had enjoyed under the proprietary authorities. The endeavors of the Royal Commissioners, in 1665, to dispossess her of that territory having failed, the "re-annexation" of Maine was effected in 1668, and a new impulse was thus imparted to settlement and immigration.

This desirable change seems to have encouraged Thomas Gyles, "the eminent pioneer of the East," as he has been called,* to locate himself on Merrymeeting Bay. To that vicinity he was followed by many others. A degree of prosperity and growth in all that region immesaying that Thomas Gyles settled in Topsham after Queen Anne's war.

Thomas Gyles, a man of the strictest Puritan integrity, was not content with purchasing the land of Watkins, but was careful to procure the consent of the Indian Sagamore Darumquin, who might be deemed to have a claim to it. If this volume should not outgrow its proper dimensions, we shall insert the deed of Watkins, the Indian deed, and some other ancient and curious documents, in Appendix D.

The Maine Historical Collections, and Sewall, in his "Ancient Dominions of Maine," call the place where Thomas Gyles's house stood, "Pleasant Point." I arm not personally cognizant of the locality. It was no doubt an attractive spot. But if Pleasant Point be "on the right bank of the Pejepscot," Thomas Giles did not reside there.

Thomas Watkins, who sold the land to Gyles, was admitted a freeman of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, May 30, 1660. He was one of the residents on the Kennebee River who submitted to the government of the Duke of York in 1665. He d. before 1674, and his widow married Thomas Stevens, the Indian trader, who lived about five miles east of Bowdoin College, on Stevens's River; and had Thomas Purchas, the first settler of Pejepscot, (Brunswick), for a near neighbor.

* By Rev. Rufus K. Sewall, in his "Ancient Dominions of Maine." Hon. James Savage, in a letter to the compiler, styles him "the great promoter of settlement at Kennebec in 1669."

There had been a few settlers in that region before. About 1623, permanent settlements seem to have been effected on Arrowsic Island, at Sheepseot, at Damariscotta, at Pemaquid, Monhegan, and St. George's River; and it is said that, in 1631,

After its confluence with the Kennebec, their united stream is called the Sagadahoek. Merrymeeting Bay, from Pejepscot Lower Falls in Brunswick to its outlet, may Merrymeeting Bay, from rejepsed Lower ratis in Branswick to its outlet, may be ten miles in length, winding round to the north till it is mbraces the waters of the Kennebec; receiving on its northwest side Muddy River, which is merely an arm of the sea, collateral to the Bay, and Cathance, [pronounced Cat-hance,] which is most-ly, also, a salt-water river and navigable three miles. Williamson, in the second volume of his History of Maine, has widely erred in diately ensued, as we gather from the beginning of the Narrative of John Gyles, his son.

Thomas Gyles continued to reside at his home on the Kennebec until, hearing of the death of his father, he, with his family, returned to England, to transact the business which that event naturally threw upon him. This was late in the autumn of 1674.*

After being put in possession of the large property which his father left him, Thomas Gyles returned to New England. This was probably not till the autumn of 1675 or spring of 1676; for, "on his arrival at Boston, the eastern Indians had begun their hostilities." These hostilities did not commence till August, 1675, and were not vigorously prosecuted in Maine till a year after. Mr. Gyles came back with the intention of resuming his residence on the Kennebec; but the Indian War induced him to begin a settlement on Long Island. "The air of that place not so well agreeing with his constitution, and the Indians having become penceable"—in the summer of 1077—"he again proposed to re-settle his lands at Merrymeeting Bay; but finding that place deserted,"

King Charles II. had given to his brother James, duke of York, March 12, 1664–5, all the territory between the Pemaquid River and the St. Croix, being considerably more than one-half of the present State of Maine. The duke and his officers, however, utterly neglected this territory for more than twelve years. After the Indian War was over, Major Edmund Andros, who governed for the duke at New York, took possession of Pemaquid, in June, 1677. Under his direction the fort was rebuilt, and a company of soldiers stationed there. The settlers who had been driven away by the Indians now returned, but were obliged to take new deeds from the New York authorities, and pay considerable sums into the pockets of the ducal officers.

eighty-four families, besides transient fishermen, were dwelling upon the shores of this region. We omit all mention of Saco, and other places west of Casco Bay. Thomas Purchas and George Way had settled at Pejepseot, [Brunswick,] as early as 1625 or 1626. The Colony of Plymouth had a trading establishment on the Kennebec as early as 1629, and a grant or patent from the Council in Plymouth (Eng.) in 1630, which was followed by small settlements in what are now the towns of Phipsburg and Augusta. John Brown removed from New Harbor and settled, with Edward Bateman, in Nov. 1639, in the present town of Woolwich. From varions causes, especially the uncertainty of land titles, and the want of a wellorganized and efficient government, the settlements advanced but slowly, and at the commencement of the first Indian War, fifty years after the first pernanent settlements, the whole population of Maine is supposed not to have exceeded 6000.

* It has often been stated that Thomas Gyles was driven away by the Indians in 1675. This is a mistake. For, 1. John Gyles says that his father went to England prior to the commencement of the Indian hostilities; these hostilities had commenced in his absence. 2. The deed of Thomas Watkins to Thomas Gyles was recorded at Boston, Nov. 9, 1674; which must have been at the time when Mr. Gyles was in Boston on his way to England. He doubtless brought it from Maine to Boston to be recorded, and took it with him to England. The statement, already quoted, appears to rest on the Deposition of Edward Keemer and Andrew Willeti, sworn to in Boston, April 21, 1696, and recorded with Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 27, fol. 30. This statement, however, is there made incidentally and casually. In other words, the statement is that Thomas Gyles quietly possessed and enjoyed his lands on the Kennebec, "before his being driven away by the Indians." But though the Indian War excluded him from his lands on his return, it did not expel him from them at his departure, as is evident from the facts already stated. Thomas Gyles, finding that Pemaquid was likely to rise to its former importance, and hoping for greater scentrity from savage ineursion, coneluded to settle in that place; purchased several tracts of land from the inhabitants there, and took out patents under the duke of York. When Pemaquid, with the line of coast of which it was the principal settlement, was constituted a judicial district, under the name of the County of Cornwall, Thomas Gyles was made Chief Justice of the same by Governor Dongan, who had succeeded Andros, in 1682, as the ducal Governor of New York."^{}

His name appears, with the names of eighteen others, attached to a petition addressed to Governor Dongan, dated in 1683, and beginning thus—"The Humble Petition of the inhabitants of the extreme partes of his Riall Hiness Territory Between the River Kenybeke and St. Croix."[‡] The petitioners complain of the ducal government as "allto gether arbytrary"; they speak of its "Grand abusses as not to be endured any longer"; and they ask that "the freeholders of Pemaquid and its Dependancies" may have a Representative at New York. Mr. Giles Goddard was accordingly chosen, and he represented Pemaquid at one session of the General Assembly of the Province of New York.§

The name of Thomas Gyles is signed to another petition, dated April 21, 1684, which, with the previous one, is found among the Pemaquid Papers.

Ite was a man of wealth, and laid out a considerable income, which he annually derived from the estate left to him in England, in improving and cultivating his lands at Pemaquid. He was also a gentleman of great personal worth; of high religious character; a strict, unbending Puritan; a careful observer of the Sabbath; faithful and fearless in the discharge of all his duties. As a magistrate and ruler, who must be a terror to evil doers, as well as a rewarder of those who do well, he met with much difficulty in enforcing the laws among a people who had long been accustomed to live without restraint.

He lived at Pemaquid, happily and usefully, till Aug. 2, 1689, when he was slain by the brutal savages, in a sudden incursion made by them, instigated, as there is no room to doubt, by the French Baron Castine and his Jesuit constrymen.¶

War with the Eastern Indians had existed since August, 1688. Their jealousy was excited by the progress of the English settlements, and they were continually stimulated by the Romish missionaries among them, who went so far as to tell them that Jesus Christ was a Frenchman, and that the English had put him to death in London, with many other misrepresentations equally extravagant. The immediate cause of the John Gyles, writing in 1736, states that his father was killed and himself taken prisoner by the Indians, on the second day of Angust, 1689. He also represents the surrender of the fort as having occurred on the following day. The same dates are given by Mather, in his Magnalia, Vol. II., pp. 590, 591, by Williamson, and by other historians. But Capt. Weems, who commanded in the fort, says in a petition to the Governor of Massachusetts, Lord Bellamont, 1700, that the surrender took place on the 13th of Angust, 1689, and the pay of the soldiers was reckoned and allowed up to that date. war seems to have been the purpose of Castine to be revenged on the English for the plunder of his house and village on the Penobscot, during a visit made by Andros in April, 1688. No effectual measures had been taken to bring the war to a close. Sir Edmund Andros, who was now the king's "Captain-General and Governor-in-chief of our Territory and Dominion of New England," marched by land, with a force of about one thousand men, to Pemaquid, in November of that year. This force, which, if employed earlier in the season, might have at once terminated these hostilities, was now collected, as many believed, for no good purpose. The men suffered extremely, there being no shelter from the rigors of the season; and more of them died, it was affirmed, than the whole number of Indians in hostility; while not one Indian was killed. The soldiers believed that Andros brought them thither to sacrifice them to the French and Indians.

About the beginning of 1689, rumors came that the Prince of Orange was about to assert his right to the English throne; and Andros hastened back to Boston. Most of the soldiers were withdrawn from the place, and the inhabitants were left without any adequate protection.

Tidings at length came to Boston, early in April, that James Stuart had fled the realm, and that William and Mary were now King and Queen of England. The oppressive and tyrannical Andros was deposed April 18, by a spontaneous and violent uprising of the people.

"A Council of Safety," at the head of which was the venerable Simon Bradstreet, who, as Governor of Massachusetts, had been superseded by the arrival of Andros in December, 1686, and who was now eightysix years of age, was elected by a convention of the people hastily gathered, to administer a Provisional Government. This organization was sanctioned by the General Court, holden in Boston, May 22, and continued to exercise the powers of government till the arrival of Sir William Phips, with the new charter, May 14, 1692. Information of these transactions having reached Pemaquid, most of the soldiers in the fort, at this time called Fort Charles, deserted. It appears that only thirty men were left.*

Though an attack from the Indians upon Pemaguid was considered probable, and a degree of alarm was felt there and all along that coast. -Dover having been utterly destroyed, June 7, and several men killed at Saco in July,-no special measures seem to have been taken for the safety of that important post. At length, near the end of July, a war party of one hundred Indians* came in canoes from Penobscot to New Harbor, a cove about two miles East of Pemaquid Fort. Here were about twelve houses, but the inhabitants, upon the rumor of war, had deserted the place. Here the Indians left their canoes, and secreted themselves during some days. They sent scouts to observe the habits of the people at Jamestown-the name which Andros had given to the settlement-near the fort, and to learn the best mode of attack. They found that the men were generally absent during the day, leaving at their houses only the women and children. Early on the morning of the second day of August, John Starkey, a man of Pemaquid, on the way from the fort to New Harbor, fell into the hands of the Indians. To obtain his liberty, he gave the information they sought. They learned that the fort had few men in it; that no suspicion of immediate danger existed; and that Thomas Gyles, the principal inhabitant, with fourteen hired men, had that day gone up to his farm, near Pemaquid Falls, three miles distant; while the rest of the people were scattered about, each attending his daily business. The Indians, therefore, dividing themselves into several parties, fell at once upon the devoted settlement. Some posted themselves between the fort and the houses; others between the houses and the distant fields, to cut off all succor. Then, beginning with those who were furthest off, they killed or took captive the settlers as they hurried towards the town and the fort. So complete was the surprise, that very few of the town's people escaped.

À list of the garrison follows, amounting to 30 men. There was a gunner, ser-geant, corporal, drummer, and 26 privates. The names of the soldiers are chiefly outlandish ; very few being such as are common in New England.

The privates were paid sixpence per day.

Meanwhile, a party of thirty or forty Indians had gone up the river, on its Eastern bank, in quest of Mr. Gyles. They found him with his laborers and his three elder sons, Thomas, aged nineteen, James, aged fourteen, and John, aged eleven, at one of his farms, three miles above the fort. There the men had labored until noon, secure from danger as they thought; some cutting and curing the crop of English hay; the others in a field at a little distance, gathering the English harvest, of wheat, rye, or oats. 'The workmen had already dined at the farm-house, and had resumed their labor in the fields. Mr. Gyles and his sons, James and John, after dinner, tarried near the house. It was now one o'clock; and, on a sudden, the report of several cannon at the fort was perceived. Mr. Gyles said he hoped it betokened good news from Boston, and that the Council of Safety had sent soldiers to protect the settlers at Pemaquid. But, no! It was the alarm given by the weak garrison of the stealthy approach of a merciless foe! Immediately after, the Indians, from a rising ground in the near vicinity, announced their presence and their murderous purpose, by the terrific war-whoop, and a discharge of small arms at the unsuspecting party at the farm-house. The shot took effect on several of the laborers, and severely wounded Mr. Gyles himself, while his two sons vainly endeavored to escape. The Indians rushed into the fields of hay and grain, killing some with their hatchets, and taking others captive; the wounded men writhing in agony, and calling on God for mercy.

The Indians at the Falls, having done all the mischief they could, and leading James and John Gyles, and some others, as captives, now prepared to join their fellow savages in the neighborhood of the fort. Proceeding a couple of furlongs, they made a halt. Here Mr. Gyles was brought in by those who had taken him. Old Moxus, who, perhaps, had formerly known Mr. Gyles on the Kennebec, now professed to feel sorrow for what had been done, telling him that they were strange Indians who shot him. Mr. Gyles replied that he was a dying man, and desired no favor from them, save the privilege of once more praying with his children. He then, in the hearing of his sons, fervently commended them to the protection and favor of God; gave them his parting counsels, and bade them a final farewell for this life, in the earnest hope of meeting them in a better. "He parted with a cheerful voice," says his son, forty-seven years after, describing what he could never forget; "but looked very pale, by reason of his great loss of blood; which now gushed out of his shoes. The Indians led him aside!—I heard the blows of the hatehet, but neither shriek nor groan! I afterwards heard that he had five or seven shot-holes through his waisteoat or jacket, and that he was covered with some boughs."*

Such was the end of a man who never did the Indians any harm; whose constant endeavor was to serve God and promote the good of his fellow men!

The Indians led their captives towards the fort, securing themselves from its guns by going into a thick swamp, three-fourths of a mile distant therefrom. There they were joined by their fellows of the other division, who had taken captive the wife and the two young daughters of Thomas Gyles, with many others, found in the village of Jamestown. Samuel, the youngest son, who had seen only some eight or nine summers, happened to be at play near the fort, when the first onset was made by the savages, and, running in at the open gate, escaped.

Williamson, in his History of Maine, says there were but fifteen men in the fort at this time. It appears from the petition of Captain Weems to Lord Bellamont in 1700, already quoted, that he had thirty, whose names are given in full. These thirty well-trained soldiers, with seven great guns, and plenty of ammunition, behind the walls of Fort Charles, ought to have made a better defense against less than a hundred undisciplined Indians, with small arms only. The Indians, however, discharged their pieces from a rock near the fort, which completely overlooked it, and from the tops of houses in the vicinity. Lieutenant Weems, the commander, was himself severely wounded, "his face being horribly scorched with gunpowder." Resistance seemed to be vain; and on the second day the fort was surrendered on condition that all who were in the fort should depart unmolested, with what they could earry away.

The eldest son of Thomas Gyles, whose name was also Thomas, was with his father, during the forenoon of that doleful day, dined with him, and was not far off when the assault was made. But the Pemaquid River, near the falls, is easily forded; and escaping from the scene of the massacre, he hurried across the stream, and on its Western side down to the Barbican, opposite the fort, where several fishing vessels lay. He went on board one of them, and sailed that night; reached Boston in safety, and lived there many years.

But the agonized widow of Thomas Gyles, and four of their children, the eldest about fourteen, and youngest perhaps not more than four years of age, were led away into a captivity which seemed worse than death. Gladly would that weeping mother have accepted the stroke which should at once have sundered her connection, and that of those four children, with all things here below. Oh it was a sad thing for delicate women and helpless children to be carried away, without warning, from the delights of such a home, into the distant and lonely wilderness, and to find themselves in the power of men whose hearts knew no pity: "Drutish men and skilful to destroy !"

^{*} Should this volume not exceed the bounds prescribed to it, the reader may find in Appendix F large extracts from Capt. John Gyles's simple, yet affecting "Narrative," originally published in Boston, 1736.

The Indians, having set fire to the fort and the houses,-there were about twenty houses then in Jamestown,-retired to New Harbor, before mentioned; and the next day set sail in their canoes for the Penob-Tarrying eight days at "Penobscot Fort"-ah! this may explain scot. this fearful massacre! "Penobscot Fort" we take to be Castine's fortification, on the beautiful peninsula that bears his name-which rather should have been suffered to "rot," (Prov. 10:7)-where this bloodthirsty Frenchman, the son-in-law of Madokawando, resided thirty years, with several Indian wives; where he amassed a princely fortune,* by trading with the Indians, himself an Indian Sachem; and whence he excited the children of the neighboring forest to go forth in their merciless expeditions against the English settlements. The Indians who had destroyed Pemaquid, stayed with him eight days on their return; and doubtless were congratulated and feasted by him for having performed so worthy a service for Mary and the Holy Catholic Church! How long they stayed with him before their setting out, we are not informed. But very likely he planned the whole affair!

Here, at "Penobscot Fort," the mother of John Gyles was separated from her sons, and they never again met in this world. She and her two little girls were redeemed, after a captivity of several years; but she died before John returned.

The two boys, James and John Gyles, were carried far up the Penolscot River, and thence to the river St. John. A severe winter soon came on, and the Indians laid up their canoes; but they travelled on foot, still North and East, eight or ten of them, with their captives, a great part of the winter, sometimes on the frozen ground, sometimes on the ice of the river, suffering much from the cold, and from want of food; now and then killing a moose or a bear, and having a feast; then fasting till they killed another.

John was a captive and a slave to the Indians about six years, and was then sold to a French gentleman, who lived in what is now the Province of New Brunswick, on the River St. John, seventy-five miles above its mouth. His French master treated him well.

But his elder brother James—poor fellow!—having reached the age of seventeen, and tired of three years' captivity, planned an escape. It was a practice of the Indians, as now of the Southern planters,—and I will not decide which are the greater savages,—when any of their captives abscond and are retaken, to torture them cruelly, and even put them to death. James Gyles deserted with another English captive, who had been taken from Casco. They had proceeded as far as New Harbor, only two miles from James's now desolate home. There they were retaken by the Indians and carried back to "Penobscot Fort!"‡ "Here they were both tortured at a stake by fire, for some time; then their noses and ears were cut off, and they made eat to them; after this, they were burned to death at the stake; the Indians at the time declar-

Our knowledge of him is wholly derived from a manuscript now extant in New Jersey, and in the possession of Hon. Charles S. "A true account of our travels from Old England to New England in the year 1668, with the several transactions and removes in America.

"August 22nd 1668. We took our journey from the Park to Feversham, and so to London, where we staid some days, till the ship was ready, and then fell down to the Downs, where we staid two days for a wind; and the 5th of September, the wind being fair, we hoisted sail and proceeded on our voyage, but the third day after, met with a contrary wind and a storm, which forced us into Cowes in the Island of Wight; where we staid two days, and then proceeded on our voyage.*

"November the 9th we arrived at Boston in New England, having been nine weeks and two days at sea; and winter coming on so fast, as we could not look out for a place to settle, and being unwilling to winter in the town, after three weeks stay, and having refreshed ourselves after our long voyage at sea, November the 30th we went to Braintree, where we hired a house until Spring, in which time I took a voyage eastward to look out for a place to settle.[‡]

"Winter being over, the 3rd day of May 1669, we went from Braintree to Boston to get a passage eastward. May 10th we hoisted sail from Boston, and proceeded on our voyage eastward. May 17th we arrived at Merrimathing in Kennebec River, and not liking that house, the 14th of October, we removed from thence to Whidby, a house on the same river, and having lived there two years I bought a tract of land of the Indians, and having bought a house upon the same, October 31st 1671, we removed from Whidby to go into our own house; but Muddy river being frozen over, we were fain to go into James Thomas' house.§

* "We "-includes himself and wife, and what children he may have had. His wife's name was Elizabeth ; she was a second wife. See letter of Gov. Olden, following this journal. Possibly, Thomas Gyles was in his company during the passage from England to America; as he certainly came from England, with his wife, sage from England to America; as ne certainly came from England, with his wife, not far from this time. "Feversham" is in Kent; why did James Gyles take Feversham in his way? and why is Feversham mentioned at all? Was it the residence of Thomas Gyles; and was he there joined by Thomas Gyles? Mrs. Ann Chalker, who was the sister of Thomas Gyles or of his wife (being aunt to their children) lived at Canterbury in Kent, and this renders it probable that Thomas Gyles lived in that county, before coming to America. The Park here mentioned seems to have been in the parish of Challock, which lies in the Hundred of Felborough, Lathe of Scray, and County of Kent on the river Stour four miles east from Charing, and between Ashford and Kent, on the river Stour, four miles east from Charing, and between Ashford and Faversham. The Gyles family were residents in this parish, possessed considerable estates, and were also owners of land in Sheldwick, another parish, $(2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south from Faversham) as early as the reign of Richard II., 1377-1399. This family is now extinct in that place. A Park is mentioned in the parish of Challock. [Ireland's Hist. of Kent, (London, 1829,) Vol. II., p. 549.] A Lath or Lathe is a division of a County in England. Faversham, sometimes written Feversham, is a scaport and parish, nine miles west from Canterbury, and forty-seven east from London.

It is certainly a remarkable coincidence that Thomas Watkins's deed to Thomas

"April 16, 1672, we removed from thence into our own house at Muddy river, and having lived there three years and four months, the Indian war began in New England about June 1675, and in August the Indians rose at the Eastward and forced us to forsake our house and go to Samuel York's house to garrison, where we staid about a month, but the Indians growing too strong for us, killed our cattle and swine, plundered our houses; and having killed several people in Casco bay, several of our men grew faint-hearted and left us, so as we had but nine men left in garrison, and too weak to withstand so great a power of Indians if they should set upon us. About the middle of September, we were forced to forsake our garrison and go down to Rowseek house to the main garrison, where we staid about six weeks, in which time we had some skirmishes with the Indians as we were gathering our corn at Muddy river, and having killed several, the rest ran away, and came no more to tronble us all the winter.*

Gyles is dated May 8, 1669, two days before "we hoisted sail." It seems to indicate a connection between the movements of James Gyles and of Thomas Gyles. It is also worthy of remark, that while Watkins, in the deed, gives his own residence— "now living on the westerly side of Caneback river," no residence is assigned to Thomas Gyles; and the reason was, he had just arrived from Old England. "Whidby" is the same as Whisgeag. It is a creek or arm of the sea, which extends south from Merrymeeting Bay two miles into the laud. Thomas Stevens, an Indian trader, who married the widow of Thomas Watkins not long before 1674, lived on Stevens river, two miles above the turnpike bridge, on the road from Brunswick to Bath, and very near Whisgeag. Thomas Purchas lived in the same vicinity, six miles below the Falls in Brunswick. He came there in 1625, and his house was plundered by the Indians, Sept. 5, 1675. [Williamson's History of Maine, pp. 33, 47, 266, 520.

Thomas Gyles's land had Muddy River on the north, and Merrymeeting Bay on the south and east. James Thomas's land lay on the north side of Muddy River. James Gyles landed, May 17, 1669, on the south side of Merrymeeting Bay. Oct. 14, following, he removed to Whisgeag, on the same side. Two years after, he bought land on the north side of Muddy River, in Topsham, very near to the land of Thomas Gyles, but spent the winter of 1671-2 in James Thomas's house, near by.

Muddy River is an arm of the sea, (so to speak,) collateral with Merrymeeting Bay, and uniting with that bay on the northern side of the latter. At the point of confluence is an elevated headland, where Thomas Gyles built his honse. James Gyles lived in the near vicinity, and from this circumstance, as well as from their arrival at or near the same time, and coming both of them from Kent in England, there arises a strong presumption that they were brothers.

* The Indian War, commonly known as "Philip's war," commenced in the Colony of Plymouth, June 24, 1675, in the killing of ten or twelve persons at Swanzey, as they were returning from meeting. "In August, the Indians rose at the Eastward," says James Gyles. This may be true, for all summer long they had been exhibiting uncommon insolence towards the settlers. But the first act of war, committed by them in Maine, so far as I can find, was their hostile visit to the house of Thomas Purchas, on Stevens's River, in what is now Brunswick, some three or four miles from the abode of James Gyles. They killed a calf of his and several sheep, and robbed the house, but offered no personal violence to the inmates. About a week afterwards, viz., on Sept. 12, in Falmouth, they killed Thomas Wakely, an old man, his wife, his son John and his wife, and three children of the latter couple, in all seven persons; and burned the house. These were the "several persons killed in Casco Bay," the first persons in Maine slain in that war, at the news of mistance was 25 or 30 milles distant.

Samuel York was a son of Richard York of Dover, N. H. He had two brothers, Benjamin and John. Benjauin York was 23 years of age in 1678. He has descendants in Lee, Durham, &c. One of his descendants is Jasper Hazen York, "About the latter end of November, the winter setting in so violent, and the house being so full of people, as we could not endure there any longer, five families of us joining together went to Sylvenus Davis house on the westward side of the river, where we staid all the winter. Towards spring, the Indians sent down to make peace with the inhabitants; upon which we gave them a meeting at Pemaquid, and there concluded a peace with them, which continued until they had an opportunity to break it in August after. [The peace was made] about the beginning of April 1676.*

"All being at peace and quiet, I went down the river to M^r Weaswell's house which stood empty, and there planted some Indian corn and other things, intending in the fall to go up again to our own house at Muddy river, with the rest of our neighbors, if the peace had continued with the Indians; but the Providence of ALMIGHTY GOD had otherwise ordered it, for about the middle of summer, Philip being killed, and most of the chief sachems being killed and driven out of the Narraganset country, such as were left alive came away Eastward to join with these Indians, who were glad of an opportunity to play the rogue; and the ninth of August 1676, early in the morning, when no Englishman thought of any war, they came down to Rouseck, and took it, and killed and took away about fifty people, and burnt down the house and all other buildings about, killing and destroying all that came in their way; so as we were forced to fly for our lives in a canoe and leave all ever we had, and glad that we could save our lives.[†]

M. D., of South Boston. Samuel York lived on the north side of Merrymeeting Bay, in the present covenship of Topsham. His land fronted on that Bay, and was a short distance southwest of Thomas and James Gyles. Samuel York, after being driven away by the Indians, settled in Gloucester, and died there in 1718. He has descendants now living in Gloucester and Rockport.

Capt. Thomas Lake and Capt. Thomas Clark, merchants of Boston, and efficient military officers also, owned Arrowsic Island in the Kennebee or Sagadahock River, and had erected upon it a trading house and a strong fortification, called by James Gyles "the main garrison." Capt. Silvanus Davis, who then resided on the mainland on the west side of the river, was their general agent. There were abont fifty dwelling-houses on this island previous to this war. [Williamson, Vol. 1, pp. 53, 526.

* Capt. Silvanus Davis, as already stated, lived on the west side of Sagadahock River, we suppose in the present town of Phipsburg. He afterwards lived in Fahmouth. He was a man of note, and his name is often mentioned in those early times.

The peace, or rather truce, made at Pemaquid, was effected mainly by the efforts of Abraham Shurte, the excellent magistrate of that place, who had resided there fifty years, and was now about 76 years old. It is supposed that he died in 1680. The Indians, as well as whites, had great confidence in his wisdom and integrity. Some time in the spring or summer of 1676, the Indians having exhausted their powder and shot, wished to procure a supply from the English for their next winter hunt, as they said. The refusal of the English to sell them these dangerous commodities, was one prime cause of the rupture in August, 1676. Another cause was that which is stated in the Narraitve of James Gyles, viz., the advent among the Indians of Maine of some of king Philip's adherents. Several of them came before Philip's death, which took place Aug. 12, 1676. They were intensely hostile to the English.

[‡] Williamson, in his History of Maine, and Drake, in his History of Boston, represent the destruction of Arrowsic as having occurred Aug. 14, 1676. On the day before, Aug. 13, Williamson says, quoting from Hubbard, the Indians had killed Richard Hammond, Samuel Smith, and Joshna Grant, in Woolwieh, and taken sixteen captives. They landed the night following, in great silence, on Arrowsic Island, approached the fort, and waited till the sentinel retired from his post, early on

"We and the rest of Kennebee neighbours, whom God had preserved from the eruelty of the Indians, got to Damoras Cove, a fishing island about two miles from the main land, where we met the people of Shipscut, Pemaquid, and all other places thereabout, who fled thither to save their lives. We staid there a week, in which time we made several attempts into the river to see if we could get off any thing that was left behind; but all in vain, for the Indians lay in ambush and beat us off, so as we could get nothing from the main land but blows, and saw all our houses burnt and our cattle killed, and every thing ruined and destroyed, and no help like to come to us from the Bay; and we being about three hundred souls on a little island, and no meat, drink, or any thing else to relieve us, and being in a poor condition, we thought good to call a council to consult what course to take for relief; and first to consider what vessels and boats there were in the harbour, and finding there was enough to carry all the people away, the 16th day of August at night we set sail and left not one man, woman, or child behind; some for Piscataway, Salem, Boston, and other towns in the Bay, according as they had friends and relations.*

"August 18, I arrived at Boston, where we found good friends and relief, and there we staid about seven weeks; but the town being very

the morning of the 14th, when they rushed in at the gate, taking the garrison completely by surprise. Captains Lake and Davis, and others, roused from sleep, and finding resistance vain, fled by a back pa-sage, and leaping into a canoe, endeavored to reach another island. The savages pursued them, and just as the fugitives were stepping on shore, Lake was slain by a musket shot, and Davis severely wounded. Capt. Lake was an enterprising and excellent man. He was an ancestor of General Lake, who gained distinction in the Crimcan War.

James Geles was in Capt. Lake's fort, but made his escape, with perhaps ten or twelve others, by fleeing to the other end of the island, where they found cances, and escaped with their lives. The ruin of the flourishing plantation of Arrowsic was complete. It was a large and beautiful establishment; there was a mansion house, block-hones, mills, dwelling-houses, and out-buildings, fifty or more in number, which had been creeted at the cost of several thousand pounds. But all were in a few hours reduced to a heap of smouldering ruins. [Williamson's Maine, Vol. 1., pp. 53, 536.

The statement that Arrowsie was taken and bunt on the 14th of Angust, 1676, rests on the authority of Francis Card, a man who lived on Kennebee River, and was taken, with his family, by the Indiaus, the same day that Richard Harmond was killed at Woolwich. In other respects his statement corresponds with that of Gyles. He was carried to Penobscot, made his escape, came to Boston, where he made a statement of Indian ravages, which is copied by Hubbard in his Narrative of the Indian Wars. But James Gyle's recollection of the matter is as likely to be correct as that of

But James Gyles's recollection of the matter is as likely to be correct as that of Card; he was an eye witness and a sufferer in the whole transaction; and on the whole we prefer his statement. Card says the whole number of Indians who committed these devastations did not exceed eighty, for he counted them.

* The Damariscove Islands, to one of which the narrator escaped, are six in number, small in size, lying in the ocean, nine miles west of Pemaquid Point, two or three miles southwest of Damariscotta River, and a mile or two southeast of Boothbay. They were inhabited by fishermen. If we may judge from the apportionment of taxes in 1674, there was more property here than at Pemaquid; Damariscove being assessed five pounds and Pemaquid only two. Seventeen fishing boats were owned here.

The settlers at Sheepseot, Pemaqnid, &c., having notice of the massare and destruction of Woolwich and Arrowsie, waited not for the savage foe, but went on board their fishing vessels, and fled to Damariscove. Callicott, Wiswell, and others were also there, from the western side of the Kennebec. No help was to be expected from "the Buy," i.e. from Boston. full of people, and winter coming on, and no hope of returning again to our former habitation, we thought it time to look out for some other place of settlement; and consulting with several friends what course to take, I met with one at last that advised me to go westward, and also gave me a letter of commendation to Richard Brown of the town of Southold on Long Island in the Province of New York; and looking out for a passage, I met with a sloop belonging to the same town, with whom I bargained for a passage.*

"October 11, 1676, we set sail from Boston, and 26th of same month we arrived at the town of Southold at the house of Richard Brown, who received us kindly, and took us into his own house, and provided for us like a father, until we were able to shift for ourselves; the rest of the neighbours being very helpful unto us, with whom we staid one year; in which time I bonght a lot of land lying about fourteen miles westward from the place; and being desirous to be as near it as I could, October 26th 1677, we removed from Richard Brown's to Mattetock, a house that was empty and about two miles from my lot, where we staid about one year.

"November 1678, we removed to Thomas Mape's house, which was very near to my lot of land, intending to build a house upon it as soon as I possibly could; but after some improvements made upon it, I found the land very poor and barren, and no meadow to be got for my cattle, and having lived there almost a year and a half, I began to dislike the place. In the mean time, Sir Edmond Andross, then governor of New York, sent for me to come to him at the fall of the year to York to wait upon his honor at York, and he promised to give me a lot of land upon Staten Island; but winter coming on so fast, as I could not remove till Spring, and then I hired a small ketch to carry me away; and the 7th of April, 1680, we set sail from Southold for York, where we arrived the 17th day, and were kindly received by Sir Edmond Andross, who provided a place for us for the present. May 22nd we went from York to the Governor's house on Staten Island, where we staid four months. September 7, we removed to Mr. Witt's house, to look after his land, until Sir Edmond could get a lot of land laid out for me; but he being called home for England so suddenly that I could not get a good lot of land as I did expect, for I did not think it worth building a house upon it, and therefore I sold it to Captain Palmer of Staten Island, who carried me over to New Jersey to see if I could meet with a better lot of land; and meeting with a lot to my mind that was to be sold, lying upon Rariton river, I got Captain Palmer to buy it for me, which he did.

"October 14th 1681, we removed from Staten Island to Benjamin Hull's house in Piscataway, where we staid all the winter, until our own house was ready. April 6th 1682, we removed into our own house at the Bound Brook upon Rariton River in Piscataway in the East Province of New Jersey. JAMES GYLES."

^{*} Thomas Gyles, on his return from England, this same year, "began a settlement on Long Island," says the Narrative of his son, John Gyles. Here is another point of contact between 'Thomas and James Gyles. Southold is near the eastern end of the Island. It was settled from New England.

The war was not brought to a close in Maine till July, 1677. About 300 of the settlers in Maine lost their lives in it, out of a population of about 6000.

Rev. Edward Ballard of Brunswick, Maine, having made some inquiries respecting the writer of the preceding narrative, received from Gov. Olden the following reply:—

"Princeton, N. J., June 10, 1859.

"EDWARD BALLARD, ESQ.

"Dear Sir,—I regret that it is not in my power to give you much information on the subject of your inquiries about the family of Gyles, who at one time lived in the State of Maine.

"James Gyles, whose Journal you refer to, at his death left no sons, but four daughters. The eldest married, William Olden; the second, Benjamin Clarke; the third, John Worth; and the fourth, Joseph Worth. From the third, the wife of John Worth, was descended the late General Worth of the U. S. army. There is no account, that I can discover, that James Gyles had any male relations in this country, named Gyles. The wife of James Gyles, who accompanied him to Maine, and was the mother of the daughters named, was his second wife. It may be that he had sons by his first wife, who came to this country after their father, and the names you mention, it is possible, were those sons or their descendants; but I can find no evidence of such being the case. Very respectfully, yours, &c., CHARLES S. OLDEN."

On a careful consideration of the case, the compiler sees no reason to doubt that James Gyles, the writer of the foregoing narrative, was a brother of Thomas Gyles, who was killed at Pemaquid, Aug. 2, 1689. When it is considered that these two men came from England, and from the same County in England, about the same time; that they settled near each other on Merrymeeting Bay; that they both went to Long Island in 1676; that they both had interest with Gov. Andros; and that Thomas Gyles named his second son James, as it would seem after a brother of his, his third son being named for his younger brother John; the case seems not to admit of a doubt.

653.

JOHN GYLES.² He was, without any doubt, a younger brother of Thomas Gyles, Esq., of Penaquid, of whom an account is given in the preceding pages. I have met with no record, or positive statement, of the fact of such relationship; but the circumstances of the case are such as to leave no doubt of the fact.

He was born in 1653, and married MARY ———, before 1686. She was born in 1666.

A coat of arms has come down from his grandson John Gyles, and doubtless from him, almost precisely similar to one found among the descendants of Thomas Gyles. The similarity of names in the two families is also to be noted. And, what is still more to the purpose, he lived at Pemaquid, in a honse belonging to Thomas Gyles. How long he lived there we have no means of judging, only that he was there before 1686, and left there in 1689. It does not appear that he was there at 'the time of the incursion of the Indians, when Thomas Gyles was slain, for his name is not mentioned in connection with that event. He had probably left that place not long before.

He was a man of some pretensions to education, as appears from the fact that he taught school in Salem during his residence there, and also from the fact stated in the following petition:

"To Sir Edmund Andros, Knt. and Governor-in-chief in and over His Majesty's Territories and Dominions of New England," &c.

"May it please yo' Excellency. That yo' Humble Petitioner desireth a certain Tract of upland laying upon ye westward side of Pemaquid River, with sufficient meadow as can be found, not already taken up. Your Excellency's Humble Petitioner hath by order from Capt. Nickolson, ever since june last, read prayers at the Garrison on Wednesdays and fridays, and hath not received any thing for it. Your Excellency's humble Petitioner desireth one man's provision from said Garrison, and is willing to officiate still, if it so please your Excellency," etc. (Signed)

JOHN GYLES.

This petition was made in [November?] 1688. See p. 107. It was found among some of the old residents of Bristol, by Rev. Rufus King Sewall of Wiscasset, Me., and by him kindly communicated to the compiler. Mr. Sewall is the author of a volume entitled "The Ancient Dominions of Maine," Bath, 1859, which is a valuable contribution to the early history of that State, especially of the County of Lincoln.

John Gyles was not a clergyman, as some of my correspondents have supposed; he did not preach; he was not the chaplain of Fort Charles. In the absence of an official person, a man "in orders," he read prayers during a few months at the Garrison; and for this he received no pay. He would have received pay, had he been the chaplain. He did not reside in the fort, but in one of the houses in the neighboring village.

The following statement is made in a Deposition, recorded in the 17th volume of York Deeds.* "Mary Gyles, now aged about seventy years, lived with her late husband John Gyles for more than fifty years past, in a dwelling-house of Thomas Gyles, at Pemaquid." "Thomas Gyles was killed by the Indians." This deposition was taken at Boston, July 12, 1736, before Anthony Stoddard and Samuel Sewall, Justices of the Peace.

This statement makes it clear that John and Mary Gyles were married previous to 1686, when she was under twenty years of age.

John and Mary Gyles, after leaving Pemaquid, resided in Salem four or five years, where he taught school, and where his children, Sarah and John were born. The Salem Register, in recording their births, speaks of them as the children of "Mr. John Giles, schoolmaster, and Mary his wife;" thus distinguishing him from John Giles of Salem Village [36].

Perhaps the Salem and Beverly Gileses were his cousins.

He was one of the three witnesses to the will of Gyles Corey of Salem, who was executed for witchcraft in that town, Sept. 16, 1692. The will is dated April 24, 1692, and may be found in the Geneal. Reg., Vol. X., p. 32. Corey was the first and only person in New England who was ever, in pursuance of an old English law, "pressed to death," for refusing to answer to an imputed crime; "pressed to death," because he would not submit to be tried by a jury and before judges who were sure to condemn him, as they had condemned every one who had been brought before them charged with that imaginary crime.

After this, John Gyles removed to Boston, and lived there until his death. A gravestone may still be seen in the Granary Burving Ground in that city, with this inscription: "Here lyes buried the body of Mr. John Gyles, aged 77. Decd. Aug. 29, 1730." The stone adjacent is that of his eldest daughter,-" Sarah, wife of Thomas Shaw, died Dec. 11, 1741, in 51st year. John Shaw, son of Thomas and Sarah Shaw, dee^d. Jan. 5, 1736, in 20th year."

His escape from the merciless savages, who killed his father, and earried captive his father's family, Aug. 2, 1689, has already been related. He came from that melancholy seene directly to Boston, where he appears to have spent the remainder of his life. In 1727 he was a "ferryman;" in 1730 a "retailer." He seems to have lived in Fish Street, a section of the present North Street, which extended from Cross Street northwardly.

"Cous. Tho. Gyles,

I received yot letters by Mr. George Long, and also one by another hand. I was sorry that Mr. Long could not help you, but I am very glad to hear it is something better with you all than it hath been. You did desire me to send you what I design you in English Goods, which I should have done but had not the opportunity of huying them at the best hand, and silks are very dear here, we'h makes me think you could not make return to answer what they will cost here, and as for fine linnen, it is the same. So I thought it best to send it in money. I have sent five & twenty pound in English morey. I do intend you Five pound & to ever one of yot brothers & sisters five pounds apiece. I think y' there is five of you in all, and would desire you to take eare y' they may have it when it will do y^m y' most good. as for yot brother Samuel I think his ought to be keep and improve some way for bim til he is out of his time; but must wave it to yon, hoping you will have the same care for them as you have had. From yot loving Aunt ANN CHALKER. "You may direct yot letter to me in St Alphage lane in Canterbury, in Kent."

The foregoing was addressed thus :-- "This for Mr Thomas Gyles, to be left at the Salutation in Boston, in New Engla."

"The Salutation," was a noted house of entertainment, at the corner of Salutation Alley and Ship Street [now the north part of North Street]. It was so named from a sign of much elegance at that day, which represented the meeting of two gentlemen, dressed in the height of fashion, with small elothes, and cocked hats, and in the act of shaking hands. [Drake's Hist. of Boston, p. 816.

Thomas Gyles desired Mrs. Chalker to "send what she designed to give in English goods," that by the sale of the goods in Boston a larger benefaction might be obtained from his aput than the sum she paid for the goods in England.

The foregoing letter was brought from England by Mr. George Long, who also brought a box with money in it, directed to Thomas Gyles. Mr. Long writes from Portsmouth, N. H., dated July 24, 1700, to Thomas Gyles, giving notice of the same, and enclosing the letter. In his letter, Mr. Long speaks of having seen "Madam Chalker" just before his leaving England. Nothing is said of her husband. Probably he was dead. Mrs. Chalker was doubtless the sister of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid, or of his wife. Capt. John Gyles represents his mother as saying to him when in the hands of the Indians, and on the way to Penobscot, "O my child! how joyful and pleasant it would be, if we were going to Old England, to see your nucle Chalker and other friends there!" Perhaps Mr. Chalker was brother to John Gyles's mother. It appears, from a deposition of John Gyles, taken at Boston, Aug. 22, 1700, before Elisha Hutchinson, Justice of the Peace, that the mony sent by "Madam Chalker" did not reach those for whom it was intended. George Long, who was second mate of a ship from England, then lying in Portsmouth harbor, had placed the box containing the money in his chest, but when he went to his chest to obtain the money to deliver it to John Gyles (who went to Portsmouth for the same) it was not there. Long said it must have been taken out by somebody, when the key was in the chest. [Mass. Archives, 8 : 91.

when the key was in the chest. [Mass. Archives, 8: 9]. Jonathan Bill of Pullen Point had two daughters, Martha, the wife of Thomas Gyles, "retailer," and Mary, the wife of Thomas Waite of Boston, "taylor." These parties made an agreement, Aug. 24, 1730, in regard to a dwelling-house, land, and shops, situate on Fish Street, which had been the property of Jonathan Bill, and which Gyles and Waite now divide between them. His captivity by the Indians has already been mentioned. He was kindly treated by his French master, who kept a store, and had a large trade with the Indians. Like Joseph of old, he was faithful to his master, and gained his confidence and that of his family. In the year 1697, John Gyles says,-but Williamson places the event in October, 1696,-an expedition from Boston, consisting of the Arundel, the Province galley, and a transport, with a body of troops on board, under Col. Hawthorne, one of the Council of Massachusetts, ascended the River St. John, with intent to drive Villebon, governor of Acadia, [Nova Scotia,] from his fort, which was 100 miles from the sea. Gyles might now have escaped; but his master being absent in France, his mistress, reminding him of the kindness he had received from them, appealed successfully to his gratitude and sense of honor. He remained with her, and was the means of saving her property from plunder and destruction by the invaders. His mistress promised that if he would stay with her and help her save her family and property, he should have his liberty after his master's return, on the first opportunity of a passage to Boston. Accordingly, in the year 1698, peace being proclaimed, a sloop came to the mouth of the river, with ransom for one Michael Coombs, and Gyles put monsieur in mind of his word. On the 13th June, Gyles took leave of his French master, the sloop sailed for Boston, and Gyles arrived there on the night of the 19th. "On the morning after my arrival, a youth came on board, and asked many questions relating to my captivity, and at length gave me to understand that he was my little brother [Samuel], who was at play with some other children at Pemaquid, when I was taken captive, and who escaped into the fort at that perilous time. He told me my elder brother, who made his escape from the farm, when it was taken, and our two little sisters, were alive, but that our mother had been dead some years. Then we went on shore, and saw our elder brother.

"On the second of August, 1689, I was taken, and on the nineteenth of June, 1698, I arrived at Boston; so that I was absent eight years, ten months, and seventeen days. In all which time, though I underwent extreme difficulties, yet I saw much of God's goodness."*

His long residence among the French and Indians, and consequent intimate acquaintance with their customs and languages, qualified him in an eminent degree for the work of an interpreter. Accordingly, he speedily found employment in this capacity. He says:

"After my return out of captivity, I applied, June 28, 1698, to the government for their favor. Soon after, I was employed by old father Mitchell, of Malden, to go as his interpreter on trading account to St. John's river.

"October 14, 1698. I was employed by the Government, Lieut. Gov. Stoughton commander-in-chief, to go as interpreter, at three pounds per month, with Major Converse and old Capt. Alden to Penoloscot to fetch captives. After our return to Boston, I was dismissed; but within a few days the Governor sent for me to interpret a conference with Bomazeen and other Indians then in jail.[‡]

* Mr. Jacob Stone of Newburyport, a descendant of Capt. John Gyles, has in his possession a cup, carved from some hard wood, which he brought from his Indian captivity. It is mounted with silver, with the date and term of his captivity inscribed upon it, as follows: "This cup was brought by John Gyles from among the Indians, in Jane, 1698, after 8 years, 10 months, and 17 days of his captivity." Mr. Stone once had a cup or bowl, also brought from the Indian captivity, considerably larger, which he deposited in a Museum in Newburyport; but the Museum was sold and carried out of town, beyond his knowledge. A beautiful and massive gold ring, with an inscription, once worn by Capt. John Gyles, also descended to Mr. Stone's mother, his great-grand-daughter; who, on a certain occasion, after hearing an impressive discourse on Foreign Missions, suffered her pious zeal to overpower her veneration for antiquity, and happening to be at the time without money, deposited the precious jewel in the contribution-box, and when it was too late, tried in vaiu to redeem it.

Capt. John Alden was son of JOHN ALDEN,¹ the Pilgrim of the Mayflower. He lived, after 1659, in Boston, on Alden's Lane, now Alden Street. He com"Some time after, I was again put in pay to go as interpreter with Col. Phillips and Capt. Southack, in the Province galley, to Casco Bay, to exchange said Indians for English captives. In December, 1698, we returned to Boston, with several captives whom we had liberated, and I was dismissed the service, and desired to attend it in the spring [following]. I pleaded to be kept in pay, that I might have wherewith to support myself at school. I went into the country, to Rowley, where boarding was cheap, to practise what little I had attained at school.

"March, 1699, with the little of my wages that I could reserve, I paid for my schooling and board, and attended the service upon request, and was again put into pay, and went with Col. Phillips and Maj. Converse in a large brigantine up Kennebec river for captives. At our return to Boston, the Province galley being arrived from New York, with my lord Bellamont, and the Province truck put on board, I was ordered on board. We cruised on the eastern shore. In November, 1699, I was put out of pay, though I pleaded to be continued in it, seeing I must attend the service in the spring, and be at considerable expense in the winter for my schooling."

"In the spring of 1700, I attended the service, and was under pay again. Aug. 27, a fort was ordered to be built at Casco Bay, which was finished the 6th of October following, and the province truck landed, and I was ordered to reside there as interpreter, with a captain, &c. Not long after, Gov. Dudley sent me a lientenant's commission, with a memorandum on its back, 'No further pay but as interpreter at three pounds per month.'t

* Richard Coote, earl of Bellamont, arrived in Boston from New York, May 26, 1699. He was one of the first who embraced, in England, the cause of the Prince of Orange, in 1688. He was Governor, not only of Massachusetts, but of New Hampshire, and New York. He was very popular as a governor, and died in New York, March 5, 1700-1. [Drake's History of Boston, pp. 516-518.

In this and the preceding paragraphs, the "province-truck" is mentioned. The explanation is this. To detach the Indians from the interest of the French, and to attach them to the English, the Government of Massachusetts established trading-houses among the Eastern Indians, where commodities, such as the Indians needed, were exchanged for their furs and peltry. These were called truck-houses, and those who had charge of them were ealled truck-musters. Three of these truck-houses were established about 1725, one at the fort on St. George's river, now Thomaston, one at Fort Richmond, in the present town of that name, on the Kennebec ; and one at Fort Mary, in Saco. It appears from John Gyles's Narrative that this system, to some extent, had been inangurated as early as 1699.

Bomazeen was a Sagamore of the Canihas or Kennebecks, whose residence was at Norridgewock. He was a prime actor in the savage assault on Oyster River, now Durham, N. H., July 18, 1694; also on Groton, Kittery, and other places. Coming, with two others, to Pemaquid, Nov. 19, 1694, he was seized by Capt. March, the commander of the fort, and sent to Boston, where he was confined in prison more than four years. He came to Pemaquid under a flag of truce, and Capt. March has been censured for his seizure. But the flag of truce was a mere trick, and Bonazeen came only as a spy. The Indians were notroious liars as well as mereiless savages. Certainly we need not waste our sympathy on such as Bomazeen, the murderer of helpless women and children. He was sent to Casco in the Province galley, and was exchanged in Dec. 1698, as stated in the next paragraph. At the same time and place, peace was made with the Eastern Sagamores, by Col. Phillips and Major Converse, who were commissioners to treat with the Indians. Williamson gives Jan. 7, 1699, as the date.

"Aug. 10, 1703. The French and Indians besieged our fort for six days."* [The fort was relieved on the 16th by the arrival of the Province galley under the command of Capt. Cyprian Southack.]

Between this date and the next he was married.

"May 19, 1704. I received a few lines from his excellency, directing me to leave my post, and accompany Col. Church on an expedition round the Bay of Fundy. September following, I returned to my post. [Pay the same as before, three pounds per month.]‡

"April, 1706. There was a change of the chief officer at our garrison. [Casco.] I chose to be dismissed with my old officer [Major John March of Salisbury], which was granted."

After this, he spent several months in Salisbury, the residence of his wife; bought a dwelling-house there, and three-fourths of a saw-mill.

"The same year, 1706, His Excellency Gov. Dudley presented me with a captain's commission, and ordered Col. Saltonstall to detach fifty effective men to be delivered to me in order for a march.§

"May 1707, I entered on an expedition under Col. March, for Port Royal; at the termination of which I was dismissed.

"In 1709, I received a commission, and Col. Noyes had orders to detach forty men, whom he put under me, with orders to join the forces for Canada. At Hull, August 1, 1709, I received orders from His Excellency to leave my company with my licutenants, and go to Port Royal with a flag of truce to exchange prisoners. I brought away above one hundred prisoners. Soon after my return, our forces were dismissed, and I received no other consideration for my service than pay as captain of my company."

In the interval between 1709 and 1715, he resided in Salisbury, and was an "innholder" there.

Benjamin Church, the conqueror of Philip, sailed from Boston, May 21, 1704, with 550 men, in fourteen transports, under convoy of the Jersey, of 48 gnns, Gosport of 32 gnns, and the Province galley. They visited Matinicus, Monut Desert, Penobseot, Machias, Passamaquoddy, &c. March sailed from Nantasket, May 13, with a force of 1000 men, in 23 transports; arrived at Port Royal on the 26th, and disembarked his men; but after a skirmish with the enemy, withdrew, June 7, in a disorderly manner, having accomplished nothing. March was sent back, with his forces, to Port Royal, in August, by Gov. Dudley, but all in vain. Port Royal and all Acadia were taken by Nicholson in Sept. 1710. It has ever since been in the possession of the English. "August 1715. I received orders from His Excellency to build a fort at Pejepscot, [now Brunswick, Me.].... The fort was finished Nov. 25, 1715. My wages were very small, yet the proprietors ordered me only five pounds for my good services." [While building the fort, which stood near where the bridge now is, between Brunswick and Topsham, he had some trouble with the Indians, who regarded the fort as intended to restrain and overawe them.]

"July 12, 1722. A number of Indians engaged Fort George [at Brunswick] about two hours, killing one person, and then drew off to killing cattle, &c. [The "village" of Brunswick, which, having been destroyed by the Indians in 1676 and 1690, had been resumed in 1714, was now again reduced to ashes.]

"Dec. 13, 1725. I was commissioned for the garrison at St. George river."

* The Pejepscot Proprietors. The Pejepscot purchase began with Richard Wharton, a merchant of Boston, who, in 1684, bought a large tract of land of Warunbee and five other Indian Sagamores on both sides of the Pejepscot river. Wharton died in 1714, and this purchase was sold by bis administrator for only one hundred pounds, to a company, consisting of Adam Winthrop, (great-grandson of the first Governor Winthrop,) Thomas Hutchinson, (father of Governor Hutchinson,) Dr. Oliver Noyes, Stephen Minot, John Ruck, Edward Watts, Jonathan Mountfort, and two others, all of them, it is believed, wealthy men of Boston.

The Pcjepsoot Proprietors claimed from a point five miles above what are now known as Lewiston Falls, northeast, over to Kennebec river, and from said Falls west four miles, all the land south of this line down to Merrymeeting Bay; likewise the lands south of said Bay, between it and the ocean. This claim included the towns of Brunswick, Harpswell, Topsham, Lewiston, Bowdoin, Bowdoinham, Richmond, Lisbon, Poland, Durham, Danville, and several others. A modest claim, surely! Fort George was erected within their limits, and upon their petition, in 1715. Capt. John Gyles had command of this fort, built by him, at Brunswick, from this time till Dec. 12, 1725. He seems to have been a vigilant and faithful officer. Many letters from him to the Governor of Massachusetts Bay, are preserved among the Massachusetts Archives. He apprises the Governor, from time to time, of the intrigues of Vaudrenil, the French Governor of Canada, with the Eastern Indians, and generally with what was taking place among them. His Muster Rolls are also there. From a Muster Roll, dated Jan. 1723, we learn that he had Isaac Gardner as his lieutenant, and 28 men. His Muster Roll, June 1724, gives, as bis lieutenant, Samuel Eaton of Salhsbury, and 24 men. The private men are called centinels. Capt. Gyles's pay was thirty shillings per week. The lieutenants' pay eleven shillings and three pence. See Mass. Archives, Vol. 51. ‡ Two strong block-honese, or timber-forts, had been erected, 1719, 1720, on the \ddagger Two strong block-honses, or timber-forts, had been erected, 1719, 1720, on the eastern edge of St. George's River. Here were mounted 12 or 15 pieces of cannon. A colony of Scotch-Irish, i. e. Irish protestants of Scottish descent, having been, in 1736, settled in the "Upper and Lower towns," on St. George's River, or the present towns of Warren and Thomaston; and it being a time of profound peace; the forts on St. George's River, Pemaquid, and other places, were to some extent dismantled, and the garrisons chiefly withdrawn.‡ Capt. Gyles, being then on the verge of sixty, accordingly retired from the military service, in June, 1737, and took up his residence at Roxbury, near Boston, among the connections of his wife, where he died in 1755, a. 77.

He was a man of stern, unbending virtue; a true patriot, and a sincere christian; upright in the discharge of duty, both to God and man. He served his country faithfully on a dangerous frontier, and was just and kind, yet ever vigilant, in his transactions with the aborigines.§ He was a man of energy and activity, and became possessed of considerable property, as appears from his will, and from many deeds on record. Some of these will now be quoted.

It was chiefly by him that these Colonists were introduced, as also the German Colony at Broad Bay, now Waldoborough, in 1740, and afterwards. From him the County of Waldo derived its name. The fort at St. George's [Thomaston] was not wholly given up, but was strengthened and enlarged in 1740, and in subsequent years. The fact was similar with Fort Frederick, Pemaquid.

The currency was now so depreciated that it required 28 shillings to be equal to an ounce of silver. The price paid by John Gyles as above, was therefore equal to about 555 Spanish dollars; which would probably purchase as good an estate as 2500 dollars would at the present time.

Mr. Eliot's meetinghouse [the New North, corner of Hanover and Clark Streets] was presented, Dec. 30, 1757, by Edward Giles, "surviving executor." [Suff. Prob. 52 : 439.

Doctor SAMUEL GYLES,⁴ (John,³ Thomas,² Thomas,¹) only son of Capt. John Gyles, the Indian captive; b. in Salisbury, on the Merrimac, June 30, 1706; m. there, July 2, 1734, ELIZABETH TRUE of that place; perhaps his cousin. Married by Rev. Caleb Cushing.

Family tradition affirms that, while a member of Harvard College, "he was a room-mate of Judge Cushing of Salisbury, an ancestor of Hon. Caleb Cushing," and a son of Rev. Caleb Cushing, who was pastor of Salisbury 54 years. Unfortunately, I do not find the name of either on the Triennial Catalogue of that College, so that if either or both of them were members of that institution, the connection ceased without taking a degree.

He was a physician at Salisbury, and probably also in Brunswick, Me. He died in Brunswick, Feb. 11, 1738–9, in his 33d year. His grave-stone is still standing in Brunswick, with this inscription :

> "Here lyes buried the body of Doc. Samuel Gyles, aged 32 years. Dec^d Feb^y y^c 11th 1 7 3 8."

He died intestate; at least, there is no will on record. The inventory of his estate is dated July 31, 1739, and it represents him as "late of Salisbury, deceas⁴." [Essex Prob. 24:53.] He probably, therefore, did not reside in Brunswick, though buried there; or if he did, had not been there long. His widow Elizabeth, then of Newbury, m. Capt. William Allen of Salisbury, Oct. 10, 1745, and d. May 23, 1787, a. 73.

His grand-daughter, Mrs. Brown, who died in 1858, a. 90, had a mourning ring, commemorating his death; with an inscription, agreeing with the inscription on the grave-stone. In the summer of 1853, the city of Newburyport employed some laborers to grade a street in the south part of said city, which was laid out about forty years before through a field once owned by his son-in-law, Capt. Jonathan Parsons. One of these laborers, in turning over the soil, picked up a silver shoebuckle, marked SAMUEL GYLES. The inscription was perfect, and the buckle in perfect order. Mr. Samuel Mulliken, husband of his granddau. Phebe Parsons, then lived on the corner of the street, and he purchased the buckle of the finder.

The children of Dr. Samuel and Elizabeth Gyles, both born in Salisbury, were-

MARY GYLES,⁴ (John,⁵ Thomas,² Thomas,¹) dau. of Capt. John Gyles, the Indian captive; b. in Boston, May 11, 1724; m. at Roxbury, June 18, 1746, NATHANEL LORING, b. in Boston, June 11, 1713, son of Capt. Nathaniel Loring, who m. Susanna Butler of Boston, Dec. 13, 1699, and was one of the founders of the New Brick Church, Nov. 14, 1719, and chairman of the building committee.*

She was his second wife. His first wife, to whom he was married June 7, 1739, was Mary Gray, dau. of Edward Gray, who was the owner of the ropewalks where occurred the affray in which originated the "Boston Massacre."[‡] By her, he had Susanna, b. March 4, 1742, who became non compos mentis, and was, after the decease of her father, under guardianship until her death in 1813, when the large estate passed to the Gray family.

Mr. Loring, it is said, kept a store on Queen [now Court] Street, Boston. In 1750, he was on the Grand Jury. He was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1758, and was one of the substantial citizens of Boston; officiating on the Committee of Public School Visitations during several years prior to 1767. He was one of the subscribers to Prince's "New England Chronology," a work

[‡] For the information given above respecting Nathaniel Loring, I am indebted to Mr. James S. Loriug, in Geneal. Reg. Vol. VII., pp. 163, 164. It is proper here to remark that Drake, Ilist. of Boston, p. 778, represents the "affrav," March 3, 1770, as having occurred at the ropewalk of Mr. John Gray, Atkinson Street.

^{*} The New Brick Church was formed by a secession from the New North Church—itself formed only five years before, in 1714—on occasion of a determined opposition made to the settlement of Rev. Peter Thacher as colleague with Rev. John Webb. The minority in the New North withdrew and constituted the New Brick. They erceted a house of worship in Hanover Street, not far from the New North. It may easily be distinguished from all others by the figure of a Cock as a vane upon the steeple, originally placed there in derision of Rev. Peter Thacher. The Church was organized May 23, 1722, and on the same day Rev. William Waldron, b. 1697, son of Col. Richard of Portsmouth, N. H., and grandson of Major Richard Waldron the Joper (Killed by Indians, June 27, 1689) was ordained its pastor. If ed. Sept. 20, 1727. Rev. William Welsteed was ordained his successor, March 27, 1728. He d. Sept. 20, 1753, a. 58, and was succeded by Rev. Ebenezer Pemberton, D. D., who d. Sept. 15, 1777, a. 72. The New Brick Church and Society was nuited in 1777, with the Second Church Square, had been pulled down and used for fuel by the British in 1775. [Drake's Hist. of Boston, pp. 311, 545, 558.]

of great value, the first volume of which was issued in 1736. The List of Subscribers is supposed to include, in great part, the reading public of New England at that period. He was the guardian of his dau. Hannah, for property bequeathed by her mother's uncle, Joseph Heath of Roxbury, who gave her mother five hundred acres of land in Shrewsbury.* Mr. Loring died in 1770.

A silver tea-pot and sugar-bowl are still in existence, which belonged to Mrs. Loring, and were a present to her from her father. On one side are engraven the arms of the Gyles family, and under them the following inscription :--- "Mary Loring-the gift of her father, John Gyles, Esq. 1728." These were, in 1854, in the possession of her grand-niece, Mrs. Mary Loring Brown, of Hallowell, Me. See pp. 131, 140. Mrs. Brown also had, at that time, a portrait of Mrs. Loring, in very good condition, representing a handsome woman; the dress, though a century old, quite becoming, and not unlike that of the present day. Mrs. Brown likewise had portraits of Mrs. Loring's daughters taken at an early age. All these relics are now (1862) in the possession of Miss Lucia P., dau. of Mrs. Mary Loring Brown [764].

The children of Nathaniel and Mary (Gyles) Loring, were-

EDWARD GYLES,⁴ (Charles,³ John,² Thomas,¹) eldest son of Charles³ and Mary (Cruft) Gyles of Boston; b. there, May 23, 1718; m. 1. ELIZABETH HOLLAND of Boston, June 28, 1743. 2. ABIGAIL (HARTT) TREAT, b. 1727, dau. of Ralph Hartt of Boston, and widow of Capt. John Treat.[‡] Her children by John Treat were Abigail, b.

* Capt. Joseph Heath, b. Nov. 29, 1690, (see p. 122, note,) was of Roxbury, and was commandaut of Fort Richmond on the Kennebec, 1724-7, and probably a Ionger period of time. He was an experienced surveyor and draftsman. ‡ John Treat was a Captain in the "Old French War," and was killed at the taking of Louisburg in 1758. He was a son or grandson of Rev. SAUGEL TREAT of Eastham, Cape Cod. If a son, he was b. May 17, 1693. But probably he was a grandson. Rev. Samuel Treat was the eldest of twenty-one children of ROBERT TREAT, who was a distinguished officer in "Philip's War," and Governor of Connecticut from 1683 to 1697, except when the charter was suspended by the Connecticut from 1633 to 1697, except when the charter was suspended by the usurpation of Andros, which was from October 31, 1687, to May 9, 1689. Rev. Samuel Treat was b. in Milford, Ct., in 1647 or 1648; grad. H. C. 1669; ord. pastor at Eastham, 1672; m. 1. March 16, 1674, Elizabeth Mavo, b. 1653, dau. of Samuel, and grand-dau. of B2v. Dec. 20, 1746. Mr. Treat d. March 18, 1716-17, ne. 69, at the time of the 'Great Snow,'' when the snow fell six feet deep. He was a faithful and earnest preacher of the gospel, both to the white people, and to the Indians who lived near him. He gathered a church among the Indians, and many of them were worthy members of it. They loved among the Indians, and many of them were worthy members of it. They loved and respected him as a father, and at his funeral bore his body to the grave. In 1693, within the limits of Eastham, then including Orleans, Brewster, Harwich, Wellfleet, Truro, and Provincetown, there were 505 Indians. He acquired their language, so as both to speak and write it with great facility. He was a strict Calvinist, an eminently holy and useful man. He was the father of thirteen children, whose names may be found in the Geneal, Reg. Vol. VII., p. 347. His dau. Eunice was mother of Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and grandmother, I believe, of Robert Treat Paine, the poet.

Dec. 29, 1747, m. Elias Parkman; Samuel, b. 1750. Of this Samuel Treat, we shall hear more soon. See below, and [782].

Edward Gyles spent his life in Boston, and was by occupation a painter. He appears to have been a man of energetic character, and to have held a respectable position in society. His will is dated Dec. 28, 1778; proved, Aug. 9, 1785; recorded, Suff. Prob. 84: 240. He gives to his wife Abigail the use and improvement of all my estate, both real and personal, so long as she continues my widow. Provides for son Robert and dau. Abigail, who are now under age. They are each to have one half of the property, after their mother has done with it. To my eldest son, Edward Gyles, I give the sum of five shillings and no more, and the reason for my so doing is best known to myself. To my dau. Elizabeth D. St Prey, formerly Elizabeth Gyles, I give one silver can. This, with what I gave her at and before her marriage, is in full for her portion. Wife Abigail is appointed Executrix.

Edward Gyles died July 18, 1785, a. 67. His widow Abigail died May 10, 1790, a. 63.

The Inventory of Edward Gyles, painter, is dated Oct. 27, 1785. Amount, £380.5.9, equivalent to 1267 dollars. This includes a brick house and land on a passage way leading from Charter Street, £150= 500 dollars; also, 99 ounces of silver plate, at one dollar per ounce. [Suff. Prob. 84 : 336.

1790, July 13. Abigail Gyles, widow of Edward Gyles, having deceased, Thomas May of Boston, merchant, is appointed administrator de bonis non of the estate of said Edward, and Samuel Treat, administrator of said Abigail. [Ibid, 89:244, 246.

On settling the estate of Mrs. Abigail Gyles, it was found that after paying debts and expenses, sixty pounds-two hundred dollars-remained; which sum was equally divided between her daughters Abigail Parkman (by first marriage) Abigail May (by second marriage) and son Samuel Treat.

JOHN GYLES,⁴ (Charles,³ John,² Thomas,¹) brother of the preeeding; b. in Boston, Aug, 29, 1725; m. MARY MAVERICK, dau of John Maverick. She was a descendant, it is believed, of Samuel Maverick, b. about 1602, the original possessor and inhabitant of Noddle's Island [now East Boston], whom Winthrop and his company found already settled there in 1630.*

He resided in Boston, and was a dealer in fancy goods. He died of camp-fever, contracted from the barracks of the British troops, who were at that time quartered near the place of his residence, shortly before Boston was declared by General Gage to be in a state of siege. the liberties of the country. The Commissioners arrived in Boston, in July, 1664. Some have supposed that Samuel Maverick was a son of Rev. John Maverick, who came to New England in the Mary and John in 1630, and, with Rev. John Warham as colleague, was the first minister of Dorchester. But this statement is wholly discredited by Palfrey, in his History of New England. Rev. John Maverick d. Feb. 3, 1636-7, being about 60 years of age.

HANNAH GYLES,⁵ (Samuel,⁴ John,³ Thomas,² Thomas,¹) only dau. of Doctor Samuel Gyles4 of Salisbury; b. there, May 25, 1738; m. Aug. 26, 1756, Capt. JONATHAN PARSONS,4 b. at Lyme, Ct., April 25, 1735, son of Rev. Jonathan Parsons,3 formerly of Lyme, and then of Newburyport.*

He was at first a goldsmith; but soon exchanged that occupation for the more exciting scenes of the sea. He speedily rose to the position of master-mariner; and for temperance, sobriety, integrity and truth, as well as for courage and skill, was a fit model for imitation by his seafaring brethren. After a long season of spiritual darkness and distress-continuing eight years-the SUN OF RIGHTEOUSNESS shone brightly into his heart ; and he joined in full communion with the First Presbyterian Church in Newburyport, Nov. 4, 1772. He carried his religion into all his conduct; had prayers daily on board of his vessel,

* Rev. JONATHAN PARSONS³ was b. at West Springfield, Nov. 30, 1705; son of Ebenezer Parsons,2 b. Nov. 17, 1668, who was son of BENJAMIN PARSONS,1 one of the first settlers of Springfield.

He grad. Yale Coll. 1729; studied divinity with Rev. Elisha Williams, President of Yale College, and with that eminent theologian, Rev. Jonathan Edwards of Northampton; was ordained pastor at Lyme, Ct., March 17, 1730-1; dismissed, Oct. 1745; came to Newbury the following month, being invited thither by the advice of Whitefield; removed his family to Newburyport, March, 1746, and took charge of the First Presbyterian Church there, which had been formed on the third of January preceding, and which the revival had called into existence. He was an eminently devoted, faithful, and useful minister;* one who lived near to God, and had much of the influence of His Holy Spirit; a decided and distinguished friend of the Great Revival in 1740-3, and of the illustrions Whitefield.‡ The great evangelist, just named, died at his house on the morning of the Sabbath, Sept. 30, 1770, and was buried, according to his own desire, in front of his pulpit, where the precious and was build, according to most attract, died July 19, 1776, a. 71, and was buried by his side. He was twice married—1. to Phebe, dau. of John Griswold of Lyme, Ct., and sister of Gov. Matthew Griswold. She was a woman of superior anderstanding, and of eminent piety. She d. Dec. 26, 1770. 2. Mrs. Lydia Clarkson, son, widow of Andrew Clarkson, Esq., of Portsmouth, N. H. She d. April 30, 1778. Rev. Jonathan and Phebe Parsons were parents of Samuel Holden Parsons, b. May 14, 1737, a Major General in the Army of the Revolution, a brave and distinguished officer.

Rev. Jonathan Parsons was the author of several oceasional sermons, originally issued in pamphlet form. Two volumes of his sermons, sixty in number, were printed in Newbaryport, in 1781, by John Mycall, the husband of his grand-dan. Elizabeth Parsons [728]. For a Memoir of this eminent servant of Christ, see Rev. Dr. Sprague's Annals of the American Pulpit, Vol. III., pp. 47-52. See also, American Quarterly Register, Vol. XIV., p. 109, &c. See also, an Account of the Parsons Family, in Geneal, Reg., Vol. 1, p. 363, &c. which all were required to attend; and ever made DUTY his guiding star. He sometimes read the Bible through, in a single voyage; and made it the rule of his daily life. He was strict in his observance of the Sabbath; on that day he would never sail out of port; and never would buy or sell till the day was over. No fraud was ever suspected where his word was given. He was sympathizing in distress, and his hand was never slack in relieving affliction.

His voyages were chiefly to the West Indies. His last voyage was made in the schooner Bee. She sailed from Newburyport to Point-à-Petre, Guadaloupe; thence to Turk's Island; thence to Port-au-Prince, St. Doningo; thence homeward to the place first mentioned. On the passage from Point-à-Petre, he was attacked with a malignant fever, occasioned by daily attendance on an American captain there who died of that complaint; and died at sea, after an illness of nine days, on the evening of December 29, 1784, a. 50.

Rev. John Murray, his minister, and the successor of his father in the pastoral office, preached a sermon in commemoration of his virtues, Feb. 27, 1785, which was printed at the request of the Marine Society. The text was the very appropriate passage in Heb. 6:19, "Which hope we have as an ANCHOR of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the vail." The discourse was a curious and ingenious performance, and very characteristic of the earnest, eloqent preacher. A copy of it, furnished to me through the kindness of Mr. Jacob Stone, a grandson of Capt. Parsons, has supplied some of the materials for this notice.

It appears from the sermon, that Capt. Parsons had also seen service in the army; he had "braved the dangers of the field" in his country's cause; taken by the enemy on the high seas, he had stood firm and undismayed before his captor, an admiral of high rank, pleading resolutely against insolence, injustice, and outrage, and to his firmness on such an occasion, his owners were indebted for the restoration of their property, and his crew for the saving of their lives. The special circumstances are not given.

After his death, his widow Hannah m. Col. Stephen Cross of Newburyport.* He was postmaster there.

The children of Capt. Jonathan and Hannah (Gyles) Parsons, were-

727. Samuel Gyles, b. 1757; drowned at the age of twelve in Merrimac River. Tradition says he was pushed off the wharf by a schoolmate, in wanton mischief.

⁺ t His grave-stone has the following, as a part of the inscription upon it : "Quis puer, quoad mores et sapientiam celestem morietur, etsi esset centum annorum." The Latin is difficult, but it may mean that the deceased, if truly virtuous and prepared for heaven, did not die prematurely.

^{*} The father and grandfather of Mrs. Hannah (Gyles) Parsons were men of handsome property; but in consequence of a connection with some obnoxious tory, the family estates were, during the Revolutionary War, confiscated. After the establishment of our Independence, Capt. Parsons, her husband, made efforts to recover them, and nearly succeeded. There was a majority of only one in the legislature against the petition, and that one was the abovenamed Col. Cross, the member from Newburyport. Could he have foreseen his own marriage with the widow of Capt. Parsons, his vote might have been given the other way, and the property been saved.

The brig touched at the Sandwich Islands, and brought home Mr. Daniel Chamberlain, wife, and six children, who went out as missionaries in 1819. Capt Chandler was lost at sea, 1827. His dan, Elizabeth Parsons (Chandler), b. 1825, m. Isaac A. Hatch, of Bangor, now a drygoods merchant in Boston. She was very amiable, and all who knew her loved her. She had a taste for literature, and was a frequent contributor to newspapers and magazines. Above all, she was a devont Christian. She d. 1857, a. 32.

2, John Myeall, a native of Worcester, England, b. 1757, d. June 1, 1840, a. 83. He came to this country in 1775; for some time taught school at Amesbury; was a printer, and the Editor and Publisher of the Essex Journal and New Hampshire General Advertiser, a newspaper, printed at Newburyport, from about 1780 to 1790. He was also a bookpublisher. He afterwards resided at Harvard and Cambridge; but died in Newburyport. He was generally called Master Mycall, from having been a teacher. He had a personal acquaintance with Isaiah Thomas, the father of American printing; also with Benjamin Franklin. His acquaintance with the latter resulted from an extensive knowledge of Electricity, which gave him opportunity, at times, to indulge in some severe practical jokes. He had an inexhaustible vein of humor, which he often gratified at the expense of others. He once published in his paper the death of a mechanic, who had promised to repair his chaise on a certain day, "if he was alive"; and failed of so doing. He was a great word-eatcher, and caviller at inaccuracies in conversation. He was fond of anecdotes, and many anecdotes might now be related of him. But he was a man of good education, a proficient in science, and fond of music. He was a fine specimen of what the English call a clever man; ingenious, shrewd, dextrous, and useful in emergencies. He happened to be passing through Brattle Square, in Boston, when they had just placed the bell in the belfry of the meeting-house there. It was a large, heavy bell, the present one, weighing 4000 pounds; the people were quite proud of it, but nobody could set it! A crowd had collected to hear, and there was great disappointment, for what is a bell without being carefully set ? He made his way through the crowd, and set the bell, much to their admiration. In his native city, it had been his amusement to ring bells, and he often stole away from school for that purpose; and he thus acquired the necessary sleight. He set up the first organ in Newburyport, and was himself the organist from about 1795 to 1801. He sent up the first balloon ever seen in Newburyport. He had his telescope, musical clocks, and a variety of other things, both curious and useful. He left considerable property to his wife.

A man of vigorous intellect, and strongly marked character; an officer of the Excise under King George III., and retained his royalist sympathies through life, never fearing to express his opinions on the English government, and the causes which led to the American Revolution. A handsome fortune, acquired by him in trade and commerce, was much impaired by the depredations of the Enropean belligerents, under the British Orders in Conneil, and the Berlin and Milan Decrees of Napoleon; also, by the "Great Fire" in Newburyport, May 31, 1811. Mrs. Jackson was attractive in person, amiable in temper, a fine singer, and was habitually governed by firm religious principles. She died Nov. 23, 1827, a. 64. Their children were-

He practised law in Philadelphia; moved in the best society, and exhibited great energy, courage and decision of character. He was equal to any emergency, and filled with credit every position in which he was placed. He was a devoted virtuoso, collecting minerals, coins, statuary, &c., and his natural taste for these pursuits was enliivated and strengthened by a residence of two years in Europe, and a pedestrian tour through Switzerland. He left the largest cabinet of minerals in the United States. He died at Co penhagen, July 27, 1842, æ. 38, at the time occupying the post of Chargé d'Affaires at the Court of Denmark, to which he had been appointed by President Harrison, who was his personal friend. He married, in 1833, Louisa Catharine Carroll, daughter of Charles Carroll of Philadelphia, only son of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the last survivor of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. She is still living, a widow, in Philadelphia. Of their five children-Louisa, Harriet, Charles Carroll, Oswald, and Mary Ellen-Louisa died in 1854, and Oswald volunteered in the army at the commencement of this rebellion ; has since been promoted to the rank of Captain, and, as an aid to General Keyes, has been with that general in all the recent battles in Virginia and Maryland. The other children are now with their mother in Philadelphia.

739. Lois, b. Feb. 9, 1765; m. May, 1797, Capt. Jacob Stone, b. Dec. 4, 1764, a respectable shipmaster and factor of Newburyport, engaged in the East and West India trade, from 1795 to 1806, after which he retired from the sea, and engaged in the pursuits of commerce on the shore. In 1799 he commanded the armed schooner Maria, owned by Abraham Jackson and Prout & Parsons, bound for the Mediterranean, with a eargo of cof-fee, valued at forty thousand dollars. She was captured by two Freneh cruisers, after ("une résistance opiniâtre," was the expression used by the French commander, in his testimony before the Court of Admiralty) a stubborn resistance, carried into the Spanish port of Algesiras, and condemned. A portion of this loss, about one half, was recovered, under the Treaty between Spain and the United States, in 1819; the United States paying the claimants five millions of dollars, and gaining the territory and jurisdiction of Florida. He made the first entry of an East India cargo at Newburyport, imported in the brig Industry, in March, 1805.*

He died June 23, 1831, a. 66. With a feeble constitution, and a delicate physical organization, Mrs. Stone had a large amount of energy and activity, and a courage that never faltered in danger or emergency. She had a remarkable sprightliness and vigor of intellect, cultivated and improved by reading and reflection, and tempered with practical good sense. A dark, bright, sparkling eye, flashing high thought and purpose, gave animated expression to her pale features. Plainness, truthfulness and sincerity, united with warmth and tenderness of feeling, were her characteristics. Religion was her constant theme, and her daily employment, gilding every act and duty; a principle of action, as well as an emotion of the heart. Calm, steady, yet fervent, it shone in her life, it graced and sustained her last moments, and still hallows her sleeping dust. Mrs. Stone died Aug. 12, 1828, a. 63. Their children were

She spent most of her long life in Hallowell, Me., where she died Oct. 29, 1858, a. 90, the last survivor of her mother's numerous family. Her mind was above medioerity, her perceptions clear, and her judgment uncommonly good. Her faculties continued unimpaired to the last, with only a slight and occasional failure of the memory.

Her piety was silent and nnobtrusive, and always accompanied with a deep sense of personal unworthiness, yet her faith in the merits of a crncified Saviour, was strong and unwavering. She was much attached to the old-fashioned doetrines of the Cross, and this belief afforded her, in her last sickness, a peace which nothing could disturb. As one who saw her often in those closing days expressed it-Her death was beautiful as sunset, and peaceful as the fall of a leaf on a still October day. Her daughter and only child-

Mrs. Mulliken, through a life of much anxions care and constant ill health, was a quiet, amiable woman, and a devout Christian. She was gifted with a sweet voice in song. She rested from life's labor, with the gladness of a weary traveller, who has at last arrived at home, and her chamber of death was an illuminated passage to Heaven. She died Aug. 29, 1836. æ. 60.*

Those spiritual and sublime stanzas, from Mrs. Hemans, are most appropriately inseribed upon her tablet in the old church-yard in Newbury :-

> Caim on the bosom of thy God, Fair spirit ! rest thee now : E'en while with us, thy footsteps trod, His seal was on thy brow.

* All the six daughters of Capt. Jonathan and Hannah (Gyles) Parsons were women of superior excellence, of fine social qualities, of cultivated minds, and eminently religious. These ladies, while agreeing in the possession of an earnest Christian character, had each her peculiarities of mind and temperament. Mrs. Mycall was quick and impulsive, with great strength and tenacity of purpose ; Mrs. Jackson, aspiring and ambitions, adorned her station in society; Mrs. Stone was artless, and plain-hearted, yet active and energetic; Mrs. Brown, stately, reserved, dignified, and self-reliant; Mrs. Mulliken, diffident, retiring, quiet, and sweettempered; Miss Lucia was kind and affectionate. "These all died in faith," and the chamber where they met, and through grace divine vanquished the King of terrors, was quite on the verge of heaven, and seemed illuminated with its radiance. The savor of their piety, like choice perfume, still remains. May it ever remain with their descendants !

ELIZABETH GYLES,⁵ (Edward,⁴ Charles,³ John,² Thomas,¹) dan, of Edward⁴ and Elizabeth (Holland) Gyles of Boston; b. there. 175-; m. Feb. 22, 1778, BENNETTE CLAUDE MERLINO DE ST. PRY, So his name appears on the records, and in the documents before me; but the first name, if written in French, should be Bénoit, which answers in French both to Bennet and to Benedict.

There is not a little of mystery, perhaps we may call it romance, shrouding the history and character of the individual who was the husband of Elizabeth Gyles. He was of a distinguished and opulent family in France. Some who were well acquainted with his wife, say that he was a French Marquis. My principal informant, an intelligent descendant of his, says-" We know for certainty that he was a French nobleman of some order or other; and that he was an officer under Louis XVI. He was a native of Lyons, but his mother belonged to the nobility of Sardinia." He came to this country as early as 1775, probably in the former part of that year; possibly in 1774. This is inferred from a letter still extant addressed by a French gentleman, St. George de Viast, "to Dr. Joseph Warren, Present," introducing St. Pry to him as a person desirous of learning the English language; also from a bill of St. Pry against a certain individual, dated 1775. That he was settled in Boston in 1778, is evident, not only from his marriage as above given, but from the fact that he was taxed in Boston in that year. His tax then amounted to $\pounds 6.0.10$. In 1779, it was $\pounds 61.14.2$. In 1780, he owned extensive salt-works on Plum Island, near Newburyport, valued at 1500 dollars. He was a large ship-owner. He was on familiar terms with Count d'Estaing, Count de Grasse, and the Marquis de la Favette. Repeatedly the French consul sent invitations (still in being) to him to repair to the consulate, "pour y délibérer sur des affaires qui concernent la nation." It seems that he made one or more voyages to France before his final return to that country. On one of these voyages, he and two other gentlemen were taken prisoners by the English, paroled, and sent to Newburyport. While there, he stayed at the house of Mr. Parsons. This was probably in July, 1780, as we find a bill from Dr. Micajah Sawyer against St. Pry for medical attendance at the house of Mr. Parsons in Newburyport. The wife of Capt. Jonathan Parsons, of that town, was a distant relative of Mrs. St. Prv; and it was probably at his house that St. Prv sojourned.

When the relatives of St. Pry in France heard that he had married a heretic, they were much displeased; but when they learned that his daughter had been named after his mother and sister (Eleanor, or Helena, these being equivalent names) and baptized by a Catholic priest (Matignon of Boston) they were so well satisfied that they sent to this child, afterwards Mrs. Treat, a ship richly laden with valuable presents, among which were a coach and horses, and a large sum of money. These were all captured by the English fleet under Lord Howe, when within three days' sail of Boston.* Lord Howe wrote a saucy note to St. Pry, informing him that he was enjoying his luxuries.

St. Pry, during his residence in Boston, or shortly after, wrote an article, and had it printed over his signature in some Boston newspaper, perhaps the Columbian Centinel, accusing the French consul at Boston, whose name was de la Tume, or some similar name (it was pronounced as if spelled Toom) of complicity with the English. This made the consul a mortal enemy to St. Pry and to his family.

About the year 1783, St. Pry, at the request of his mother, returned to France, to obtain property left to him by some relatives. He expected before long to come back to Boston, with his property, and therefore made no adequate provision for the support of his family during a long absence. Contrary to their expectation and to his, he soon after died. The French consul now found ample opportunity to wreak his vengeance on the unoffending family of St. Pry. The relatives of the latter wrote letter after letter to Mrs. St. Pry, inviting her to come to France with her family; but the letters never reached her. It was afterwards found that nineteen of these letters had been addressed to her in the care of this villainous consul, and had all failed of their destination, although she lived in the same city. One of the letters contained a draft for ten thousand crowns, to pay her expenses, of which she never received a sou. At length, the friends in France sent a letter through the French consul at Philadelphia, at that time the seat of our Federal Government. He gave it to Hon. Fisher Ames, representative from the Suffolk district, with the request to see if there was such a family in or near Boston. Mrs. St. Pry got this letter, and was about to sail with her family, when the French Revolution, in its desolating progress, defeated the project. The title and estates of St. Prv were confiscated. A large amount of property, invested in the French funds, was converted to public uses. In addition to all these misfortnnes, some ill-disposed persons got possession of all the valuable papers which belonged to St. Pry in this country, including his coat of arms and Family Record, and thereby obtained all the property which he had left in America. Mrs. St. Pry, therefore, found herself in circumstances of great want and distress, with no prospect of relief. The result was, she became of unsound mind, and put a period to her worldly troubles, about 1804, by drowning herself in the mill-pond, in Boston, near where the Leverett Street Jail afterwards stood. Her granddaughter Sarah, some years ago, met in Baltimore a French ecclesiastic, who knew the family of St. Pry, or at least knew of it; and he said it was a family of which one might well be proud.

The children of Mons. St. Pry, by his wife Elizabeth Gyles, were-

The river, at all events, received its name from the first ship that floated on its waters; and the incident at length became of intense interest and high value as the foundation, in negotiations with Great Britain, of a claim on the part of the United States, to the immense regions comprised in the State of Oregon and Territory of Washington. The ship Columbia was on a voyage to the Sandwich Islands and the Northwest Coast. Her return to Boston was warmly greeted. A company of artillery fired a salute; Governor Hancock and a large number of the Sonthern ports of the United States. Mrs. Gray survived him nearly or quite half a century, and d. SARAH GYLES, ' (John, ' Charles, ' John,' Thomas,') dau. of John' and Mary (Maverick) Gyles of Boston; b. there, 1759; m. 1777, JOSEPH MOUNTFORT of Boston, a sea-captain in early life; after which, for many years, he was in the Surinam trade. He was a son of Joseph, who was son of John, who was son of Edmund Mountfort, who, with his brother Henry, arrived in Boston from London in the ship Providence, in 1656. He left six sons and two daughters, and d. Aug. 14, 1690, æ. 61.*

Joseph Mountfort was a lieutenant in the Navy, under the brave Captain Manley, and was with him in several naval engagements during the Revolutionary War. He was also one of the party which destroyed the tea in Boston harbor, Dec. 1773. [Sumner's Hist. of East Boston, p. 170.] Mrs. Sarah (Gyles) Mountfort d. in 1836, a. 77.

808. John, b. 1788; m. June, 1828, Matilda D. McNeil of New Orleans. He was a Lieut, in the United States Artillery; was wounded in the battle at Little York, now Toronto, Canada West, under the command of Gen. Zebulon Pike, April 27, 1813, and distinguished himself at the battle of Plattsburg, Sept. 11, 1814, and in several other actions in that war. At the battle of Plattsburg, he commanded the artillery in Fort Brown, was on the opposite corner, on the site of the present Bite Tavern. This location, as per Drake's History of Boston, was long called "Mountfort's Corner." \ddagger Gen. Sumner, in his valuable History of East Boston, notices this family, but commits an error in giving to Joseph and Sarah (Giles) Mountfort as on "Captain George Mountfort, who died many years ago." It should be "Captain Joseph Mountfort." He also errs in saying that Col. John Mountfort and his brother Charles died in 1856.

^{*} According to Dugdale's History of Warwickshire, this family is descended from Hugo de Montfort, a Norman, who commanded the cavalry of William the Conqueror, at the battle of Hastings. Edmund, and his brothers Henry and Benjamin, were merchants in Boston, the father of whom was one of the founders of the King's Chapel, of which he was Warden in 1690 and 1696. His warehouse stood at the corner of Peirce's Alley and Fancuil Hall Square. Messrs. Lane & Read long occupied this building, which has recently been torn down to give place to the present elegant eut granite structure. The warehouse of Henry Mountfort was on the opposite corner, on the site of the present Bite Tavern. This location, and for gallant conduct on that occasion was made a Captain. He afterwards rose to the rank of Lieut. Colonel. He had a command in the Florida war, and resigned his commission in the army in 1838. After this he located himself at New Orleans, where he had married as above. A gunner's quadrant, used in the British artillery to determine the elevation of a cannon, was taken by him from among the slain in a British battery, immediately after the battle of Plattsburg, and is still preserved as a trophy. He died suddenly, in Boston, Oct. 22, 1851, while on a visit to that city, and preparing to embark for Europe, with his family, aged 63. He was buried with military honors, in the old family tomb, in Copps Hill Cemetery; since which his remains have been removed to the new family tomb at Mount Auburn. His only son, John, b. 1839, has resided for the past two years in Paris, to perfect his education. His only daughter, Lawar, m. Stanford Eunerson Chaillé, M. D., who grad. H. C. 1851, and resides in New Orleans. She d. in that city, 1858, leaving one child.

- 810. Napoleon Bonaparte, b. Dec. 1800; m. Mary Trull, dau. of Ezra Trull, a distiller, of Boston. She d. Oct. 1858. He has been Judge of the Police Court in New York City. Now, June, 1860, practises law in New York.

HELENA MERLINO DE SAINT PRY, (Elizabeth Gyles,⁵ Edward,⁴ Charles,³ John,² Thomas,¹) dau. of Bennette Merlino de St. Pry, by his wife Elizabeth Gyles; b. in Boston, Aug. 9, 1779; m. about 1800, SAMUEL TREAT, b. 1750, son of Capt. John and Abigail (Hartt) Treat. John Treat, as we have already stated, was a son or grandson of Rev. Samuel Treat of Eastham.

Samuel Treat was commissioned, Aug. 16, 1777, as lieutenant in a company commanded by David Bell. The commission is signed by the major part of the Council of Massachusetts Bay. He was stationed at Castle William, now Fort Independence, in Boston Harbor, from 1780 to 1789. There is also a commission, (conferring on him the rank of Captain,) preserved, with the other, among his descendants, signed by John Hancock, Governor, dated March 19, 1789. He was in the military service of the State of Massachusetts twenty-one years. He died May 1, 1806, and was buried with military honors.

He was thrice married; 1, to Eliza Brewer, who d. Jan. 6, 1786, a. 2, In 1790, to Ann May, dau. of Aaron May of Boston; she d. 25.1795, a. 33. By the first marriage he had four children; by the second, five. 3, Helena Merlino de St. Pry.

Mrs. Treat resided during many years in Boston, or its vicinity. She made vigorous efforts to recover a portion of the inheritance in France to which she was justly entitled in right of her father, but was only partially successful. She was a woman of sincere and earnest piety, which was manifested through her long widowhood of nearly forty years. She d. in Pittsfield, N. H., Aug. 24, 1845. A sermon was preached at her funeral, Aug. 26, by Rev. Jonathan Curtis, pastor of the Congregational Church in that place, from which some extracts are made in the foot-note below.*

* "Though heiress of a princely fortune, yet by the chances of war, and the fraudulent dealings of unprincipled men, she never was able to realize but a small portion of it. A ship, richly laden, and intended as a present to her, while a child, was taken on its way to Boston, by the forces under Lord Howe. Of ten thousand crowns, sent in trust to the French consul for her, she never received a farthing. And the remainder of her large fortune, being invested in the French funds, during the changes and confiscations of the Revolution, became so involved, that after many years of trying litigation and effort, and even by the influence and aid of Albert Gallatin and Lafayette, she was able to obtain but a small portion of the large inheritance, which of right she should have received. The generous and noble Lafayette was an early and constant friend of the deceased. When visiting at her father's house, in her childhood, he used to dandle her upon his knee and carry her in his arms; and when he was last in this country, he greatly rejoiced to meet the widowed mother, whom he had thus fondly known and earessed in her childhood."

The facts here stated must have been communicated to Mr. Curtis by Mrs. Treat, and rest therefore on her authority.

I have an autograph letter from Lafayette to Mrs. Treat, duted Paris, Aug. 14, 1823, relating the efforts he had made for the recovery of her property, and his final, though partial, success. This letter, with the letter of Mrs. Treat, to which it is an answer, may appear in Appendix G. ‡ For the Pedigree of Dorothy Wentworth, see page 168.

FAMILY OF MATTHEW GILES,

OF DOVER, N. H.

MATTHEW GILES¹ was of Dover, 1643; was taxed there, 1648. Our knowledge of him is very limited. We know not of any connection between him, and the persons already mentioned in this volume. Even the name of his wife has not come down to us. Nearly all that the compiler has been able to gather respecting him, and his descendants for three or four generations, is derived from the researches of Rev. Alonzo Hall Quint, pastor at Jamaica Plain, near Boston, but now Chaplain of the Second Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, as published in the Genealogical Register, Vol. VI, p. 259, and elsewhere.

Of fifty-six persons taxed in Dover, Oct. 19, 1648, Matthew Giles was rated the highest, being put down as worth $\pounds 294.10$. The whole amount taxed that year, in Dover, was $\pounds 4062.4$.

He lived at Oyster River, then a part of Dover, but now the town of Durham; was taxed there, 1657–1666. His inventory was entered in the Probate Court, June 30, 1668, and he probably died not long before.

At a Court held for the County of York, July 3, 1660, Matthew Giles had a cause as Plaintiff versus Matthews. [York Judicial Court Records, Vol. II., 36.

MARK GILES,² probably son of Matthew, preceding, was of Cochecho [Dover], 1666–1675; was mortally wounded by a party of seven or eight Indians, at Dover, Aug. 11, 1704, when his son John was also killed. [Penhallow's Indian Wars, Cincinnati edition, 1859, p. 35.

Penhallow does not give the name of the son, and states that the son was wounded. But Quint says that John, son of Mark, was killed, Aug. 11, 1704.

Mark Giles² had two sons-

[Was there a son Daniel, older than any of these?]

Thus far we are sustained by the Dover Records, and have gone on safe ground. As to what remains, I have this to say—the information is authentic, and the facts are in themselves true; but their connection with the preceding schedule is not so easy to ascertain. I have written to Durham, Rochester, Northwood, and Concord, in the State of New Hampshire; and to Sanford, Alfred, and Boothbay in the State of Maine, in all which towns descendants of Mutthew Giles are supposed to have a present abole; but from none of them have I obtained satisfactory answers to my inquiries. From Durham, Rochester and Northwood, no reply whatever was received. Concord and Boothbay alone furnished any information which I can use. I have also made inquiries of persons residing in Boston who bear the name, and are presumed to be descendants of this family. They have readily given what information they possessed; but it did not connect itself immediately with the preceding; several links were wanting.

The information which follows may be useful to some future genealogist, who may undertake the work which I am now compelled to leave in an unfinished and fragmentary state.

857: Benjamin Giles was a member of the Council of New Hampshire, one year, 1776. He resided in Newport, N. IL, and died Dec. 9. 1787, a. 70. [See Belknap's History of New Hampshire, p. 413.] He may have been a son of Mark Giles.³

858. Richard Giles of Londonderry enlisted, April 19, 1775, as a private in Capt. Ephraim Corey's Company, in Col. William Prescott's regiment. [Massachusetts Archives.]

859. Mark Giles of Salem was a private in Capt. Benjamin Bowne's Company, in Col. Thomas Gardner's regiment. Enlisted, May, 1775. [Ibid.

860. John Giles of Sanford, Me., was a private in Capt. Samuel Leighton's Company, in Col. Ebenezer Francis's Regiment, October and November, 1776, at Dorchester Heights. [Massachusetts Archives. John Giles of Sanford received, May 10, 1781, a bounty of £60, on engaging to serve in the Continental Army three years. [Ibid.

861. Daniel Giles of Sanford, Me., and Joseph Giles, Jun., of same place, were privates in Capt. John Smith's Company, which marched upon the "Lexington Alarm," April, 1775. [Ibid.

862. Joseph Giles of Sanford was a private, Paul Giles of Sanford was a corporal, in Capt. Morgan Lewis's Company-same "alarm." [Ibid.

Paul Giles and Dauiel Giles, both of Sanford, enlisted, May 3, 1775, as privates, in Capt. Joshua Bragdon's Company, in Col. James Scammon's regiment. Both "enlisted in the Train, or Battery of Artillery, June 3." These were enlisted for eight months. [Ibid.

Paul Giles of Boothbay was a private in a company of foot, stationed at Boothbay, from July 14 to Dec. 31, 1775; also, from April 2 to Dec. 5, 1776. [Ibid.

Paul Giles of Sanford, and Paul Giles of Boothbay, were undoubtedly the same individual. I think he did not stay long at Boothbay, but settled at Lee, N. H., where he was a farmer, trader, and innholder, and where he died in 1824, a. 84. It seems highly probable that he was the son of Mark⁴ and Lydia (Tebbets) Giles, b. July 20, 1743, as set forth in the preceding schedule [855]. Capt. Paul Giles⁵ of Lee, N. H., had six children, of whom only one was married and had a family, viz.:--

JOSEPH GILES came to Boothbay, Me., from York. [This means, I presume, from Sanford, in the County of York.] He married MARTHA

PINKHAM, before he came here. He bought a farm, near a place called "The Oven's Mouth," in Boothbay. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and a farmer. He died about the year 1821, aged about 84. [This date, being given from memory, after the lapse of forty years, may not be perfectly accurate. Joseph Giles of Boothbay was, probably, the brother of Capt. Paul Giles of Lee, and son of Mark⁴ and Lydia (Tebbets) Giles of Dover [856]. If so, he was b. May 22, 1746. If he d. in 1821, he was then 75 years of age. If he was 84 when he died, he d. in 1830. Such a mistake in dates might easily be made.]

The children of Joseph and Martha (Pinkham) Giles were-

OTHER PERSONS OF THE NAME OF GILES.

GILES is not a common name in this country. It appears evident that most of the persons by whom it is borne are descendants, either of EDWARD GILES' of Salem, or of MATTHEW GILES' of Dover, N. H. Most of the living descendants of Thomas Gyles of Pemaquid, of James Gyles of New Jersey, and of John Gyles of Boston, bear other names.

Mr. James Savage, in his great work, the Genealogical Dictionary, which includes the first three generations of New England people, gives no information of any other persons of this name, than those mentioned in the foregoing pages.

Nevertheless, the compiler of this volume has found the names of some persons bearing this name, whom he cannot connect with the lines of pedigree already drawn, and who must therefore be noticed in this place.

On the 13th page of this volume, a deed is quoted, which is found on record in the Essex Registry, at Salem, liber 21, folio 30. In that deed, which is dated Feb. 8, 1708–9, John Giles of Beverly, "for love, good-will and natural affection," conveys to his son Eleazar Giles, and his son-in-law, John Wheeler, a certain parcel of land in Beverly, "formerly belonging to my father-in-law JOHN GILES of the town and county aforesaid."

There are three suppositions touching this record, which may be entertained: 1. There was, living in Salem, between 1650 and 1670, a man bearing the name of JOHN GILES. Two grave objections exist to this supposition: first, in no other record is such a man mentioned; secondly, "for the sake of natural affection," is it likely that land, once belonging to John Giles, father of the first wife, should be given to the grandchildren of John Galley, father of the second wife, while a child of the first wife was yet living? 2. By a clerical error in the record, the name of John Giles is put for THOMAS Giles. It has already been shown, pp. 7, 101, that, in 1650, there was a Thomas Giles in Salem, whose daughter became the wife of Thomas Very of Glouces-Not improbably, another daughter was the first wife of John Giles ter. of Beverly. 3. By a clerical error in the record, the name of John Giles is put for John GALLEY. On this supposition the property of John Galley was transmitted to his grandchildren; which would seem altogether the natural and proper course.

After much consideration, I adopt the last of these suppositions. Such a clerical blunder could not well occur in these more careful days. But clerical blunders are sometimes found in the early records. E. g., in another deed, dated in 1706, and recorded in the same Salem Registry, [37:193] Ebenezer Giles is put for Eleazar Giles. Such things are sore vexations to the genealogist. But who could be the father of Daniel Gyles of Salem, fisherman, who was skipper of the ketch Margaret of Salem, and was taken at Canso, Sept. 17, 1689, by two French frigates?

Who was the father of Robert Gyles, who m. Margaret Barrett, in Boston, Feb. 17, 1692-3?

Who was the father of Elizabeth Giles of Billerica, who was m. to Jonathan Baker of Woburn, Jan. 3, 1694–5? The bridegroom was b. in Woburn, April 2, 1674. [Wob. Records.

"John, son of Valentine and Mary Giles of Boston, was b. Aug. 10, 1680." [Boston Records.] Who was the father of Valentine Giles?

These persons may have been children or grandchildren of early emigrants to this country, perhaps of the John Giles of Salem mentioned in the deed from John Giles of Beverly, quoted above, if there was such a man; or of Thomas Gyles of Salem, or of Matthew Giles of Dover. Another supposition may be made, viz., that they themselves were recent emigrants from England. But this is less probable.

We find a Francis Gyles, in Boston, between the years 1712 and 1725. He was a "perriwig-maker." He bought, Nov. 25, 1712, for ± 125 , "a piece of pasture land fronting northerly on Bennet Street in Boston 40 feet, and 102 feet in depth." [Suff. Deeds, 26:274.] May 1, 1713, for ± 80 , he bought another piece of pasture land fronting northerly on Bennet Street, there measuring 30 feet, and 70 feet in depth. [Ibid, 27:124.] The second piece of land he sold, Nov. 28, 1719, for ± 134 , in Bills of Credit. [Ibid, 34:117.] The first piece of land he sold, Oct. 6, 1725, for ± 160 , current money of New England, to Peter Papillon,* of Boston, merchant. [Ibid, 40:229.] No house is mentioned.

I find no other mention of Francis Gyles in any document.

In the Mass. Archives, Vol. 63, 341-394, is a voluminous account of several trials for piracy, before a Court held in Boston, May 12, 1724, and some days after. The following facts appear from this record : John Fillmore, Isaac Lassen, Henry Gyles, Charles Ivemey, John Bootman, Edward Cheeseman, John Coombs, and Henry Payne, also John Baptiste and Peter Taffery, were put on trial for piracy, charged with having plundered sundry vessels, ten or twelve in number, whose names are mentioned, and whose cases are particularly described. It appeared that all these ten men were found on board of a piratical vessel, commanded by the notorious pirate, John Phillips. But the indictment and their trial seems to have been pro formâ, for the purpose of establishing their innocence, and for the purpose also of bringing out the real facts of the case, which were to be used for the conviction of the actual pirates; for it was clearly proved that the ten men above named were taken by force out of vessels pursuing an innocent business, and that they continued in the piratical craft only through compulsion. Andrew Harradine [Haraden] master of the sloop Squirrel [of Annisquam] deposed that he was taken by John Phillips the pirate, April 14, 1724, about twelve leagues southeast of the Isle of Sables. He related the particulars of the capture, and fully exonerated the ten men mentioned above from any voluntary connection therewith. His testimony being confirmed by that of others, these men were acquitted. They were then admitted to give evidence against the surviving real pirates, William Phillips, William White, John Rose Archer, and William Taylor, who were accordingly found guilty. It appeared that John Fillmore and Henry Gyles were taken, Feb. 7, 1724, out of a ship bound from London for Virginia, and compelled by the pirate, Capt. John Phillips, to serve on board his own vessel. The other acquitted men were taken out of other vessels, and "forced to go with the pirates," being threatened with instant death if they refused : Phillips presenting a loaded pistol, and uttering the most violent language to them. John Nutt, the master [sailing-master] of the pirate vessel, obliged Henry Gyles to keep a journal, "he being an artist," [or man of some education.] But "he was always contriving to get away," and often told Fillmore and Cheeseman that he would escape, if possible. After the capture of the Squirrel, a plan was formed for retaking the vessel, and subduing the pirates. The parties to this design were Haraden, Fillmore, Gyles, Lassen, Ivemey, Bootman, also Edward Cheeseman, an English ship-carpenter. Cheeseman threw overboard Nutt, the sailing-master. Fillmore struck John Burrell, the boatswain, on the head with the carpenter's broad axe, while Haraden and others dispatched the Captain (John Phillips) and James Sparks the gunner. Lassen took hold of Capt. Phillips's arm, and held him, when Haraden struck him with an adze on the head and killed him. Lassen was an Indian man who had been by the pirates taken out of a schooner, near Newfoundland, and forced to join them. John Baptiste and Peter Taffery were Frenchmen, and, not being well acquainted with the English tongue, had a separate trial, but were acquitted. John Rose Archer [aged 27] and William White [aged 22] were executed on Bird Island, in Boston Harbor, June 2, following. Thus far the Archives.

Babson has given an account of this affair, in his History of Gloucester, pp. 286–288. Drake has also noticed it in his History of Boston, p. 570. There is, moreover, an account furnished by Fillmore himself, printed at Aurora, N. Y., in 1837, and copied, with additions, into the Genealogical Register, Vol. XI., pp. 62–64. These several accounts are incomplete, and do not perfectly harmonize, though they agree in the essential facts. E. g., Fillmore says—"Harridon was so overcome with fear that he durst not engage to assist;" and again, "Harridon. being overcome with fear, could not conceal his trepidation." Whereas it appears from the evidence given at the trial, as well as from the account published in the Boston Gazette, May 4, 1724, only two days after the arrival of the pirate vessel in Boston, that Haraden struck down Philips with an adze and killed him.

Fillmore's account was drawn up many years after the affair, and apparently from memory: whereas the account given on the trial was while the transaction was but a few days old.*

^{} John Fillmore, who is repeatedly mentioned above, was b. in Ipswich, March 18, 1702, m. The Squirrel was taken by Phillips, April 14, 1724. The next day, Phillips and his whole crew, ten in all, besides the impressed men, went on board the prize, a fine new vessel, with all their stores. The same day, Haraden, with several other prisoners, conspired to destroy the pirates and deliver themselves. Upon the 18th of the same month, this design was executed by the eight men who were privy to it. The four principal pirates—the officers—were killed in a few minutes' time; four others submitted, and were brought into port as prisoners. The vessel arrived in Boston, May 3. Two pirates, William White, and John Rose Archer, were executed on Bird Island; the others were sent to England, and executed there.

I have not been able to ascertain to what place Henry Gyles belonged, or whether he had any connection with the Giles families settled in America.

Tradition reports that a branch of the GILES family settled in Portsmouth, Virginia. Capt. Samuel Giles, of Gloucester [254] on a certain voyage, had, as a passenger, an individual of this Giles family of Virginia, and learned from him that his own family and that of Capt. Giles, were originally one. But how much this information was worth, cannot now be ascertained.

I copy the following from Allen's Biographical Dictionary, for the information of my readers; though I do not think that the Giles family will derive any additional lustre from so unsound a statesman, and so unsecupilous a politician.

"GILES, William Branch, governor of Virginia, was for many years a member of Congress. He was a Representative, as early as 1796. In 1802, he voted for the repeal of the judiciary law; and in 1812 he voted for the war. He was elected to the Senate in January, 1811, and resigned his office in October, 1815. He was again a candidate for election to the Senate, in 1825; but his rival, Mr. Randolph, was chosen. In 1826, he was chosen Governor, and continued in office till 1829. He died at his residence, the Wigwam, in Amelia County, December 8, 1830, at an advanced age. He published a Speech on the embargo law, 1808; in November, 1813. Political Letters to the People of Virginia; a Series, signed A Constituent, in the Richmond Enquirer of January, 1818, against the Plan for General Education; in April, 1824, a singular Letter of Invective against President Monroe and Henry Clay, for their 'hobbies'—i the South American Cause, the Greek Cause, Internal Improvements, and the Tariff.' In November, 1825, he addressed a Letter to Chief Justice Marshall. disclaiming the expressions, but not the general sentiments, in regard to Washington, ascribed to him in the Debate of 1796, in [Marshall's] Life of Washington, V., 722."

There is a Giles County in Virginia, and one in Tennessec.

It is now ascertained, Nov. 1862, that John and Martha (Pitman) Giles of Beverly had four children, who lived to mature years, and three of them, at least, married, and had families. Their names arcJohn,⁵ m. Mary Corning, and settled in New Salem, N. H.

Edmund,⁵ was a seafaring man ; what became of him, and whether he was married, is not known.

Lydia,5 m. Amos Merrill, and settled in Windham, N. H.

A mistake has probably been made on p. 40, in saying that John⁵ [164] and Saral⁵ [164] died in 1737. The only authority for saying so is Col. Hale's MS., which affirms that John Giles lost three children in 1737, but does not give their names. John and Sarah lived to maturity, as has been now ascertained.

The children of John⁵ and Mary (Corning) Giles of New Salem, N. H., afterwards of Londonderry, N. H., were—

May not Richard Giles of Londonderry (p. 152) have been connected with this family?

That village contained, in 1830, only fourteen dwelling-houses. It now contains five hundred dwelling-houses, and three thousand inhabitants. See p. 93. THE GOULD FAMILY OF STONEHAM.*

JOHN GOULD¹ was admitted a freeman of the Massachusetts Colony. May 2, 1638. He lived in Charlestown; not on the peninsula, to which the name is now confined, but in that section of the old town which was known as "Charlestown-End," and was incorporated as the town of Stoneham, Dec. 17, 1725. He was probably one of the earliest inhabitants of Stoneham.

There was a John Gould, who, with his wife Grace, each of the age of 25 years, embarked for America in the Defence from London, July 7, 1635. They were from Towcester, in Northamptonshire. It has been supposed that this John Gould was the father of the Gould family of Stoneham. This is by no means certain. The officer whose duty it was to record the names of the emigrants from Old to New England, in 1635, would hardly have made the mistake of writing Grace, instead of Mary, as the name of John Gould's wife. Yet, if any of the readers of this Sketch should be inclined to think that the father of the Stoneham Goulds brought with him from London a wife GRACE, in 1635; that she died shortly after their arrival; and that he then married a second wife, MARY; there is certainly nothing to forbid the supposition. The matter must be left in doubt : the probabilities are perhaps equal on both sides.

MARY, the wife of John Gould, died Sept. 28, 1642. [Charlestown Records.] He then married JOANNA —, who survived him, and died, Aug. 27, 1697, aged ONE HUNDRED YEARS.[‡]

John Gould—or Gold, as the name appears in his will—seems to have died in the year 1690. His will is dated Jan. 3, 1688–9; proved, July 2, 1690; recorded, Midd. Prob. 7:85. He says nothing of his wife, though living. He speaks of his sons John Gold, Daniel Gold, and Thomas Gold. The last (Thomas) seems to have deceased, some time before; for he is mentioned only in connection with the testator's "grandson, Thomas Gold, son of my son Thomas Gold," then under 21 years of age. The testator's son-in-law, John Birbene, is also mentioned. His estate is bounded, in part, by Thomas Cutler's fence-"that is the north line;" "south on ye River; east on ye Pond." As Thomas Cutler lived in Stoncham, near the line of South Reading, there can be no doubt that JOHN GOULD,1 the testator, also lived in the present territory of Stoneham.

^{*} This family is not allied with any other families of which sketches are given in this volume. It is introduced here for other reasons. Mr. Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary, gives the names of twenty or more, among the early settlers of New England, who bore the name of GOULD, or GOLD.

New England, who bore the name of GorLp, or GorL. ‡ Her age is thus given on the Charlestown Records, with this note, added by the transcriber: "This age is demonstrated to have been about ten years less." We respect the judgment of the transcriber, as an experienced genealogist, but we cannot accept of his "demonstration" in this case. He believed the husband of this old lady to be the same person as the John Gould, who embarked in the Defence, in 1635, being then 25 years of age, and on this ground, apparently, discredited the positive statement of the Charlestown Records. But we have shown that this supposition is not clear of difficulties; and we know, from other sources, that Joanna Gould was about one hundred years old in 1697.

His children were-by first wife, Marv-

SECOND GENERATION.

JOHN GOULD,² son of John¹ and Joanna Gould of Stoneham, then part of Charlestown; b. about 1652, if we may credit his gravestone, but Aug. 5, 1648, according to the record of his birth; m. 1, -----; 2, MARTHA ------.

He lived in "Charlestown-End," now Stoneham, and seems to have been a large landholder. He died Jan. 24, 1711-12, a. about 69, according to the grave-stone; about 70, according to Charlestown Record. He was buried in the Old Cemetery in South Reading; there being then no burial-place in Stoneham.

His will is dated Jan. 2, 1711-12; proved, in part-i. e. part of the will was established, the remainder being in dispute among the heirs-Feb. 11, 1711-12; recorded, Midd. Prob. 13:4. His will makes it evident that he resided within the present territory of Stoneham. He speaks of wife Martha, and son Samuel, who are appointed Executors. He mentions eldest son John, son Thomas, other children, Abigail, Daniel, Mehitabel, Jeremiah, Mary, Abraham, Isaac. The overseers of the will are Joshua Eaton and Kendall Parker. We learn from the Probate of the will that Ebenezer Knight m. Mary Gould, a daughter of the testator, and that Benjamin Geary m. Abigail Gould. another daughter. Abraham and Isaac were minors. John, Abigail, Jeremiah, Daniel, Mehitabel, and Mary, were "children of ye first venter;"

Samuel, Abraham, and Isaac, "of ye 2d venter." "Thos Gould lives in Connecticut Colony at Willingly," [Killingly.] We make out therefore the following schedule of the children of

JOHN GOULD,³ (John,² John,¹) eldest son of John Gould,² of Stoneham, b. about 1672; m. SARAH ------.

He spent most of his life in Stoneham, and is known as John Gould, senior, on the early Stoneham Records. He was a member of the church in that town, but not from its formation. Was taxed in Stoneham, 1726 and 1727. He removed to Southborough previous to December, 1742. His children were-^{*} Here is full confirmation of the statement in Charlestown records, respecting the age of widow Joanna Gould. But she must have been about 56 years old when her son Daniel was born.

- 23. Sarah,4 b. Jan. 31, 1694-5; m. John Howe of Stoneham, Feb. 13, 1717-18.

- 30. Lydia,4 b. July 29, 1714; m. John Clemens of Stoneham, Feb. 10, 1735.

THOMAS GOULD,³ (John,² John,⁴) brother of the preceding; b. in Stoncham, about 1680; m. Aug. 1, 1721, RUTH WYMAN,³ b. April 17, 1697, dat. of Nathaniel,² son of Francis Wyman,¹ one of the first settlers of Woburn. For a Sketch of the Wyman Family, see Genealogical Register, Vol. III., pp. 35–38. See also, Vinton Memorial, pp. 383, note.

It appears from Midd. Prob., 13:4, that at the date of the probate of his father's will, Feb. 11, 1711-12, he (Thomas) lived in Killingly, Ct., a town then newly settled, to which several other people, about that time, removed from Stoneham and its vicinity. (See Vinton Memorial, pp. 402, 404, 415, 417.) And yet, in the record of his marriage, 1721, he is said to be "of Charlestown," and the birth of his first child is recorded in Charlestown; which seems to prove that he then lived in Stoneham. Moreover, the Act of the Legislature, by which Stoneham was incorporated, Dec. 17, 1725, provides that the Town of Stoneham "should have and enjoy that tract of land lying within the bounds [of Stoncham] commonly called and known by the name of Gould's Farm, now under lease to Messrs. Thomas and Daniel Gould, containing one hundred and ten acres, or thereabouts." June 13, 1711, Thomas Gould of Charlestown—the same man—for £40, conveys to John Vinton of Charlestown, ten acres of land in Charlestown, "near Doleful Pond." In Dec. 1710, he also sold land in Charlestown to the same John Vinton. [Midd. Deeds, 16:113, and 23:352.

It would seem, therefore, that he removed to Killingly, in 1711, but afterwards came back to Stoneham; and again moved away. We have notice of only one child of his, viz.—

32. Ruth,⁴ b. in Stoneham, July 27, 1722.

Deacon DANIEL GOULD,³ (John,² John,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Stoneham, 1682; m. 1, in Woburn, Oct. 21, 1702, SARAH GROVER of Stoneham, b. 1682, probably sister of Thomas Grover of that place. She d. Dec. 4, 1745, a. 64. [Grave-stone.] 2, April 15, 1747, ABIGAIL RICHARDSON,⁴ of Woburn, b. April 18, 1709, dau, of William³ and Rebecca³ (Vinton) Richardson of that place. See Vinton Memorial, p. 29.

He was an original member of the Church in Stoncham, formed July 2, 1729. He was chosen deacon, Nov. 27, 1730. The other deacon, then chosen, was Daniel Green. [Ibid, p. 403.] He was also a leading man in the town, and was often chosen on important committees.

His will is dated June 10, 1756; proved, March 23, 1761; recorded, Midd. Prob. 27: 296-299. He mentions his wife Abigail, and " confirms and establishes a written covenant made with her before marriage." He makes very particular provision for her ;--- a good cow, the use of the west room, and so much of the back room as she has occasion for; also 13 bushels of Corn, 2 bushels of Rye, 60 pounds of Pork, 40 pounds of Beef, half a bushel of Beans, half a bushel of Turnips, half a bushel of Potatoes, five cords of Wood, cut fit for her fire and laid near her door, and as much Cyder and Apples as she wants.* This provision to be made and continued to her for two years next after the testator's decease, and no longer. He gives his Real Estate to his two grandsons, Joseph Bryant and Daniel Bryant; also to them his moneybills, bonds, notes, accounts, live-stock, farming utensils, &c. He gives to his grandson, Daniel Bryant, my negro man, Obediah. He also makes some provision for his grand-daughter, Hannah Bryant,

ABRAHAM GOULD,³ (John,² John,¹) half-brother of the preceding; b. in Stoneham, 1692; m. MARY -

Of the church in that town, he was an original member; as were his brother Daniel, his brother-in-law, Ebenezer Knight, his cousins Daniel and David Gould, and Joseph Bryant, already mentioned.[‡] He d. - 39. Mary,⁴ b. Feb. 1, 1732-3; m. Jonas Parker of Reading; published, Feb. 13, 1750-1.

* These details will give a general idea of the way of living in those days, common among the farmers of our country towns. It seems that potatoes were not so much an article of diet then as afterwards. The dwelling-honse was wooden, of one story, with two rooms in front, separated by an entry, and with a large room in the rear, which extended back of both the other rooms, and was used for kitchen, diningroom, and for the general purposes of the family.

The is names here given, and the following, are appended to the original cov-enant, July 2, 1729: Ephraim Larrabee, Jacob Howe, Edward Bucknam, Jonathan Griffin, Samuel Sprague, Ebenezer Parker, Thomas Cutler. So that about half of the original male members of the Stoneham Church were of the Gould family.

Lieut. DANIEL GOULD,3 (Daniel, John,) son of Daniel2 and Doreas Gould of Stoneham, b. 1688; m. Dec. 26, 1710, SUSANNA PEARSON³ of Reading, b. Aug. 10, 1690, dau. of John² and Tabitha (Kendall) Pearson of that place, and grand-dau. of John Pearson,1 who was of Lynn, 1637, and afterwards of Reading.

He lived in Stoneham, near the line of the present town of South Reading. In 1766, he petitioned to be set off to the town of Reading, alleging that it would be more convenient for him to attend public worship there, &c. It seems strange that he should have waited, before making such a request, till he was 78 years of age. The petition was not granted.

To distinguish him from his cousin Deacon Daniel Gould, he was called Daniel Gould, Junior, till he was long past the meridian of life. As such, he is known on the early Stoneham records. He was a leading man in that town, and was town clerk from the organization of the town in Feb. 1725-6 to March, 1747-8, a period of twenty-two years. He was then succeeded by his son-in-law, Capt. Jonathan Green, who held that office twenty-five years. Mr. Gould was also chosen clerk of the church at its organization, July 2, 1729. But we cannot say much in praise of the manner in which those early records were kept.

He died at the age of ONE HUNDRED YEARS, March 8, 1788.

JACOB GOULD,⁵ (Jacob,⁴ David,³ Daniel,² John,¹) eldest son of Jacob⁴ and Elizabeth (Holden) Gould; b. in Stoneham, March 30, 1754: never married.

His name is connected with one of the most tragical events which have occurred in the County of Middlesex. He, and his brother David and sister Mary, all unmarried, and all quite advanced in years, composed a family by themselves, living in the southeast part of Stoncham, east of Spot Pond, and on the old road to Medford and Boston. Being rather penurious in their habits, they were supposed to have a large amount of silver coin in their possession. There is no reason to doubt that information of this fact had extensively gone abroad, and that by some means it had become known among the convicts in the State Prison at Charlestown.

On the evening of Nov. 26, 1819, about eight o'clock, the humble dwelling of the Goulds in Stoneham was entered by three men, who determined to obtain their money. Jacob Gould was stabled in several places, and died in about five hours. His brother David and sister Mary were wounded, but survived many years. The family were robbed of about one thousand silver dollars.

The impression made by this event on the town and the whole vicinity, is indescribable. Astonishment, alarm, and terror, sat on every countenance. Whose dwelling could be secure from such a visit? Every possible effort was immediately made to discover the perpetrators, and bring them to justice. Suspicion soon fell heavily on a man of the name of Daniels, formerly belonging to Boston. He had just been discharged from the State Prison, and either he or an accomplice had been in the town a few days before, inquiring into the circumstances and habits of the family; whether they had money, whether they kept weapons, &c. He was speedily arrested, and committed to the County Jail in East Cambridge. The evidence against him appeared so conclusive, that just before his trial was to occur, he hanged himself in his cell. Another man, named Phillips, was arrested on suspicion, but got clear.

"The Stoneham murder" is remembered with a strange and painful interest to this day; and the grave-stone of Jacob Gould in the Old Cemetery still commemorates the awful event.

NOTE TO PAGE 169.

Since the foregoing was in type, the compiler has received from the transcriber of the Charlestown Records, Mr. Thomas B. Wyman, the following evidence that Joanna Gould, wife of JOHN GOULD,1 was not so old by ten years as is stated on the aforesaid records, in the record of her death, as quoted on page 169 :--

In a deposition, dated "6 (2) 1658," that is, April 6, 1658, "Johanna Gould, aged fiftie years, or thereabouts, deposes," &c. At the same time, her husband's age is stated to be forty-seven. In another deposition, dated in 1676, Johanna Gould's age is said to be sixty-seven. This evidence, of course, is decisive. The age of Joanna and her husband, therefore, will correspond nearly with the age of John and Grace, who were passengers in the Defence, in 1635; and the probabilities incline to the supposition that John Gould the hushand of Grace, and John Gould the husband of Joanna, were one and the same person. I may add that it now appears that Joanna Gould was 45 years of age when her son Daniel was born ; instead of 56, as the Charlestown Records would require us to believe.

THE HOLMES FAMILY OF MARSHFIELD.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENTS.

THERE were several families among the early settlers of New England, who bore the name of HOLMES. We find a George Holmes in Roxbury, who was made freeman, May 22, 1639; and died December 18, 1645. His children were Joseph, Nathaniel. Deborah, and Sarah. There was a John Holmes of Portsmouth, whose wife was a dau. of Thomas Walford of Mishawum [Charlestown.] There was a Thomas Holmes in Hingham in 1637; and another Thomas Holmes in New London in 1665. David Holmes of Dorchester had wife Jane, son David, and daughter Marguret, and died in 1666. Robert Holmes of Cambridge, 1636, was freeman June 2, 1641; his wife was Jane, and his children John, Elizabeth, Sarah, Joseph. Richard Holmes was at Rowley, in 1643; he was born in 1610.

Obadiah Holmes, originally from Preston in Lancashire, England, was admitted to the Church at Salem, March 24, 1639; became a Baptist, and was for this offence excommunicated; went to Rehoboth, where he had an allotment of land in 1645; was arrested with several others at Lynn, on Sunday, July 20, 1651, for attending a Baptist meeting; was carried to Boston the next day, and imprisoned till September; then taken out and whipped with exceeding severity in State Street; removed to Newport, and was a minister there in 1652; died Oct. 16, 1682, a. 76. He had eight children, and his descendants were in 1790 estimated at five thousand. For a further account of him, see Backus's History of New England, and Benedict's History of the Baptists.

Lieut. WILLIAM HOLMES was at Plymouth, in Oct. 1632, at the time of Governor Winthrop's visit to that place, and with others accompanied the Governor ten miles on his return. He was sent by the authorities at Plymouth, in October, 1633, with an armed force to reëstablish a tradiug-house on Connecticut river, in opposition to the plans of the Dutch, who claimed that fine region. He built a "truck-house" at the place afterwards known as Windsor, which he fortified with a palisade. He instructed the people of Plymouth and Duxbury, 1635, in the use of arms; was an officer in the Pequod war, 1637; afterwards went to England, where he served in the civil war; came back to America, and died at Boston, Nov. 12, 1649. His will, dated on the day of his death, makes no mention of wife or children, but leaves a plantation in the island of Antigna to Margaret and Mary Holmes, daughters of his deceased brother Thomas Holmes, who were then in Antigua; and his farm in Scituate to Rachel and Bathsheba Holmes, two other daus, of his said brother, who were then living in London, if they should afterwards come over to New England. In the record of his will at Plymouth, he is called "Major William Holmes." [Old Colony Records, Vol. H., p. 60.] It appears from the Old Colony Records, 1654, that he had lands on the Marshfield side of the North River. At that date, Job Hawkins of Boston appeared as a claimant of those lands, and was allowed to take possession, until a better claim should be established.

It is thought probable that his nicee Mary Holmes afterwards came to New England, and settled in Scituate. The marriage of Mary Holmes with Thomas Tilden, his second wife, is recorded in Marshfield under date of Jan. 24, 1664. There is some probability, moreover, that "Major William Holmes" was uncle or cousin to William Holmes of Marshfield, whose posterity we are about to record.

JOHN HOLMES¹ was taxed at Plymouth in 1633 and 1634, and was freeman in the latter of these years. He was often messenger to the General Court. We find his name on the list of those in Plymouth, who were "able to bear arms," in 1643. He was the father of John Holmes,² who had a grant of land in Duxbury, 1665, and was afterwards of Plymouth; m. Nov. 20, 1661, Patience, dau. of John Faunce, the Plymouth Pilgrim, who came in the Ann, 1623, [and died Nov. 29, 1653] and sister of the venerable elder, Thomas Faunce; and had John,³ b. March 22, 1663; Nathaniel³; Ebenezer³; Thomas³; Joseph³; Desire,3 m. John Churchill; Richard3; Patience,3 m. Nov. 27, 1712, Ichabod Cushman of Middleborough; Mehitabel3; Sarah3; George3; the last five being minors in 1700. The father of this numerous family died in the summer of 1697. [Plym. Prob. 1:347.] He had a brother Nathaniel² who m. Mercy Faunce at Plymouth, Dec. 29, 1667. Nathaniel Holmes² d. at Plymouth, July 25, 1727, a. 84. His wife Mercy d. Feb. 11, 1731-2, a. 81.

From John Holmes¹ of Plymouth and William Holmes¹ of Marshfield, most of the families bearing the name of Holmes in the Old Colony are descended. So far as the present writer is aware, they have always sustained a high character for intelligence, thrift, and all the moral virtues.

For the information of readers at a distance, we would state, that Marshfield is a town in Plymouth County, Massachusetts, about thirty miles southeast from Boston; having Seitnate on the north, Pembroke on the west, Duxbury on the south, and the occan on the east. Kingston lies immediately south from Duxbury, and separates it from the town of Plymouth. Halifax joins Kingston on the west. Pembroke was taken from Duxbury in 1711–12, and Halifax was formed in 1734, of portions of Pembroke, Plympton, and Middleborough. The town last named extends from Plympton and Halifax to Rochester. Marshfield was the residence, in the olden time, of the Winslow family, and more recently, the residence and burial-place of DANLEL WEBSTER.

The materials for the ensuing sketch have been derived from many different sources, among which it would be unjust not to name the researches of Dr. Ezekiel Holmes of Angusta, Me., editor of the Maine Farmer; of Abraham Holmes, Esq., of South Abington, and his grandfather of the same name, who died in 1839; and of Miss Marcia A. Thomas of Marshfield. The compiler has also personally examined the Old Colony and Probate Records at Plymouth.

FIRST GENERATION.

WILLIAM HOLMES' must have been born in 1592, if the record of his death in Murshfield is to be credited. He was of Scituate as early as 1641, and perhaps some few years previous. He was on the list of those in Scituate "able to bear arms," in 1643; was one of the "Conihasset planters"* in 1646; and freeman of Plymouth Colony in 1658. In 1661 he removed across the North River into Marshfield; settled next south from Goodman Carver and Goodman Dingley, near the Lindall estate. There he died Nov. 9, 1678, " being 86 years old," as the records say. His widow ELIZABETH d. Feb. 17, 1688–9, a. 86.

There seems to be a degree of probability that he was a cousin or nephew of Major William Holmes, of whom we have spoken in the Introduction to this Sketch; but whether he was a kinsman of that Abraham Holmes who was wounded and taken prisoner at Sedgemoor, July 6, 1685, and soon after executed, it is impossible even to conjecture. For the affecting story, see Macaulay's England, Vol. I., Chap. V.

His will is dated March 4, 1677-8; proved Feb. 25, 1678-9; and may be found in the Old Colony Records, Vol. IV., p. 2. He bequeaths to his wife, whose name, however, he does not give, one third part of all my housings, lands, chattels, and moveables, after my debts and funeral charges are payed, to be enjoyed by her during her widowhood; but in case of her marrying [she was then 75 years of age !] I bequeath to her five pounds to be paid her by my two sons, Israel and Isaac; and I do give unto my two sons Israel and Isaac [not only their mother's third, but also] two thirds of my whole estate. And I do give to my two sons Josiah and Abraham five shillings each; and to my daughters Elizabeth, Mary, Sarah, and Rebecca twenty shillings a yeare, each of them; and I do give unto all my grandchildren that are now extant five pounds, to be equally divided among them. And I do hereby appoint and constitute my two beloved sons Israel and Isaac to be my executors, &c. In immediate connection with the will, the Records say-" William Holmes of Marshfield deceased Nov. 8, 1678." The Inventory is dated Nov. 25, 1678; the personal estate amounting to £70.

In this will, the testator does not mention his son John, for the reason, as I conceive, that John was then deceased. Another reason probably was, that John had already received, in the cost of his education, his full proportion of the futher's estate. But John's children were no doubt included in the phrase, "all my grandchildren." It is worthy of note that the testator mentions Josiah before Abraham, seeming to imply that Josiah was older than Abraham, which was doubtless the fact.

^{*} The "Conihasset Planters" were a company of twenty-six individuals, who in 1646 purchased a tract of land in Scituate "extending three miles up into the woods from the high-water mark," and a considerable distance along the shore. They were an Association of Proprietors, who conducted their affairs in the manner of a corporation; employing clerks, surveyors, committees, and agents, till 1715. [Deane's Scituate.] Their Records are still preserved in the office of the town clerk of Scituate. Their last meeting on record was in 1767.

SECOND GENERATION.

Rev. JOHN HOLMES,² presumed to be the eldest son of William Holmes' of Marshfield; b. probably in England; m. Dec. 11, 1661, MARY WOOD, dau. of John Wood of Plymouth.*

He was ordained in 1659, as pastor of the church in Duxbury; being the second minister of the second church in Plymouth Colony. He succeeded Rev. Ralph Partridge, the first minister, who was settled there in 1637, and who was eminent for talents and learning, as well as for deep piety. Mr. Partridge died a few days before the probate of his will, which took place May 4, 1658. Mr. Holmes, who was doubtless well known to the people of Duxbury, as having been brought up in Scituate, a neighboring town, seems to have been desired by them immediately to fill the place of their deceased pastor; and this was probably the reason why the name of Mr. Holmes is not found in the

^{*} He is designated on the Records as "John Wood alias Atwood"; and must not be confounded, as he often has been, with John Atwood, gentleman, formerly of London, the Assistant of Plymouth Colony in 1638, and Treasurer thereof till death ; who d. in 1643, and left no issue. See the will of the latter, in Genealogical Register, Vol. 1V., p. 173.

It is no where recorded that Rev. John Holmes of Duxbury was a son of William Holmes of Marshfield; but the evidence is such as to remove all reasonable doubt. The father of the Duxbury minister must have been a resident in the Old Colony, for a reason which may be deduced from a grant made to Rev. John Holmes from the Court, June, 1673, of land in Pinguine-hole [in Sandwich], "in the right of his father." His father's name is not mentioned in the Order of Court, [Old Colony Records, Court Orders, Vol. V., p. 118.] But it is clearly implied therin that the father lived in the Old Colony. The father could not have been John Holmes of Plymonth, the messenger of the General Court, for this man had a son John, the hisband of Patience Fannee, and the father of eleven children. See Introduction to this Sketch. There was no man in the Old Colony who could be the father of the Duxbury pastor, save William Holmes of Marshfield. The similarity of names confirms the position now assumed. William Holmes had a son Isaac, and we find an Isaac among the children of Rev. John Holmes.

Catalogue of Graduates of Harvard College. It is known, however, that in 1658 he was "studying at Cambridge under President Chauncy," a former minister of Scituate.

He was much respected as a minister, and was endeared to his people by the humility and meekness of his character. His pastorate was peaceful and happy; and, so far as we can now judge, productive of none but desirable results.*

Rev. John Holmes died December 24, 1675. His will is dated Dec. 16, 1675; it was exhibited to the Court holden at Plymouth in March, 1675-6; and is found in the Old Colony Records, Wills, Vol. III., Part I., p. 169. He describes himself as "teacher of the Church of Christ at Duxburrow"; gives to his eldest son Joseph all my lattin and Greek books; gives to wife Mary, during her natural life, all my houses and lands in Duxburrow, with all my moveables, excepting, &c. Gives to my three children, Joseph, Mary, and Isaac, all my estate that my said wife shall die possessed of, to be equally divided amongst them. Appoints wife Mary, executrix. "I doe Request my trusty and well-beloved friends, Mr. John Alden and Mr. Constant Southworth to be the overseers of this my last will and testament." Witnesses, Josiah Standish, John Tracye.

His widow Mary became the third wife of Major William Bradford, a distinguished officer in "Philip's war," son of Gov. William Bradford, and himself Deputy Governor from 1682 till the arrival of the new Charter, 1692, except during the usurpation of Andros. She died Jan. 6, 1714-15.

The children of Rev. John Holmes were-

- 11. [†]Joseph,³ b. July 9, 1665; m. 1. Sarah Sprague. 2. Mary Brewster.
- 12. Mary,3 b. ____; is mentioned in her father's will, but of her we have no further knowledge.

13. †Isaac,3 b. 1674; m. Mary Allerton.

JOSIAH HOLMES,² son of William Holmes¹ of Marshfield; m. March 20, 1665-6, HANNAH SAMPSON,² dau. of Henry Sampson of Duxbury. See Sampson Family, in the sequel.

He resided a long time in Duxbury and Marshfield. He was a surveyor of highways in Duxbury, 1681, and constable, 1683. He was of Marshfield in 1696, as appears from a list of the male members of the church in that town at the settlement of Rev. Edward Tompson in that year.[‡] The list is contained in the Church Records, and names

^{*} In 1667, Nathaniel Sonle was brought before the Court, charged with abusing Mr. Holmes "by many false, scandulons, and approbuouse speeches;" and was sentenced to make a public acknowledgment, to pay a fine of twenty pounds, and sit in the stocks at the pleasure of the Court. The latter part of the penalty was remitted at the urgent solicitation of Mr Holmes. Soule confessed that he had remitted at the urgent solicitation of Mr Holmes. Soule confessed that he had heen guilty of "wickedly speaking, and with a high hand contumelionsly villifying and scandulizing Mr. John Holmes," and added, "this my wickedness in soe speaking of soe godly a man, is greatly aggravated in that it hath a tendency to the hindernee of the efficacy of that great and honorable worke of the preaching of the Gospell, unto which he is called." [Winsor's History of Duxbury, p. 179. ‡ He was son of deacon Samuel, and grandson of Rev. William Tompson, both of Braintree; was horn in that town April 20, 1655; H. C. 1684; ordained pastor in Marshfield, Oct. 14, 1696; died March 16, 1704-5, æ. 40.

Josiah Holmes before his brother Abraham. This circumstance, together with the fact that William Holmes, in his will, places the name of Josiah before that of Abraham-thus, "my two sons Josiah and Abraham"-and the more important fact that Josiah was married in 1665,-induce the belief that Josiah was the elder of the two; and this notwithstanding the Church Records of Scituate represent Josiah as having been baptized in 1650, and Abraham in 1641. Probably there is an error of ten years in the former case; no unusual affair in records.

Josiah Holmes, and his brothers Abraham and Isaac, removed to Rochester before 1700; probably in 1697 or 1698; and were among the early settlers of that town.

The children of Josiah Holmes were-

ABRAHAM HOLMES,² son of William Holmes¹ of Marshfield; bap. 1641; m. 1, ELIZABETH ARNOLD, dan. of Rev. Samuel Arnold, who was pastor of the Church in Marshfield from 1659 to 1693; and died there Sept. 3, 1693. She died May, 1690. 2, in 1695, ABIGAIL NICHOLS of Hingham.

He lived in Marshfield till about 1698, when he removed to Rochester, with his brothers Josiah and Isaac. His brother-in-law Samuel Arnold, (b. at Yarmouth, 1649) with a number of others from Marshfield and Duxbury, were already there; and Samuel Arnold, the younger, was ordained their pastor in 1684. Abraham Holmes was town treasurer of Rochester in 1698. His house stood a fourth of a mile southeast from Snow's Pond, on the westerly side of the road. He died April 17, 1722, a. 82. His grave-stone is still standing in the Old Cemetery at Rochester Centre, and is perfectly legible.

His children, all by first wife, were-

Samuel and Bathsheba Doggett had Elizabeth, Ebenezer, Bathshebr, John, Isaac, who were all baptized Sept. 27, 1702; also Lydia, Persis, Seth, Abigail.

* I take this name from Winsor's History of Duxbury. Mr. Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary, calls it (very properly) an impossible name. Probably it is a blunder of the Town Clerk for Dorcas.

ISRAEL HOLMES,² brother of the preceding ; bap. 1642 ; m. Nov. 24, 1681, DESIRE (DOTEY) SHERMAN, dau. of Edward Dotey, who came a youth in the Mayflower in 1620, and widow of William Sherman, Jun., all of Marshfield. She was married to Sherman, Dec. 25, 1667. He d. 1679.

If Israel Holmes had a wife before his marriage with Desire Sherman, nothing is now known of it.*

He spent his youth in Scituate, and his manhood in Marshfield. He was, with Joseph Trouant, "cast away, sailing into Plymouth Harbor, Feb. 24, 1684–5, and drowned, and was buried at Plymouth." [Marshfield Records.

His widow married for her third husband, Alexander Standish,² son of Capt. Miles Standish¹ of Duxbury. He d. 1702. She d. 1723, and her remains rest in the Old Cemetery at Marshfield, near the Church of the First Parish, among the family of her first husband, Sherman. She had five children by the first husband, two by the second, and three, Desire, Thomas, and Ichabod (Standish) by the third.[‡]

He removed from Marshfield to Rochester, about 1697, with his brothers Josiah and Abraham. He settled about half a mile southwest from Abraham, on land not long ago owned and occupied by Capt. Jonathan Vaughan. Josiah lived about half a mile southerly from Isaac.

He was Captain of the Company of militia in Rochester.

His will is dated April 29, 1723; proved May 1, 1724; recorded Plym. Prob. 4: 415. He speaks of himself as "well stricken in years." He mentions "my eldest sons Ebenezer and Cornelius"; of whom Ebenezer is the eldest of the family; "my two youngest sons Isaac and Josinh," and my son Isaac's wife Sarah. He died therefore in 1724, a. 80.

His children, as recorded in Marshfield, were-

His widow Experience lived till 1744, and is supposed to have been the last individual bearing the name of Standish, who occupied that beautiful locality.

As Hon. Abraham Holmes [177] knew nothing of any of these children, except Isaac-knew not even that Capt. Isaac Holmes had such children-it seems to be a matter of plain inference that none except Isaac had in his day, descendants in Rochester.

* Some have supposed that Joanna Sprague was the wife of John Holmes⁴ [35], son of Joseph³ and Sarah (Sprague) Holmes of Kingston. But Joanna Sprague and Sarah Sprague were sisters; and it cannot be believed that John Holmes⁴ [35] would marry his own aunt.

An additional ground of support for the statement in the text is this : Samuel Sprague, Junior, the brother of Sarah and Joanna Sprague, married Bethiah Thomas, the only sister of Sarah Thomas, second wife of John Holmes³ [27.] Nothing was more common, in those days, than such double alliances. Whether John Holmes³ [27] had children by Joanna Sprague is not known.

ISAAC HOLMES,3 (Isaac,2 William,1) brother of the preceding, b. in Marshfield, April 5, 1693; m. SARAH -----.

He lived in Rochester; was a blacksmith; and easily irritated. When at work over his anvil, if the iron did not easily assume the shape he desired, he would say, "I'll smash you," and throw it and his hammer across the shop; then would stand still, scratch his head, and say, "I'm a fool, I think ;" pick up the hammer and iron and go to work again. He was very deaf, which was supposed to be occasioned by the noise of his drum, having, when young, been a drummer in his father's company. He was one of those that united in forming the parish in the northwest part of the town of Rochester.*

He died about the year 1747. His children were-

* About the time of Isaac Holmes's death, a minister of the name of Pell preached in that parish, though he was never settled there. This minister had on one side of his face a mark resembling the impression of a man's hand, of which he gave the following account : When young, as he was taking a morning's walk, he saw in the road before him a young woman of pleasing form and motions, and quickened his steps to overtake her. When he came up, he accosted her with—" Good morning, ma'am; well overtaken!" She turned round, and he found she was an utter stranger. She made no reply, but with her open hand gave him a severe slap on the side of his face, and left him. The slap left an impression on his face, which remained ever after. He was seized with a kind of stupor, and what became of her he could not tell. This story he told, and none ever doubted it; for he was considered a very pions man.

I have given this story from the MS. of Hon. Abraham Holmes [177], who received it from an aunt of his, one of Mr. Pell's hearers. It may pass as a specimen of the stories which were often circulated among our worthy, but too credulous progenitors.

Rev. JOHN THOMPSON, the third of these children, deserves special notice, both on account of the excellence of his character, and the remarkable experience through reading and a taste for poetry. A poetic paraphrase by him of the 137th Psalm, is still remembered. He was a selectman of Pembroke, and held other town offices. He was an officer in the "Old French War," as appears from the Massachusetts Archives, as quoted in the note below. He was also an officer, for about two years, in the war of the Revolution.

which the Providence of God led him. He was born in Kingsborough, July 17, 1799. When about ten years old, he went to live with that most worthy man, Deacon Samuel Giles, whose wife was a consin of his father. Deacon Giles's house was from this time his home. Here he was treated as a child, and trained up in habits of industry and in the fear of the Lord. He became much attached to the family; was as a dutiful son to Mr. and Mrs. Giles, and a kind, affectionate brother to their daughter Sarah, the only child remaining at home.

In the summer of 1819, in a time of religious revival, he became a subject of the renewing grace of God, and united himself, in December of that year, to the Congregational (now Presbyterian) Church in Kingsborough, Rev. Elisha Yale, D. D., pastor. Very soon after, he conceived the purpose of preparing himself to go as a missionary teacher to the Indians of our country. Dr. Yale, however, thought it desirable that he should obtain a thorough education, and he assented. I have his own declaration, that he "commenced a course of liberal study that he might be prepared to preach Christ to the heathen." He fitted for College with Dr. Yale, who gave him his tuition; other friends of Christ—especially Deacon Giles—gave him his board; Mrs. Giles, her daughter, and other ladies, furnished his clothing. He entered the Sophomore class in Middlebury College, September, 1823, and graduated there in 1826. While a member of College, he paid a portion of his expenses by teaching school in vacation. Having parsued a course of Theological study two years at the Seminary at Princeton, N. J., he was licensed to preach in September, 1828, by the Presbytery of Allany, and shortly after ordianed at Kingsborough a missionary to the heathen. His teacher and patron, Dr. Yale, preached the Sermon on the occasion, and gave the Right Hand of Fellowship.

Having previously been accepted as a missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. he embarked at New York, December 16, 1828, in the ship Saluda, Capt. Jennings, for Charleston, S. C., on the way to the Cherokee country, the scene of his future labors. He arrived at Carmel, the missionary station to which he was destined, Jan. 23, 1829. Among the dark sons of the forest, who had already arisen to a degree of civilization, and to some knowledge of the Gospel, under the self-denying labors of the missionaries, he spent more than three years of faithful, earnest toil. His exertions in their behalf were cut short by the violent interference of white men, more savage than the Indians themselves. The people of Georgia had long coveted the lands of the Cherokees, and now determined to obtain possession of them, though secured to the rightful owners by many solemn treaties. The laws of Georgia were extended over the Cherokee Territory, and all persons residing within those limits received notice to swear allegiance to the State aforesaid or to quit the country. The missionaries, who were residing there under the authority of the United States, resolved to do neither. Mr. Thompson, therefore, was arrested by a band of ruffians, appropriately styled "The Georgia Guard," on the 8th of July, 1831; and on one of the hottest days of the year, in that Southern climate, he was chained to the tail of a cart, and compelled to travel at an equal pace with the horses, or be dragged through mud and water, over the roughest roads, till his feet bled profusely and were badly swollen. What little property he had was taken from him. He was thrown into prison, and detained for some time; suffering great hardship and ill treatment from the Georgia Guard. He was released and arrested three times ; and remained in prison in all, three months. At length, he was allowed to depart and return to the North, but without anything to supply his wants by the way. Such was the boasted chivalry of the South! Such the brutal character of slave-holders ! Notwithstanding this infamous treatment, he would have continued to labor among the Cherokees-a service he greatly loved; but the failure of his wife's health, and the impossibility of her recovery if she remained there, constrained him to seek a more northern clime. By great effort, he reached, in April, 1832, with his wife and children, the State of Ohio, where he remained some years, laboring, as he could, in the cause of his Master.

On the 5th of April, 1840, he commenced his labors as pastor of the Congregational Church in Winchester, N. H. Here he spent six years in faithful service in

The Compiler trusts that he may be indulged in what is to him a very pleasant reminiscence. In May, 1823, I left my commercial employment in Philadelphia, and returned to my native city, Boston, for the purpose of engaging in studies pre-paratory to the ministry of the Gospel. I took Kingsborough, N. Y., in my way, and passed a very happy week in the family of my mother's uncle, Deacon SAMUEL GLES. While there, I called, one day, at the house of Rev. Mr. Yale to see some young men who were under his tuition preparing for College, with the expectation of devoting their lives to the same blessed work of preaching salvation to a dying world. In a small room, in Mr. Yale's house, which was used for the purpose, I found Ebenezer C. Beach, John Thompson, Samuel W. Cozzens, and John Jason Owen, all of them from families in moderate circumstances, residing in Kingsborough or the vicinity. Beach and Thompson entered Middlebury College in Sept., 1823; Cozzens and Owen, a year after. All of them became useful and worthy ministers. Beach was settled as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Lysander, N. Y., and has never changed his field of labor, but still remains there, though, as he has been suffering from great deafness during some years past, he may have been compelled to retire from official duty. He was son of Amos and Olive Beach of Kingsborough. See p. 82 of this volume. Of Thompson, I have already spoken in full. Cozzens and Owen were class-mates of mine at the Seminary at Andover, 1828-31. Cozzens was settled in the ministry at Marblehead and Milton, near Boston, and is now acting pastor at Weybridge, Vt., a town adjacent to Middlebury. His wife was a dan of Dr. Bass of Middlebnry, and a sister of the wife of Rev. Justin Perkins, D. D., the founder of the Mission of the A. B. C. F. M. to the Nestorians in Persia. Owen has greatly distinguished himself as Editor and Nestorians in Persia. Owen has greatly distinguished himself as Editor and Annotator of Greek Classics, such as the Anabasis of Xenophon, the Iliad and Odyssey of Homer, and some of the books of the New Testament. His edition of the Anabasis is used as a text book in our best Academies, and his Iliad and Odvssey in Harvard and other Colleges, and his judgment as a Commentator is greatly respected. He is Professor of the Greek and Latin Languages in the Free Academy in the City of New York; and has received the Honorary Degrees of D. D. and LL. D.

EXPERIENCE HOLMES,⁴ (Experience,³ Abraham,² William,¹) posthumous son of Experience Holmes3 of Rochester; b. there May 29, 1716, O. S., answering to June 9, N. S.; m. Dec. 13, 1737, HAN-NAH SAMPSON,4 b. Nov. 4, 1715, dau. of Abraham Sampson3 of Duxbury, "who lived on the north side of Bluefish river at the going on to Powder Point."

Peter Thacher, minister from 1709 till 1744, of the First Church in Middleborough. After his marriage, he occupied the homestead of his father in Rochester. Here his first child, Susanna, was born. His next place of residence was in Sniptuit, a locality in Rochester, on the westerly part of the Bacon farm. This house was struck with lightning, and was famed for being haunted, and for strange and preternatural noises. He had several other places of residence in the vicinity. From 1757 to 1782 he occupied and owned a farm, about one hundred rods west of Mr. Chaddock's meeting-house, in the Third Parish in Rochester, in the N. W. part of that town.

He was a man of small size, and never weighed more than 136 pounds, but was agile and quick in his motions, and in wrestling, which was then considered a great accomplishment, few could excel him. He was expert in handling a gun, and fond of hunting and fowling, which he sometimes pursued to excess, and to the injury of his health. His education had been neglected; but he had strong reasoning powers; was well acquainted with the Bible and well read in polemical divinity, so that few clergymen could baffle him in argument. He had a ready flow of animal spirits, though at times, and for a year or two together, it was altogether the reverse. He possessed a good share of native wit, and was prompt at repartee. In 1762, he with many others left the Third Parish in Rochester and embraced Baptist sentiments.*

Orsamus Holmes has given an interesting account of himself, and of his services and sufferings in the Revolutionary war. This account having been printed in the former part of this volume, pp. 56, 57, before this History of the Holmes Family was contemplated, need not here be repeated in full. It appears that in May, 1775, being then a resident in Pittsfield, Mass., and in the eighteenth year of his age, he enlisted as a private in a regiment of Provincial troops, commanded by Col. Easton. This regiment, in the autumn of that year, formed a part of the army of General Montgomery, in the invasion and nearly accomplished conquest of Canada. The soldiers suffered much from fatigue, sickness, and the inclemency of the season. The small-pox broke out among them, and many died. The assault on Quebec, upon the last night of the year, 1775, failed ; and Montgomery was killed. On the arrival of reinforcements to the enemy, early in May following, the American forces were compelled to a hasty evacuation of the Province. In Nov. 1776, the regiment was called to the assistance of the main army under Washington, then lying at Morristown, N. J. On the 31st of Dec., at the expiration of his term of enlistment, Orsamus Holmes went home to his father at Springfield, Vt., having been absent three years.

On the invasion of Burgoyne, July, 1777, the militia of Vermont were called out, and Orsamus Holmes again appeared among the defenders of his country. He next enlisted in Col. Herrick's regiment, which was constantly employed in the scouting service. Venturing too far, on the night of Nov. 12, he was taken prisoner; conveyed to St. Johns, Montreal, and Quebec. With some others, he made his escape, by night, July 26, 1778, from the prison-ship in which he was confined. Before he could reach the New England settlements, he was retaken and earried back to Montreal. Again, on the night of Sept. 18, 1778, he escaped by leaping from a window of his prison, and after much fatigue and hardship, arrived at a frontier settlement at Monckton, Vt.

After this, he retired from the tumult of war, to the peaceful abode of his father in Springfield, Vt., where he entered on married life, as already stated. He settled on a farm in Springfield, and lived there until 1793, when he removed with his family to Sherburne, Chenango Co., N.Y.* He resided in the latter place till March, 1805, when he moved to Pomfret, Chautauque Co., N. Y. He was one of the earliest pioneers of that County. A notice of him and of his daughter Ruth, may be found in Orsamus Turner's History of the Holland Purchase, p. 510. He held the office of Postmaster, and was an elder in the Presbyterian Church in that town. He continued to reside there until 1833, when he moved with his wife to the town of Killbuck, in Holmes Co., Ohio, where his son Abner had preceded him. He died Aug. 26, 1835, æ. 78. His wife Ruth died Oct. 7, 1835. Both are buried in the village of Oxford, in the same County.

had previously been President of the Court of Sessions, and though not regularly educated for the profession, the members of the Bar voted his admission in consideration of "his respectable official character, learning, and abilities, on condition that he study three months in some attorney's office." He might be called, with great propriety, a selfmade lawyer. He continued in practice till August, 1835, when eightyone years of age, with a considerable degree of reputation and success. Even when thus advanced in life, he was a regular attendant upon the sessions of the Courts, and was regarded as an acute and learned lawyer. In his intercourse with the Bar, he was courteous and familiar, especially toward the younger members. He was full of anecdote and traditional lore, abounding in wit and humor. His mind was well stored with facts, relating to the older members of the Bar, and so late as June, 1834, when eighty years of age, he delivered a very interesting address at New Bedford, to the Bar of Bristol County, in » which he discoursed of the rise and progress of the profession in Massachusetts, with sketches of the early lawyers, of the necessity of such an order of men, and upon the duties of the profession.

He was a member of the Executive Council of Massachusetts, for the political year May 1821-22, and May 1822-23, when Governor Brooks was in office. After his decease, the members of the Bar of the Counties of Bristol, Plymouth, and Barnstable, at a meeting held at Plymouth, Oct. 25, 1839, paid a most respectful tribute to his talents, learning, and character; and adopted a resolution expressing a high sense of his professional worth; as a man "whose mind was enriched with various learning, whose memory was a repository of the most valuable reminiscences; whose legal attainments gave him high professional eminence: and whose social qualities were an ornament of the circle of friendship during a long life of integrity and usefulness."

He collected for the entertainment of his children a large mass of information touching the several families from which they were descended; of which the present writer has availed himself, through the kindness of his grandson Abraham Holmes, Esq., of South Abington.

He spent his life in Rochester; and died Sept. 7, 1839, a. 85. His wife Bethiah died Dec. 14, 1832, æ. 74.

He was a man of intelligence, enterprise, and influence, and did considerable business. He was a Surveyor of land, and Justice of the Peace. His second marriage was fortunate for him, as he was reduced in property, and the lady was possessed of a handsome estate. In the latter part of his life, he became the subject of mental derangement. Hon. JOHN HOLMES,⁶ (Melatiah,⁶ Joseph,⁴ Joseph,³ John,² William,¹) son of Melatiah⁵ and Elizabeth⁵ (Bradford) Holmes of Kingston; b. there, March 28, 1773; m. 1, Sept. 22, 1800, SALLY BROOKS, b. at Dighton, Feb. 23, 1773, dau. of Noah and Hannah Brooks of Scituate. She d. at Alfred, Me., Dec. 6, 1835, a. 63.

2, July 31, 1837, at Thomaston, Me., CAROLINE F. (KNOX) SWAN, widow of James Swan, son of Col. James Swan of Boston, and youngest daughter of Major General Henry Knox, a distinguished commander in the Revolution, and President Washington's first Secretary of War. She d. a widow, in Thomaston, in October, 1851.

His early life was passed as a manufacturer, in the extensive Iron Works of his father in Kingston. A college student, who was teaching school in the village, struck with the intelligence he discovered, advised his father to have him educated. He was prepared for college under the instruction of Rev. Zephaniah Willis of Kingston. He entered Brown University, one year in advance, and graduated at that institution in 1796. He studied law with Benjamin Whitman of Hanover, who was then in full practice in the Old Colony. Admitted to the Bar in 1799, he established himself as a lawyer, in September of that year, in Alfred, then a district of the town of Sanford in Maine, and incorporated as a town in 1808. The titles to land in that part of the country, much of which had been recently peopled, were then in an unsettled state; many actions were brought in the Courts, and much legal talent was called into exercise. These cases brought Mr. Holmes into extensive and lucrative practice. For several years he was the leader of the York Bar. Yet he was not a lawyer of the first order; he was not profound as a thinker, nor deeply read as a scholar, and his reputation seemed to rest chiefly on his ready wit and quickness at rejoinder and repartee. He never allowed his temper to be discomposed, and was found an equal, if not in argument, at least in the adroitness with which he managed his cases, to the ablest members of the profession in that region.

After eleven or twelve years of successful practice of the law, his ambition led him to abandon that noble profession for the keen competition and unworthy methods of party politics. Originally a federalist of the school of Washington, but finding that side unpopular in Maine, he suddenly forsook his old associates, and in 1811, became the advocate of the national administration, and the war measures of Clay and Madison. At the very next election he was chosen representative from Alfred to the Legislature of Massachusetts, and a member of the Senate in 1813. He immediately became an ardent and active leader of the party he had espoused. The suddenness of his change of sentiment, and the zeal he now exhibited against the cause he had so many years upheld, became the subject of severe rebuke on the part of his former associates. In 1816, he was chosen to represent the York District in Congress, and was reëlected in 1818 without opposition. He had a principal hand in the measures which resulted in the separation of Maine from Massachusetts. He sanctioned, if he did not invent, that new arithmetic which found in five-ninths of the aggregate majorities in the several towns the requisite five-ninths of the whole number of votes cast in the then District of Maine, for or against separation. This strange arithmetic did not satisfy the Legislature of Massachusetts, nor the great body of intelligent people; and the separation was therefore deferred two or three years. When at length, after much effort, the separation was accomplished, in 1820, Mr. Holmes was elected the first Senator in Congress from the new State, and continued to hold that honorable station till 1827. In 1828, he was again elected to the Senate for the unexpired term of Judge Parris, who was appointed to the bench of the Supreme Court of Maine. In 1833, his Congressional life ceased.

"Few persons have had their ambition more fully gratified than Mr. Holmes. The road of public life was freely opened before him, and he appeared to have attained whatever in that direction he most desired. That he acquired a very exalted or enviable reputation cannot be truly asserted. That he derived from his public honors as much satisfaction as he would have acquired in the quiet progress of his profession, we do not believe."

He removed, after his second marriage, to Thomaston, where he resided the principal portion of the time till 1841; when, having been appointed District Attorney of the United States, he divided his residence between Portland and Thomaston. He died at Portland, July 7, 1843, a. 70.

The preceding sketch is abridged from a Biographical Memoir of Mr. Holmes, contained in a "History of the Law, the Courts, and the Lawyers of Maine," by Hon. William Willis of Portland, just published.

^{*} The MARSHALL FAMILY, of Norwich, Ct.

There were several original emigrants to these shores, of the name of Marshall; and the name is now quite common in the United States.

I. EDMUND MARSHALL,¹ came from England, about 1636. He was ad-mitted freeman of Massachusetts, May 17, 1637. It is supposed that he emigrated from the Old Country with Rev. Richard Blinman, who is said, perhaps inac-curately, to have been a Welshman, who was minister of Chepstow, England, and

He was adopted, when an infant, on the death of his mother, by Daniel Ellis, son of Rev. John Ellis, who was minister of West Farms, (then a part of Norwich, but now and since 1786, the town of Franklin, Ct.,) from 1752 to 1779, and who died in said Franklin, in 1805. He went to school to Rev. Samuel Nott, D.D., the successor of Mr. Ellis; and resided in Franklin, and in Norwich, until 1808. He studied medicine with Dr. Philemon Tracy of Norwich, and was licensed to practise by the Connecticut Medical Society, Aug. 3, 1808.

He first settled in Oxford, Chenango County, N. Y., in 1808, and remained there until the autumn of 1809, when he removed to Mayville, Chautauqua County, in the same State. On the organization of that County, Feb. 9, 1811, he was appointed its first clerk, and held the office until he moved, in March, 1815, to Buffalo, where he continued to Edmund Marshall, it appears, removed to New London, with Mr. Blinman, either in 1648, or as others think, in 1651.

11. JOHN MARSHALL,² son of Edmund, came with his father to New London, and settled there.

Of Edmund Marshall and his son John, our knowledge is very limited, and we are not sure that they belong in this pedigree. What now follows is matter of record.

ABIAL MARSHALL,3 we suppose to have been a son, possibly a grandson, 111. of this John Marshall, though we have no positive proof of it. There seems however to be no reasonable doubt of the fact. He m. at New London, Nov. 18, 1708, ABIAN HOUGH, b. 1690, third dau. of Capt. John and Sarah (Post) Hough of New London. They settled at Norwich. He is mentioned in Miss Calkins's History of Norwich, p. 155, as owner of land there in 1729.

- Sarah,⁴ b. April 12, 1720; m. Dec. 26, 1743, Capt. James Hyde, b. Feb. 28, 1707, second cousin to her mother. They had five sons and one daughter, all of whom except one (Rev. Simeon Hyde, minister of Deerfield, N. J.,) married and had large families. The Rev. and venerable Charles Cleveland of Boston, born June 21, 1772, whom we still see in our streets, pursuing his benevolent labors as minister and almoner to the poor of our city, is her grandson. His son Charles Dexter Cleveland of Philadelphia, formerly Professor of Latin in the University of New York, a distinguished scholar and classical annotator; William E. Dodge, of the firm of Phelps, Dodge, & Co., an eminent and prosperous merchant of New York, well known for his princely donations to every benevolent enterprise; Margaret Cleveland, wife of Lewis F. Allen of Buffalo; the late Judge James Hyde of Richfield Springs; and many other respectable names, are among her descendants.
- IV. Thomas,⁴ b. July 1, 1724; m. March 23, 1750, Anne Manwaring, b. Nov. 20, 1725, dau. of Oliver and Hannah (Hough) Manwaring of New London. She was his first cousin, her mother Hannah Hough being sister of Abiah Hough, came to New England through the influence of Governor Winslow of Plymouth Colony. Mr. Blinman, or Blynman, preached at Marshfield, the residence of Gov. Winslow, for some brief time after his coming over, and was the first minister of that place; although that honor has been commonly assigned to Rev. Edward Bulkley, son of Rev. Peter Bulkley of Concord. Mr. Blumnan, however, removed burkey, son of they feel burkey of concrot. Ar. binning, however, removed to Gloucester in 1641; and subsequently to this removal became a freeman of Massachusetts Colony, Oct. 7, 1641. Mr. Blinman preached at Gloucester about seven years, and in 1648, went to New London, Ct., where he was the first min-ister, and where he remained ten years. He is styled "a godly, able minister." He went to New Haven, in 1658, and after a short residence there, returned to England, and died at Bristol, "in a good old age."

Tompkins, Feb. 29, 1812, Surgeon of Col. McMahan's Regiment of Chautauqua County Volunteers, and served with the regiment on the Niagara frontier during the years 1813 and 1814.

He had an extensive practice and a high reputation as a physician and surgeon; and was an elder in the First Presbyterian Church in Buffalo. THE JENNISON FAMILY.

PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

THE compiler of this volume, who is a descendant of the JENNISON family, had begun to investigate its history and had written out a Memoir, occupying a dozen pages quarto, as long ago as March, 1852. A year afterwards, it accidentally came to his knowledge, that Dr. Bond of Philadelphia had compiled a brief account of the Jennisons; and a proof-sheet containing this account was put into his hands. Finding therein some errors and deficiencies, he wrote to Dr. Bond on the subject; and the result was the enlarged and corrected account, which is inserted in the Second Part of that most elaborate and admirable work, The WATERTOWN GENEALOGIES, pp. 801–814, prepared for it by the present writer and his esteemed friend, Rev. Edwin Jennison, whom he had the pleasure of introducing to the author of the volume just referred to.

The account of the JENNISONS, which has already appeared in Dr. Bond's work, does not render the ensuing Memoir unnecessary. In the following pages, large additions have been made; many errors have been corrected; a new and better arrangement has been introduced; and a copious INDEX at the end of the volume will enable the reader to find any name without loss of time. Dr. Bond's work has no Index; a most serious deficiency.

To the ensuing Memoir, a few notices of the name as existing in England are here prefixed. The number might be greatly increased.

Thomas Ward, a papist in the sixteenth century, published a Poem, entitled "England's Reformation," recounting the persecutions, as he regarded them, suffered by the Roman Catholics, and the secularization of the abbeys and other religious houses under Henry VIII. In this connection, he says—

> "The learned abbot Farringdon, And Commissary Peterson, John Beck, abbot of Colchester, And JENNISON, renowned in war, Were put to death —____," etc.

This Jennison, he adds in a note, "was a Knight of Malta."

The following is an extract from "The History of Popish Sham Plots," etc., printed London, 1682 :--- "We must not here forget, how Mr. Tho. Jennison, a Jesuite, and then in Newgate for the Plot (though dead since) endeavored to frighten his brother, Mr. Robert Jennison, from prosecuting his discovery, by charging him, in a letter he wrote to him, with the blood of an innocent man, and a kinsman, perjury, perfidiousness, apostasy, imitating, yea, outdoing Judas himself, and then devoting him to destruction, in several verses collected out of the Psalms. But he, being wholly innocent of all these erimes, slighted this vain and empty thunder; for as birds flying, so the curse causeless shall not come; and his brother could not pervert him, though he did the Holy Scriptures." Pp. 39, 40.

This Robert Jennison, it appears, was "a Gentleman of Gray's Inn," who bore testimnoy, in 1678, in concurrence with Oates, Bedloe, Prance, Dugdale, and others, to the existence of a Popish plot to murder King Charles II., set fire to London, murder the Protestants, and elevate the Duke of York to the throne.

Thoresby, in his Diary, speaks of Sir Ralph Jenison of Newcastle, in 1681, and of Walworth Hall, "a delicate seat of the Jenisons," near Peirce Bridge.

The nicce and heiress of Sir Matthew Jenison married Sir Samuel Gordon, who was created a baronet in 1764. They were the parents of Sir Jenison William Gordon, "customer," or collector, of the port of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, who died in 1831, aged 84.

FIRST GENERATION.

Among the early settlers of Watertown, were two who bore the name of JENNISON, William and Robert. They were brothers.

The New England families, now bearing this name, are all, it is believed, descendants from Robert. But as William was the more eminent of the two, and as he occupies an honorable place in the early history of the country, this Memoir would not be complete without some notice of him.

WILLIAM JENNISON,^{1*} the elder of the two brothers, came from England in the fleet, and probably in the ship Arbella, (properly Arabella) with Winthrop, in 1630. No notice has been discovered of either wife or children.

His name appears on the list of those who first signified their⁴" desire to be made freemen," Oct. 19, 1630; and he was admitted freeman on the 18th of May following; the earliest date of the admission of any persons of the Colony. There is no reason to doubt that he came to Watertown at its earliest planting, and that he was one of the forty men, who with "that excellent knight," Sir Richard Saltonstall, united in the formation of the church there, July 30, 1630. He was a leading man in that town, and was chosen selectman, from 1634 to 1644, with the exception of one year. He was one of the first three Commissioners for Watertown, appointed in 1638, "to end small causes"; and he appears to have held this office, by re-appointments, until his return to England. The Colonial Records show that the Court had great confidence in his capacity and integrity. He received numerous appointments on committees, of which he was often chairman, for determining boundaries between towns, and for laying out new towns; also to consider questions of taxation, Indian affairs, and contested land claims.

The prefix "Mr." was commonly attached to his name; it was then an honor sparingly bestowed. He was Deputy, or Representative, of the town in the General Court, from 1635 to 1642; also 1645.

Aug. 16, 1631, "Mr. William Jennison was chosen," by the Court, "Ancient [Ensign] to Capt. Patrick." Captain Daniel Patrick of Watertown, had been a soldier in the Prince's Guard in Holland. He and Capt. John Underhill of Boston, were appointed, in Sept. 1630, to have the charge of military affairs in the Colony, which office they continued to hold till 1637. Mr. Jennison was Ensign till March 9, 1636-7, when he was chosen Captain of the Watertown Train-band ; which office he held till his return to England. He was, so far as we are informed, the first captain of the train-band, or company ; the order for the organization of the military force of the Colony in three regiments, composed of town companies, having been passed only in the December previous.

Mr. John Oldham having been murdered in July, 1636, by the Pequod Indians, a force of ninety men was sent from the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, in September following, to punish those Indians for that atrocity. This force was placed under four commanders, of which Ensign Jennison was one. In May, 1637, Captain Jennison was appointed by the Court one of four commissioners for providing men, munitions, and provisions, for this dangerous war. He was an original member of the "Great Artillery Company," incorporated March 13, 1638–9, which has long and favorably been known as "The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company,"

He had a homestall of fifty acres, on the north side of what is now Mount Auburn Street, between Common and School Streets, a little to the south of Strawberry or School-House Hill. This was much larger than the average of the homestalls or home-lots, assigned to the first settlers by the freemen of the town. Few of them exceeded sixteen acres. Probably, Capt. Jennison had at first a smaller lot, afterwards increased by grant or purchase to fifty acres. We find, indeed, that he was grantee of eleven lots, of which he had sold seven before 1644. Besides his homestall, he had 220 acres of land in Watertown. The Court also granted him, Sept. 3, 1638, two hundred acres of land, in what was afterwards Framingham.

About 1645, he sold his homestall to Rev. John Knowles, who had been ordained, Dec. 9, 1640, as the colleague pastor of the Rev. George Phillips, over the Church in Watertown. Soon after this, Capt. William Jennison went to England, where he resided during the remainder of his life. He was "of Colchester, Old England," April 8, 1657, when his brother Robert, as his attorney, conveyed to Edmund Rice two hundred acres of land in Framingham, granted to him in 1638, by the General Court, as already stated: bounded west by the Dunster furm, north by Sudbury line, east by Watertown line, south by Dedham bounds. Watertown at that time included Waltham, Weston, and most of Lincoln. This conveyance shows that William Jennison was living in England, in 1657, and renders it probable that the Jennison family came from Colchester, in Essex. At what time he died, we are not informed.

For a view of Capt. Jennison's character and worth, see Winthrop, II. 176.

He was a staunch friend of civil and religious liberty; and sometimes a sufferer for this cause. He was fined £20 by the Court, Oct. 6, 1634, "for upbraiding the Court with injustice, uttering these words, 'I pray God, deliver me from this Court;' professing he had waited from Court to Court, and could not have justice done him." This, of course, was an arbitrary and high-handed proceeding. At the next Court, April 7, 1635, this fine was remitted. Not far from this time, he was arraigned for privately expressing his opinion in reference to the course pursued by the British Parliament. He refused to vote for the condemnation and banishment of Mrs. Anne Hutchinson, in 1637.

ROBERT JENNISON,⁴ brother of the preceding, was, as already stated, the ancestor of the existing New England families. He was probably several years younger than William. His name is not on the earliest list of Watertown Proprietors (Feb. 1636–7), but he was certainly there at that time, or very shortly after, as he had a daughter born in that town, April 1637; the earliest notice of him which has been discovered. He was admitted freeman, in May, 1645.

He was grantee of six lots of land, in Watertown. His homestall of six acres was in the angle where Cambridge Road and Bank Lane began, a little to the east from Mill Bridge.^{*} Besides this, we find him in 1644, in possession of eighty-five acres; and he afterwards seems to have been the possessor of much more.

In a deed given by him, Aug. 10, 1672, he calls himself "yeoman." His will is dated Sept. 15, 1683, with a codicil, April 2, 1687; proved Oct. 7, 1690; recorded Midd. Prob. 7: 99. He gives to his wife his whole estate, during her natural life; to his dau. Michal Warren, forty shillings; to his son-in-law George Read, twenty shillings; to his grandson William Jennison, forty acres of land, "which was my brother's, formerly granted to him by this town;" to his grandson Robert Jennison, thirty acres of my farm, "which was formerly my brother William Jennison's." After the wife's death, his son Samuel is to have the whole estate, except as above given. His son Samuel Jennison is appointed Executor. Inventory taken July 24, 1690.

He died July 4, 1690.

He was twice married; 1, to ELIZABETH ------, who d. Oct. 30, 1638, a. 30. 2, to GRACE ------, who d. Nov. 26, 1686.

Ensign SAMUEL JENNISON,² son of Robert¹ and Grace Jennison of Watertown; b. there, 1645; m. Oct. 30, 1666, JUDITH MACOMBER.

He spent his life in Watertown, and had for those days a handsome property, chiefly in land. In sundry deeds, he is called "yeoman," and "gentleman." Rev. WILLIAM JENNISON,⁴ (Samuel,³ Samuel,² Robert,¹) second son of Samuel³ and Mary³ (Stearns) Jennison; b. in Watertown, Feb. 6, 1706-7; m. in Salem, May 15, 1730, ABIGAIL LINDALL,⁴ b. June 16, 1713, fourth dau. of James Lindall, Esquire, of Salem. [LINDALL 33].

⁻ He grad. H. C. 1724; in February 1728, was chosen pastor of the East Church, in Salem; and ordained on the second day of May following. The sermon on the occasion was preached from Rom. i: 9, by the Rev. Peter Clark of the Second Church in Salem, now the First Church in Danvers.*

His prospects, for a time, were bright and flattering. Connected by marriage with one of the most respectable and wealthy families in Salem, and pastor of a flourishing Church in that ancient town, he might promise himself a long life of comfort and usefulness. But the gay illusions of hope were soon changed to bitter disappointment. A general disaffection of the Society towards him ere long arose; the cause of which is now unknown. Sept. 13, 1736, he asked, and soon after received, a dismission from his pastoral charge. In the absence of information to the contrary, it is fair to presume that he had done nothing to forfeit his Christian or ministerial character. From a proposition made to one of the Committee, that the parish should supply the pulpit for a certain term of time, and continue his salary, it would seem as if he were disabled by some bodily infirmity from discharging his duties. Whatever may have been the reason of his dismission, he received it submissively and sorrowfully, as he tells the Society in a letter which we shall place in a note below.[†]

Rev. Peter Clark, so of Uriah and Joanna (Holbrook) Clark, was b. March 12, 1693-4; H. C. 1712; ord. pastor, at "Salem Village," now Danvers, June 5, 1717; and died much honored and lamonted, June 10, 1768, æ. 75. He was pastor at Danvers, 51 years, and had a high reputation for learning and piety. "The learned minister of Danvers." [Bond's Watertown Genealogies, p. 160.

[†] The following is his letter of acquisecence in a dismission, addressed to the Church and Society. We take it from Rev. Dr. James Flint's Discourse at the Dedication of the New Meeting House of the East Society, Salem, Jan. 1, 1846.

Declication of the New Meeting House of the East Society, Salem, Jan. I, 1846. "HONORED AND BELOVED-I esteem myself very unhappy that I have fallen ander your displeasure. Glad would I be, if it lay in my power to fulfil the ministry I have received among you [so] as to approve myself to God and the consciences of all of us. But when I consider the great and long uneasiness and dissatisfaction you have labored under, (for which I am hearily sorry.) I despair of being reinstated in your love and affection so as to answer the great ends of the sacred office among you. I am therefore willing to accept a dismission from the sacred office among you: — which I write with fear and trembling, not knowing at present what will become of me and mine; but earnestly trusting to your favor and kindness towards us under the difficulties of my situation; and which you have encouraged me to hope for, upon my being freely and willingly dismissed. I heartily wish the best of blessings to your dear Church and flock. My eye and heart is lifted up to the Lord Jesus, the Great Shepherd and Bishop of souls, that he would feed and lead you; and that you may again be settled in the peaceable and profitable enjoyment of the word and ordinances of God. Thus

^{*} He was a native of Watertown, son of Uriah Clark,² b. in Watertown, June 5, 1644, whose second wife was (not Martha Pease, as in Bond's Watertown Genealogies, but) Joanna Holbrook,³ dau. of Thomas Holbrook³ of Braintree. See Vinton Memorial, p. 334. Martha Pease was Uriah Clark's third wife.

The kind spirit of this letter, its meek and gentle tone, the entire absence of all bitterness and recrimination, with its calm and childlike trust in God, are in a high degree honorable to the heart of him who penned it. Rarely if ever have we met with any document of the kind more touching. It was then no light calamity for a minister of the gospel to be dismissed; to be cast adrift on the wide world, not knowing where to go. It was no easy matter to retrieve the blow. Even the "prince of modern divines," whose superior has perhaps not been seen since the days of Paul, and whose reputation, after the lapse of a century, is still in the ascendant,—even he, when dismissed from North-ampton, in 1751, found no place open to receive him; and it may be doubted whether even his extraordinary talents and transcendent moral worth would have saved him from absolute and pinching want, had the question been left to the decision of a Parish Committee. It seems that our afflicted ancestor had distressing apprehensions as to the result in his case; but God took care of him and his, in the time to come.

He preached as a temporary supply in Westborough, Holden, and other places; he also taught school in Worcester, but did not again assume a pastoral charge.* He was the teacher of the Public School in his native town of Watertown, at the time of his deccase, April 1, 1750. a. 43.

Mrs. Abigail Jennison died Jan. 1, 1765, æ. 52. In the latter part of her life she resided in (South) Danvers; perhaps with her daughter, Mrs. Giles. Her father, James Lindall, Esq., of Salem, left her some property, which descended to her children. See p. 30. She died in-committing you to God and the word of his grace, which is able to build you up again, and to give you an inheritance among them that are sanctified by faith in Christ Jesus, I remain your sorrowful friend, but very humble servant.

WILLIAM JENNISON."

The address on the outside is-

There is another letter of his, dated May 7, 1741, in which he says-"I am now at Worcester, in the business of the School, and preach at Holden"formerly a part of Worcester; incorporated as a town, Jan. 9, 1740; a church organized there, Dec. 22, 1742, and Rev. Joseph Davis ord. its pastor same day-"but gainzed there, Dec. 22, 1742, and New Joseph Davis but. Its pastor same day—but an uncertain whether 1 shall continue in the School, because it won't do for me to oblige myself to take my pay in Land Bank." The "Land Bank" was a Company formed in 1741, or about that time, but not incorporated, which issued Bills of Credit to a large amount, on land security. The Bills were redeemable in twenty years, not in gold and silver coin, but in the manu-factures of the Province. It was a very unsafe scheme, and came to an end the next year, 1742.

* The Whipple Family.

Tradition reports that the Whipple family came originally from Wales, and that there were four brothers, David, Jeremiah, William, and Thomas. The present sketch is concerned only with the posterity of David.

DAVID WHIPPLE1 purchased lands in Cumberland, R. I., then a part of Rehoboth, Mass., of Mr. Blackstone, son of the celebrated William Blackstone, the first settler on the peninsula of Shawmut, [Boston] which he occupied probably as early as 1624. He settled in Rehoboth, the part which is now Cumherland, in 1634, where 1624. He settled in Kehoboth, the part which is now Cumherland, in 1634, where he lived till his death, May 26, 1675. At what time David Whipple made the land purchase of his son, the writer is not informed; the purchaser, however, seems to have been in advanced years. Some of his descendants occupied the same land in 1848, and they probably still occupy it. The estate descended to his son Jeremiah Whipple,² who was b. 1655, m. — Shippy [Shippeu ?] and d. 1720, leaving his property to his son Jeremiah,³ Jeremiah Whipple,³ b. 1684, m. SAMUEL JENNISON,7 Esq., (Samuel,6 William, * William,* Samuel,3 Samuel,2 Robert,1) son of Samuel6 and Sally (Fiske) Jennison; b. in Brookfield, Feb. 24, 1788; m. Oct. 15, 1816, MARY GOULD ELLERY, dau. of Edmund Trowbridge Ellery of Newport, R. I., who was a son of William Ellery, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Her mother was Katharine Almy.

He was living in Brookfield with his maternal grandfather, Rev. Nathan Fiske, D. D., at the death of the latter, which occurred Nov. 24, 1799. Early in 1800, at the age of twelve, he came to Worcester, to live with his uncle, Hon. Oliver Fiske, a respectable physician, who also had a store of "English and West India Goods." He tended his uncle's store till April, 1810, when he was appointed accountant in the Worcester Bank, then the only institution of the kind between Boston and Pittsfield. Of this bank, he was chosen Cashier, Aug., 1812; an office which he held until his resignation in Sept., 1846, thirty-four years. He was also Treasurer of the Worcester County Savings Institution, from April, 1828, till Oct., 1853, a period of twenty-five and a half years; and was more than ten years Treasurer, (viz., from Feb., 1847, to June, 1857,) of the State Lunatic Hospital, at Worcester. He was one of the early members of the American Antiquarian Society; its first Librarian, 1814-1825; its Treasurer, 1829-1843. and again from 1846, till his death. In all the trusts with which he was honored, he was found competent and faithful; and had the respect and confidence, in a high degree, of all who knew him.

Of him it may be truly and emphatically said, that he was a gentleman, and a Christian; a man of large benevolence, of gentle spirit, of polished manners, and of incorruptible integrity. Fond of historical and antiquarian research, it is safe to say,—says one* who may well be supposed to know-that no man in our Commonwealth knew so extensively, minutely, and accurately, the personal history of men who have become eminent on the American soil. He was familiar, moreover, with the whole range of British classical literature, from Chaucer to the present time.

He died at Worcester, after a brief illness, on Sunday, March 11. 1860, a. 72. His widow still resides at Worcester.

THE LEONARD FAMILY OF SPRINGFIELD.

PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

THE Genealogical Register for October, 1851, contains an interesting Memoir of the LEONARD Family of Taunton, prepared by Mr. William Reed Deane of Brookline, whose wife was a descendant of that Family. The Leonards of Taunton deduce their origin from JAMES LEONARD, as their first American ancestor. He and his brother Henry, came to this country previous to 1650, and were employed during some years in connection with the Iron Works at Braintree and Lynn, owned by the "Company of Undertakers," in London. For a History of these Iron Works, see Vinton Memorial, pp. 463-473. Henry and James Leonard came from Pontypool, Monmouthshire, South Wales, a place situated among iron mines, and celebrated for the working of iron from an early date. They left Braintree, in 1652, and established a forge in Raynham, which was then a part of This forge, the first erected in Plymouth Colony, continued Taunton. in successful operation in the hands of James Leonard and his posterity during several generations, and indeed is still in existence, and owned by a descendant of that family. Henry Leonard, brother of James, went to New Jersey, soon after 1674, and established the iron manufacture, in that Colony.

It has been supposed that JOHN LEONARD' of Springfield, 1636, was a brother of James and Henry Leonard, already mentioned. There is a tradition among the Springfield Leonards, that such was the fact. Indeed, we know that James Leonard had a brother John. We learn this from a statement made by Mrs. Hannah Deane, dau. of the said James, to Zephaniah Leonard, 4 grandson of her brother James.² This statement was made, Feb. 2, 1732-3, and by Zephaniah4 committed to writing; it was copied from the original manuscript, at Taunton, March 12, 1806, by Mary Leonard,⁶ grand-dau. of Zephaniah⁴; and by her brother, John B. H. Leonard⁶ of Providence, communicated to Mr. W. R. Deane, already mentioned. It may be found in the Genealogical Register, Vol. VII., p. 72. In this authentic and valuable document, Mrs. Deane gives a particular account of her father's family connections. She says that the father of her father, Thomas Leonard, had six sons, Henry, James, William, John, Philip, and Thomas. Of these sons, Henry and James came to this country, and were connected with the iron-manufacture, as has already been mentioned. Philip, she says, also came to this country; lived at Marshfield, and died at Taun-Thomas also came, and "was drowned at Piscataway." ton. But William and John, she affirms, "never came out of England." This, of course, excludes JOHN LEONARD' of Springfield from being a brother of James Leonard' of Taunton. It is possible that she may have erred in this statement; the present writer leaves it for the reader to decide.

It is stated by Rev. Dr. Perez Fobes of Raynham, whose wife was a descendant of James Leonard' of Taunton, in an account of the Leonard Family, found in the Massachusetts Historical Collections, Vol. III., p. 173, that James Leonard' had three brothers; and we presume he means to say, three who came to America. Mrs. Deane's statement gives us their names, viz., Henry, Philip, and Thomas. Of course, John Leonard' of Springfield is excluded. Another fact is adverse to the supposition that he was a brother of James Leonard. It is this: James, Henry, and Philip Lecnard, were iron-workers; so were many of their descendants. But John Leonard and his descendants were cultivators of the soil.

The ensuing Memoir has, in part, been compiled from a Genealogy made out, in 1852, by Mr. E. Clark Leonard of New Bedford, from the Records of Springfield and West Springfield, and from the recollections of aged persons in that vicinity. That portion which particularly relates to the Leonards of Gloversville, N. Y., was furnished to the compiler of this volume, by his intelligent and valued relative, Mrs. Sarah Giles Beach, expressly for this memoir. She obtained it from the Gloversville families.

The Springfield Leonards were generally of that honest, respectable, hard-working, substantial class, the "yeomanry." After the Revolution, many of them moved away to New York, Ohio, and other recently settled portions of the country. Where notice is not given to the contrary, the residence of every individual in the ensuing series, may be presumed to have been in Springfield, Mass., or in one of the towns originally included in that ancient settlement.

^{*} The reader who compares the dates of the births of these children with those assigned to them in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, will notice a discrepancy. The account kere given is correct; and the discrepancy arises from the fact that the Springfield Records give the birth of John,² as having occurred, "6 mo. 25, 1641;" of Joseph,² as on "1 mo. 1, 1642-3," and so on, reckoning March as the first month, and February as the 12th. The individual who furnished the account to Mr. Savage, supposed the year at that time to have begun in January, as it now does, and hence wrote Jan. for 1 mo., when he should have written March; and Jane, instead of Aug., for 6 mo., and so forth.

Col. SAMUEL HAVEN LEONARD," (Samuel S., Seth, David,4 Benjamin,3 Benjamin,2 John,1), eldest son of Samuel S.6 and Adeline E. Leonard; b. in Bolton, July 10, 1825; m. in Worcester, Jan. 4, 1849, LUCY E. PUTNAM of Worcester.

He joined the "Worcester Guards" in 1845, as a private, at the age of twenty. He rose through nearly all the intermediate offices to the rank of Brigadier General. He was in command of the Fifth Brigade of Massachusetts Volunteer Militia several years. He removed to Boston in 1859, and through his influence the Old City Guards (of Boston, formed in 1821) became a Rifle Company, which was soon increased to a Rifle Battalion, of which, in April, 1861, he was chosen Major. On the 25th of May, the Battalion, consisting of 350 young men, mostly from the stores and counting-rooms of the city, and averaging less than twenty-three years of age, were sent to Fort Independence, in Boston Harbor, to garrison that place. Here they remained till, by the addition of six more companies from towns in the vicinity of Boston, they were organized as the Thirteenth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, in the service of the United States. Major Leonard then became its Colonel; N. Walter Batchelder of Boston, Lieutenant Col., and Jacob Parker Gould of Stoneham, Major. See page 180 of this volume.

On the 29th of July, 1861, they left Boston for the seat of war, the streets being thronged with multitudes to witness their departure.*

^{*} They were regarded as the flower of the Massachusetts troops. An incident, which occurred while they were in New York, is worthy of record, as it shows the substantial character of the men composing the regiment. After arriving in the city, at 10 A. M. of July 30, they were dismissed till dinner-time, and were soon scattered about the eity, viewing the sights of the great metropolis. Col. Leonard was advised to keep his men within the Park, if he wanted to find them when the hour for departure arrived. "No," said he, "I can trust every one of them; they may go where they please, and I guarantee that every one will be in his place, sober, at the appointed time." His words were true.

They passed through New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md., and were ordered to guard the Upper Potomac. In October, Col. Leonard was placed in command of a body of 3500 troops, as acting Brigadier-General, at Williamsport, Md., and was charged, during the ensuing winter, with the duty of guarding a length of one hundred miles along the Potomac river. This duty required the utmost care, prudence, and vigilance, and there was skirmishing almost daily; the enemy making many attempts to cross the river, or firing from the opposite shore.

The first battle in which the Thirteenth bore an active part was that of Cedar Mountain, August 9, 1862. Here the lives of many of his men were saved by Col. Leonard's prudent forethought. It was a bright moonlight evening, and while they were marching in the face of the enemy, he ordered his men to trail arms and cover bayonets. The consequence was, that they were not seen by the enemy; while the other regiments were fired upon and lost many of their men.

Col. Leonard was soon afterwards engaged in those severe marches and battles which occurred about the end of August, under Pope and McDowell. Fatigue and exposure brought on his old complaint, the rheumatism, to such a degree that on the night before the last of those battles, he was unable to move. He was placed in an ambulance; and the next day, not willing to be separated from his regiment at such a time, he was carried in that vehicle around the field while the battle was raging. He says, in a letter,-" It made my heart bleed to see my men, in whom I had taken so much pride, and whom I had loved so well, mowed down like grass, while I could not be with them."

At the battle of Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862, Col. Leonard's regiment were deployed as skirmishers, and fired the first gun. During the battle, the general of the brigade was wounded, and Col. Leonard took command of the brigade, and has been in command of it most of the time since. During some weeks he was in command of the Second Division. He was in the battle of Chancellorsville, May 1 and 2, 1863. He is now the Senior Colonel of the Army of the Potomac.

While this sheet is passing through the press, it is announced that Col. Leonard was wounded at the commencement of the great battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 1863.

Previously to joining the army, he was one of the proprietors of "Leonard's Express," between Worcester and Boston.

Notes on the preceding Memoir, pp. 280-282.

Hon, George Bliss of Springfield delivered an Historical Address at the opening of the Town Hall in that town (now city), March 24, 1828. This Address has come into my hands since the foregoing was printed. In that Address, he says that in the ancient records of Springfield, "the year is considered as beginning on the 22d of March ; April, however, being reckoned as the first month."

I incur no risk in saying that this statement of Mr. Bliss is wholly erroneous. In those early times, Murch was always reckoned as the first month. All who are intimately conversant with early records, know this to be the fact. September was the seventh month, as the etymology of the word unequivocally denotes. Moreover, the year anciently began on the 25th of March, the Conception of our blessed Lord and Saviour; not on the 22d, which was the vernal equinox.

These remarks are made to vindicate the correctness of the dates given (by the present writer) of the births of the children of JOHN LEONARD1 of Springfield, p. 281.

JOHN LEONARD,¹ I now understand, came to Springfield, not in 1636, as stated on p. 280, but in 1639. John Keep, husband of his daughter Sarah, came thither in 1660. Thomas Miller, husband of his daughter Rebecca [14], was killed by the Indians, October 5, 1675. Of course, their marriage must have been previous to that time, or there is a mistake in the person. Thomas Miller and Lieut. Thomas Cooper went out, on the morning of October 5, 1675, from the village of Springfield, to make a reconnoissance of the Indian fort and settlement in that neighborhood ; information having been received that a boly of hostile Indians had been admitted into that fort the evening before. As these two men approached, they were fired upon and killed. An assault upon Springfield immediately followed; another man and a woman were killed; about thirty dwelling houses and twenty-five barns were destroyed ; great suffering, alarm, and distress followed.

Instead of "Dea. Lamberton Cooper" [33], pp. 232, 285, read "Dr. Lamberton Cooper." He was of the portion of Springfield which is now the town of Agawam.

THE LINDALL FAMILY.

PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

THE name LINDALL is supposed to be compounded of two Anglo-Saxon, or rather Anglo-Danish words,—lin, signifying a brook, (Webster says it is Celtic, for water-fall, or cataraet) and dal, a valley. whence our word dale. The meaning—for all names were at first significant would therefore be, if expressed in modern English, Brookdale. Compare Eskdale, Tweeddale, Teesdale, Teeiotdale, &c. The family probably took the name of the locality where they resided. This was often done, at the institution of surnames.

Some diversity has been noticed in the spelling of the name. In this country, during the first two generations and a part of the third, we commonly find Lyndall, once or twice Lindale, also Lendall. Fifteen or twenty years after the commencement of the eighteenth century, Lindall became prevalent, and other modes of writing the name went out of use.

The name appears never to have been of frequent occurrence, either in England, or in America. It is not found in Burke's General Armory that immense collection of English names; but in a late London Directory, Lyndall appears several times.

The author of the sixty-second Hymn of Worcester's selection, appended to the common editions of Watts's Hymns, was Lyndall. The Hymn begins—

"Jesus, I know, hath died for me."

Of the author of this hymn I have no information.

Lenthall is probably a variation of this name. Mr. Robert Lenthall was a minister in Weymouth, near Boston, in 1637. He preached there about a year and a half; his ministry was not a pleasant or useful one; he left that place early in 1640; went to Newport, R. I., where he preached over a year, and in 1642 returned to England. Edmund Lenthall, Esq., married Susanna, the daughter of Sir William Brereton, a member of the Massachusetts Company, who had a claim of land under Gorges, and sent over families to settle, though he never came to this country. William Lenthall was Speaker of the renowned Long Parliament, during its entire continuance, from 1640 to 1653, and his name is forever identified with its proceedings. Carlyle calls him an "old Roman."

Robert Lendall, aged 20, was a passenger for Virginia, Aug. 1635.

The ensuing Memoir records the descendants of JAMES LINDALL,¹ who was of Duxbury, 1640. There were others of the name in the Second Generation of New England people. I cannot trace any connection between them and the family of the Duxbury settler. But as I for a long time supposed them to be of this family, and made what researches I could into their history, I will here exhibit the result of my inquiries.

JAMES LINDALL resided in Boston from 1675, and doubtless from an earlier date, to 1684. He was a "shop-keeper" there, and his wife's name was SUSANNA. It is not improbable that he was a nephew of James Lindall' of Duxbury; although I have found no evidence of the fact. He could not have been a son of James¹ of Duxbury: 1. Because he is not named in the will of the latter; 2. Because he is not named in the Family Record of Deacon James Lindall⁹ of Salem, of which more will be said by-and-by.

1675. Dec. 3. James Lindall of Boston was impressed for the military service, in the time of "Philip's War," but hired a man to serve in his stead. Notwithstanding this, we find him a soldier in the company commanded by Capt. James Oliver of Boston, in the sanguinary fight at the Narragansett Fort, where he was wounded, December 19, 1675. [Mass. Archives. Also, see Drake's History of Boston, p. 414.

¹ 1680–1. Feb. 19. Joseph[•]Brisco of Boston sells to James Lindall of Boston, a parcel of land, with a tenement thereon, on the Highway or Broad Street leading to the southerly end of Boston. [Suffok Deeds, 12:19.

1684. June 12. James Lendall of Boston makes his will. It was proved September, 1684; recorded, Suff. Prob. 6:170. He mentions wife Susanna, daughter Elizabeth, and son James, and gives to each one third of his estate.

1684. Sept. 22. Susanna Lendall, widow and executrix of the Will of James Lendall of Boston, shopkeeper, deceased, for £41 current money of New England, sells to John Maryon, Senior, of Boston, cordwainer, the property above described, shop, kitchen, &c. [Suffolk Deeds, 13:181.

In 1692, we find "Susanna Lyndall, shopkeeper, now Jacobs."

The children of James and Susanna Lindall, b. in Boston, were-

Elizabeth, b. July 16, 1680; m. John Pitts of Boston, Sept. 10, 1697. He was a substantial eitizen of Boston. I suppose that from him Pitts Street, formerly Pitts Lane, took its name.

James, b. May 28, 1694. He was of Boston; a "merchant"; whether he was married, does not appear. He d. 1719-20, as we learn from the ensuing record. March 14, 1719-20. James Lyndall of Boston, merchant, having lately deceased, intestate, his brother-in-law John Pitts of Boston, merchant, is appointed administrator. Inventory taken May 10, 1720. Amount £735.18.11. [Suff. Prob. 21 : 321, 372.] As the enrenew was then depreciated, the actual amount may be stated at 1360 Spanish milled dollars.

Nothing more is known of the foregoing family,

I find the following on the Boston Records:

"Born, March 14, 1707, Abigail, dau. of Thomas Lyndall and Abigall."

I also find, from Charlestown Records, that Elizabeth Lindall, wife of Augustine Lindall, died there, June 29, 1657.

There was a Henry Lindall of New Haven, Ct., whose children were as follows: Mary, bap. July 19, 1646; Sarah, bap. Oct. 29, 1648; Hannah, b. Jan. 7, 1650–1; Rebecca, bap. Oct. 20, 1652, d. soon; Rebecca, b. Oct. 20, 1653; Grace, b. March 31, 1656; Mercy, b. Dec. 18, 1658.

These names I am unable to connect with any other.' They serve to give notice, however, that there were other persons of the name of Lindall in the first and second generations of New England people, besides the family of James Lindall of Duxbury.

In the time of the Revolution. John Lindall and John Lindall, Jr., both of Manchester, were privates in Capt. White's Company in the Fifth (Col. Rufus Putnam's) Massachusetts Regiment in the Continental Army. They enlisted Feb. 13, 1777. John Lindall served three years. John Lindall, Jun., served 35 months, 18 days. [Massachusetts Archives.

Dea. Thomas Giles, my uncle, informs me that he once visited a family of the name of Lindall in Manchester; and he believes thereare people now there of that name.

There were in 1856, three brothers of this name in West Roxbury— George, Charles, and Horace Lindall. They were natives of that town. Their father, who was then deceased, was a farmer; so were these three sons. Their mother's name was Chamberlain. George was about forty years of age in 1856. He supplied with milk numerous families in Roxbury and Jamaica Plain. He was chosen one of the Selectmen of West Roxbury, March 31, 1859. He is since deceased.

Peter Lindall and Jesse Lindall of St. Louis (brothers, I suppose) went from Maryland to that city, when it was a small place, perhaps about the year 1820. They bought much land in and around St. Louis, at very low prices; and by the mere rise of Real Estate, refusing to sell any of their land, had become very rich in 1852. It is said that they—especially Peter, who is a bachelor—are very close and penurious; though a few years before 1852, he gave five hundred dollars to the Mercantile Library in that city. Jesse is married. The Lindall House, erected by one of this family, is said to be the largest and most elegant hotel in the United States; though it is not yet, 1863, furnished and occupied.

It is remarkable that the Lindall Family, so eminent and prosperous in Massachusetts, a century and a half ago, should have become wolly extinct—as I suppose it has—by the failure of male heirs. There are many descendants of the family, now living; but they bear other names. And, except the few individuals whom I have already mentioned, I am not aware that any person of the name of Lindall is now living on the American Continent.

FIRST GENERATION.

JAMES LINDALL¹ came from the North of England to this country, previous to 1640; the precise year has not been ascertained. From the Family Bible of his grandson, James Lindall of Salem [14], we learn, not only the fact already stated, that he came from one of the northern counties, but that he had three sons, James, Caleb, and Joshua, who died in England in the time of the Plague, before he came to America.*

He was still a young man when he arrived in New England, and settled in Duxbury in Plymouth Colony. The first record we have of him is dated April 6, 1640, when John Phillips and James Lindall had each a grant of a "Garden Place" upon Stony Brook in Duxburrow, and four acres of upland also upon Stony Brook. He owned land both in Duxbury and in Marshfield, as appears from his will. His estate in Marshfield was near the residence of William Holmes. See p. 183 of this volume. In 1643, James Lindall is named among those in Duxbury who were "able to bear arms." He was one of the fifty-four inhabitants of Duxbury, who, in 1645, obtained the additional grant of territory, which was afterwards (June, 1656) incorporated as the town of Bridgewater; but did not remove thitlier. His wife was MARY.

His will is dated August 10, 1652; and was exhibited before the "Generall Conrt" holden at Plymouth, March 4, 1652–3, on the oaths of Capt. Miles Standish, and Mr. John Alden, who were the witnesses. In that instrument he gives to wife Mary the use of the house and hand, &c., both at Duxburrow and Marshfield, during her life, provided she "continue in her widowhood." He gives to his son Timothy a lot of land "at the new plantation," [afterwards Bridgewater]. He gives to his daughter Abigail also a lot of land at the new plantation. When Timothy shall come into possession, after his mother's death, of the lands at Duxburrow and Marshfield, he shall pay his sister Abigail one half of the value, as estimated by honest and understanding men. He appoints wife Mary to be executrix, and his "highly and well beloved friend and neighbour, Constant Southworth," to be supervisor. [Old Colony Records, Wilk, Vol. I., p. 111.

His inventory is dated October 29, 1652; amount £130.

He must have died, therefore, in the interval between August 10 and October 29, 1652. His wife Mary did not long survive him. She died before February 8, 1652–3, when a "Review of the inventory of the estate of James Lindall was taken, after the decease of Mary Lindall, his wife." Their children were—

2. †Abigail,² b. ------; m. Capt. Samuel Wadsworth.

3. †Timothy,2 b. May 3, 1642 ; m. Mary Veren.

Both of these children were minors at their parents' death, and were placed by the Court under "the care and tuission of Constant Southworth," who was an especial friend of their father, James Lindall.‡

* We shall say more of this Family Bible, when we come to James Lindall [14]. In the meantime, we will quote, redutim et literatin, what this Record says of the earliest members of the Family, of whom it speaks.

"Mr. James Lindall of the Connty in the North of England by his wife Caleb Joshua who Died in England in the time of the Plage

"They came to New England & setted in Duxbury in the Collony of Plymouth who had Children Abigall maryed to Capt Samuell Wadsworth of Milton

"Timothy Lindall Borne May 3⁴ 1642 (Dyed Jan 6, 1692) maryed to Mary Veren Daughter of Mr. Nathaniell Veren who was Born in England son of M^r Philip Veren, who Brought over to Salem 7 sons 2 D."

The Plague raged in London in 1625. Whether this was the time referred to, we know not.

‡ Constant Southworth was the son of Constant and Alice Southworth. Constant, the father, died in England, before the emigration. After his death, Alice,

SECOND GENERATION.

ABIGAIL LINDALL,² dau. of James¹ and Mary Lindall; b. perhaps in England; m. Captain SAMUEL WADSWORTH,² b. at Duxbury, about 1630, youngest son of Christopher Wadsworth,¹ one of the early Plymouth Pilgrims who settled at Duxbury with Capt. Miles Standish.*

Samuel Wadsworth first appears at Milton, near Boston, in 1656, when he took up three hundred acres of hand near the centre of that town. He was interested in obtaining the separation of the town from Dorchester, and its incorporation in 1662. In the new town, he was the first captain of the militia, one of the selectmen, a trustee of the Church, and active in the affairs of the Church. He was very highly esteemed in the town. He was admitted freeman of the Colony, April 29, 1668.

He was slain in a desperate encounter with the Indians, at Sudbury, April 21, 1676. As the details of this encounter have been variously given, and there have been mistakes in the date and some other particulars, the compiler has taken much pains to prepare what he believes to be a correct statement; and it now follows :---

On the twenty-sixth of March, 1676, Marlborough was attacked, and most of the houses burned by the Indians. News of this disaster having been transmitted to Boston, Capt. Wadsworth, with about seventy men, was sent to its relief. On the morning of the 20th of April, the Indians, with a large force, fell upon Sudbury, and burned several buildings. The inhabitants, however, made a brave resistance, and, being soon joined by a few soldiers from Watertown, under Capt. Hugh Mason, they were enabled to keep the savage foe in check for that day. For Capt. Hugh Mason, see Bond's Watertown, pp. 356, 855.

Information having been sent to Capt. Wadsworth, he hastened from Marlborough with the greater part of his command, for the relief of Sudbury; leaving a sufficient force, under Lieut. Jacobs, to garrison Marlborough. Capt. Samuel Brocklebank, who had been stationed at the last named town, accompanied him with a small part of his force. We do not know with accuracy the force which Wadsworth took with him on this occasion. We suppose that he had in all not quite sixty men. "They marched in the night," says Gookin, " with all the speed they could; and being spent and weary with travel and want of rest" and of food, were ill prepared for the severe encounter of the following the mother, came to Plymouth, 1623, in the ship Ann; m. Gov. William Bradford, August 14, 1624, and was the mother of all his children who left posterity, viz. : William, Mercy, and Joseph. She d. March 26, 1670. Her sons, Constant and Thomas Southworth, left by her in England, came over in 1628, were educated by Goy. Bradford, and attained to great distinction in the Colonial Government, particularly Constant, who was Assistant and Treasurer sixteen years. He dicd March 11, 1678-9.

* CHRISTOPHER WADSWORTH,¹ was an inhabitant of Duxbury, as early as 1632; representative, 1666 and 1667. His will is dated, July 31, 1677.

On the morning of the 21st, when within a mile and a half of day. the village of Sudbury, they saw two or three Indians, who had been sent out as a decoy; and cagerly pursuing them, into a place of thick woods, they soon found themselves surrounded by a body of the savages, estimated to be five hundred in number, who had been concealed behind the hills. The Indians immediately began a vehement onset upon the small and wearied band of Wadsworth. The latter retreated to a neighboring hill, where, though the odds were ten to one against them, they maintained themselves in good order all the forenoon, losing but five men in four hours, while the Indians lost a great number. At length, the savages resorted to the expedient of setting fire to the woods to the windward of the English. The flames, increased by an exceedingly high wind, spread with great rapidity, and soon drove Wadsworth and his men from their advantageous position. Exhausted with their night's march, and with fighting all the former part of the day, and now thrown into disorder, they were unable longer to resist the overwhelming force of the enemy; and all but about twenty were slain, including Captains Wadsworth and Brocklebank, and Lieutenant Sharp. Fourteen or fifteen of them took refuge in the mill of Mr. Noist [Noyes], which was so strongly fortified, that the Indians did not venture to attack it. They were relieved by a force from Capt. Prentiss's command, which came the next day to bury the dead. Five or six were taken alive, and were that night tortured and put to death by the Indians, in the most cruel manner.*

Never was a battle maintained with more spirit against overwhelming odds; never were there more valiant and resolute men. As brave soldiers were they as ever discharged a musket. " Capt. Wadsworth," savs Gookin, " was a valiant and active man."

[']The fight continued, according to Judge Sewall, till three in the afternoon. The enemy's loss was very great. According to the report of a captive, who afterwards escaped out of their hands, the Indians confessed that they had one hundred and twenty of their warriors killed that day. There is no doubt that Philip commanded the Indian force on this memorable occasion.

A force, partly of cavalry, from Capt. Prentiss's troop of horse, and partly of friendly Indians under Capt. Hunting, was despatched from Boston, that afternoon, (April 21.) by General Gookin, on receiving tidings that Sudbury was attacked. They reached Sudbury, a march of eighteen miles, a little after dark, when the Indians had overwhelmed the devoted band, and had retreated to the west side of Sudbury River. They lay on their arms that night. Next morning, April 22, they found the battle-field streewed with the remains of " those two worthy and pious captains, and thirty-two private soldiers, slain the day before;" a sight which made even some of the friendly Indians weep to behold.

A monument was erected on the scene of this memorable conflict, by President Wadsworth, son of Capt. Wadsworth. This monument consisted of a slate-stone slab, supported by a tumulus of stones. This structure having fallen into decay, was replaced in 1852, by a more enduring one, erected by the concurrent action of the town of Sudbury, and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It consists of a handsome granite column, resting on three square blocks of granite, rising one above another; the whole being twenty-five or thirty feet in height. It was inaugurated with appropriate services, November 23, 1852. There was a military parade, a procession, a prayer by Rev. Linus H. Shaw, and an address by Hon. George S. Boutwell, then Governor of the State, followed by a dinner. The public services were at the Town Hall.

^{*} Dr. Increase Mather says—" They stripped them naked, and caused them to run the gauntlet, whipping them after a cruel and bloody manner, and then threw hot ashes upon them; cut out the flesh of their legs, and yut fire into their wounds, delighting to see the miserable torments of wretched creatures. Thus are they the perfect children of the Devil !"

The existing monument is inseribed-

"In honor of Capt. Samuel Wadsworth of Milton, Capt. Brocklebank of Rowley, Lieut. Sharp of Brookline, and twenty-six others, men of their command, who fell near this spot, 18 April, 1676, while defending the frontier settlements against the allied Indian forces of Philip of Pokanoket." 1852.

This inscription, however, and the address of Governor Boutwell, contain, we think, two errors.

1. With regard to the number of men slain in the encounter at Sudbury. The monument and the address say, twenty-nine. But Gookin, who wrote an account of the war, and notices this transaction very particularly; who had the best opportunity to know the facts, having despatched a force to the spot on the very afternoon of the * battle; says that this force found the next day on the field of conflict Captains Wadsworth, and Brocklebank, and about thirty-two private soldiers, making in all, thirty-four.

2. With regard to the date of the action. The monument and the address say, it took place on the eighteenth of April, 1676. This was the date on the old monument; and it has passed unquestioned, because it was supposed that the son of Capt. Wadsworth, who erected that monument, must of course know the time of his father's death. But the old monument was not erected till about sixty years after the fight; and there is reason to suppose that the son knew the date no better than we. It is very probable that he took the date from Hubbard's History; which though an excellent authority in the general, is not always accurate in matters of detail. We think Gookin altogether more reliable in regard to this affair. He says that he, as a military commander, despatched a force to Sudbury, on the afternoon of the fight; that the men who were sent lay on their arms in Sudbury, that night; and the next day, April 22, found Wadsworth, Brocklebank, and thirty-two more, lying dead, who had been slain the day before.

Dr. Increase Mather concurs with Gookin, in placing Sudbury fight on the 21st of April, 1676.

Joseph Pepper of Dorchester was a sergeant under Capt. Wadsworth, and was killed in the Sudbury fight. The Dorchester Records say he was killed, April 21, 1676.

Rev. Peter Hobart of Hingham kept a Journal of his times. In that Journal he says, Sudbury fight took place April 21, 1676.

See this matter fully discussed in the Geneal. Reg., Vol. VII., pp. 221-224.

John Leverett, in the Presidency of that institution, and was inaugurated on Commencement Day, July 7, 1725. Fifty-six years of age when he accepted, with the greatest reluctance, that honorable position, "his health began to fail soon after he entered upon its duties, which were performed to general acceptance, under all the disadvantages of bodily infirmity. His conduct in their discharge was marked with firmness, prudence, and judgment. Faithful to every trust, kind to all, calm, cantious, moderate, self-possessed, and affectionate, he left a name precions in his own generation, and highly appreciated in after times." His death, which occurred March 16, 1737, "was lamented with more than ordinary demonstrations of sorrow." He was a good classical scholar, a learned theologian, and a devout Christian. "His mind was distinguished for strength, rather than brilliancy. His memory was uncommonly retentive; and though he wrote his sermons with care, he always delivered them memoriter," It is stated that on all occasions he could quote any chapter or verse of the Bible, without recurring to the page. TIMOTHY LINDALL,² son of James¹ and Mary Lindall of Duxbury; b. there, May 3, 1642; m. last of Feb. 1672-3, MARY VEREN,³ b. 1648, dau. of Nathaniel Veren,² who was b. in England, and was a son of Philip Veren¹ of Salem, formerly of Salisbury, in Wiltshire. Philip Veren brought over with him from England, seven sons and two daughters. He (Philip) was admitted freeman of the Colony, Sept. 2, See p. 5, note, of this volume. 1635.

Timothy Lindall came to live in Salem, 1660, of which town he was "admitted an inhabitant," 1661. He was admitted to the First Church, in Salem, of which the venerable John Higginson was then pastor, July 29, 1677; and admitted a freeman of the Colony, May 8, 1678; the latter privilege being consequent on the former.*

^{*} The following record throws light on the early ecclesiastical usages of the Colony.

[&]quot;1677. July 29. Mr Lindall, having stood propounded above a moneth, was admitted unto church membership with consent of ve Brethren on ye Lord's day after ye Sermon. He, expressing he had not an audible voyce, gave in a paper containing his profession of Faith and Repentance, desiring it to be read for him, weh was done by ye Pastor." [MS. in possession of William Gibbs, Esq., of Lexington, as printed in the Am. Quar. Reg. for Feb., 1840.

He was a prosperous, wealthy, and honored merchant of Salem. His name often meets us on the public records.

1686. Sept. 22. William Hore [Hoar] of Beverly, conveys to Timothy Lindall, a parcel of land, in Beverly, at a place called "Long Hill." [Ibid, 7:99.

1694. June 22. George Ingersoll, late of Casco Bay, in the Province of Maine, husbandman, conveys to Timothy Lindall, several parcels of land, in Falmouth, alias Cascoe Bay. [Ibid, 10:7.

Frequent mention is made of vessels at sea owned by him. Aug. 6, 1697, the ketch Exchange, belonging to him. Thomas Marston, master, was taken by a French ship off Block Island. She was ransomed for about £200, and arrived at Salem, Aug. 31. James Lindall, eldest son of the owner, was supercargo of the Exchange, and was carried as a hostage to Placentia, Newfoundland, there to remain till the ransom should be paid.

Timothy Lindall was honored with the confidence of his fellowcitizens, and served the town on various important occasions. "He was worthy," says Felt, from whose Annals of Salem, first edition, several of these facts are taken—"He was worthy of both public and private confidence." He was Selectman of Salem frequently. His name appears as Selectman in the deed given in 1686, by the Indians, of the territory then included within the township of Salem. The purpose of the deed was to secure the citizens, as far as possible, in the titles to their lands; the charter of the Colony having lately been vacated by the arbitrary proceedings of the English government. He was deputy of the town to the General Court, in 1683, with John Hathorne. He represented the town in that body also in 1692, and probably afterwards.

His will is dated March 1, 1697–8; proved Feb. 4, 1698–9; recorded Essex Prob. 6: 67. He gives wife Mary £90 in money; also one-fourth of all his remaining estate, real and personal. To his eldest son James he gives a share and a half; to the other brothers equal shares of his remaining real estate. The residue of his personal estate, whether money, goods, vessels, debts, or otherwise, he divides equally among all his children, both sons and daughters; only James is to have a share and a half. He appoints his wife Mary Lyndall and his sons James and Timothy, executors; and requests "Major John Higginson, Esq.," and two others, to advise in the settlement of his estate.

His estate was appraised at £1746.15.3, besides debts due to the estate, amounting to $\pm 501.4.7$. Debts due from the estate, $\pm 944.13.7$.

Timothy Lindall died Jan. 6, 1698-9, a. 56 years, 7 months.*

^{*} The Family Bible of Dea. James Lindall states that his father, Timothy Lindall, "Dyed Jan. 6, 1692." See p. 312, note. This is a manifest error. The Town Records, Probate Records, and grave-stone, all give the date as in the text. His will is dated March 1, 1697-8. Family Records, as well as other records, may mislead us.

His widow Mary survived him thirty-three years to a day. She seems to have been a capable and energetic woman. She was guardian of her younger sons, Caleb and Veren. She continued to keep a store, after her husband's death, more than twenty years. In several deeds, she is either grantor or grantee. The last is dated Jan. 21, 1718-19. She made her will, Aug. 29, 1720. It was proved, Jan. 31, 1731-2; recorded Essex Prob. 19: 155. She there mentions two of her daughters, Sarah (who was unmarried) and Rachel (a widow) as "having assisted me in my business." She mentions Nathaniel, her son, as deceased, but having left a son, Nathaniel, then a minor. Caleb, her son, was absent in Barbadoes.

She died Jan. 6, 1731-2, according to Salem Records; Jan. 7, 1731-2, a. 83, according to the grave-stone. She and her husband were interred in the Charter (now Vine) Street Burying-Ground, where their monumental stones are yet standing.

^{*} Here the Family Record is again at fault. The true date of Veren's death was Aug. 29, 1708, as given by the Salem Town Records, and the various histories of the transaction. Rev. Benjamin Rolfe was the second minister of Haverhill. He was b. in Newbury, Sept. 13, 1662 ; H. C. 1684 ; ord. pastor at Haverhill, Jan. 7, 1694. Haverhill village, then consisting of about thirty houses, was attacked, Aug. 29, 1708, by a party of French and Indians, about two hundred in number. The attack was made about an hour after sunrise. There was a small garrison, and there were soldiers in several of the houses ; but the attack was so sudden, that but little resistance was made. Charlevoix says, about one hundred of the English were slain. Men, women, and children, were indiscriminately massacred. Mr. Rolfe was killed near his own door. Many of the houses were burned. For an account of the affair, see Hutchinson and other Histories of New England, and Myrick's History of Haverhill. John Giles was wounded in this affair. See p. 23 of this volume.

Thomas Phippen was of Salem; a mariner. In 1722, the Assessors' books say-"Thomas Phippen, a long time gone; tax abated, nine shillings." In 1725, he had been absent from the country more than two years; during which time, his wife having deceased, his children had resided with their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Lindall. At this time, his son Nathan, being fourteen years of age, was apprenticed to Joshua Dodge of Boston.

t The Higginson Family.

I ner filositson rammy. I. Rev. FRANCIS HIGGINSON,¹ son of Rev. John Higginson, was born in England in 1587. He received the degree of A. B. in 1609, at Jesus College, and the degree of A. M., in 1613, at St. John's College, both of the University at Cambridge. He was settled in the ministry, 1615, at Claybrooke, one of the par-ishes in Leicester. There the Holy Spirit made him the honored instrument of saving conversion to many souls. During twelve years, he continued in strict con-formity with the Established Church. But about 1627, his increased acquaintance with the Scriptures, led him to embrace the principles of the Puritans. In consequence of this, he was excluded from his parish; though his people, who felt that they could not be deprived of his faithful labors, obtained permission for him to preach to them a part of the time. The next year, however, the intolerant meas-ures of Bishop Laud, exposed him to be brought before the High Commission Court ; and he began to entertain the design of a removal to America. The Mas-Court; and he began to entertain the design of a removal to America. The Mas-sachusetts Company, having information of his purpose, invited him, and another excellent minister, Rev. Samuel Skelton, to embark with a company of about one hundred new planters, whom they were about sending out. They offered him a comfortable outift; a free passage for himself, his wife, their eight children, and furniture; a salary of £30 after his arrival at Naumkeng; also a house and land, and firewood; and engaged to support his widow and children after his decease. Accordingly, he with his family set sail in the Talbot of 300 tons, Capt. Thomas Beecher, from Gravesend, April 25, 1629, and landed at Salem, June 30. He was installed as teacher of the Church, at Salem, Aug. 6, following; Mr. Skelton being installed as pastor the same day. installed as pastor the same day.

There was great mortality among the people of Salem the ensuing winter; about one hundred being laid low in death. Mr. Higginson lived to welcome Governor Winthrop, and the large accession of new settlers who came with him;

^{*} For the CURWEN Family, see sequel.

James Lindall, Esq., was an eminent and prosperous merchant of Salem; possessed a handsome property; was a deacon of the First Church in that place; and a Justice of the Court of General Sessions. His standing was one of the first respectability; and his connections, as may be seen in the note below, and in the Curwen Genealogy, were among the influential families of the Province.

He died May 10, 1753, a. 77. [Grave-stone]. He was interred among his kindred, in the Charter (now Vine) Street Burying Ground.

It is represented on the Probate Records, that he died "intestate," and his estate was settled accordingly; Benjamin Pickman, Esq., his nephew, being appointed his administrator, Sept. 20, 1753. [Essex Prob. 32: 24]. It is known, however, that he left a will, which the heirs, for reasons not now extant, agreed to set aside.

but died soon after their arrival, August 6, 1630, a. 43 years. He was a man of amiable spirit, of warm piety, of exemplary life; "a man," says Edward Johnson, "endued with grace, apt to teach, mighty in the Scriptures, learned in the tongues, able to convince gainsayers."

His widow Ann lived in Salem several years, probably till 1638. She then went to reside in New Haven, and d. there early in 1640.

I donot perceive that any leaves are wanting, though many leaves are so worn, especially at the lower corner, as not to allow the reading of the entire page. It does not contain the Apocrypha. * The POOLE Family.

I. Captain WILLIAM POOLE¹ and his family came from Taunton in Old England, and settled in Taunton in New England, 1637, at the first settlement of that place. He was brother to that eminent lady, Miss Elizabeth Poole, who was also from Old Tannton, and who had large possessions in the New; "a gentlealso from Old Tannton, and who had large possessions in the New; "a gentle-woman, an ancient maid," as Winthrop calls her; who began the plantation of Tannton in 1637; whose memory, as a benefactress, is still warmly cherished in-that place. The wife of Rev. Nicholas Street, one of the first ministers of Tann-ton, was also his sister. After many years' residence in Tannton, William Poole removed to Dorchester, [after 1654, see will of Elizabeth Poole, below] where he was town clerk a long time, and schoolmaster; and where he died Feb. 24, 1674, a. 81. Elizabeth Poole, his sister, died May 21, 1654, a. 65. For an abstract of her will, dated May 17, 1654, see Geneal. Register, Vol. V., p. 262. In her will she gives "to my brother, Capt. II. JOHN POOLE,² the eldest son of the preceding, was probably born in England, not far from the year 1630. He was unmarried at the date of his aunt Elizabeth's will, and yet was old enough to be her executor, having three stanch men of Taunton, Richard Williams, Walter Deane, and Oliver Purchis, to assist as "overseers." He sneceeded to the large estate of his said aunt in Taunton, a part of which was within the present town of Raynham. Not long after her death, her removed from Taunton to Boston, where he was "admitted to inhabit," April 28, 1656. He was admitted freeman of the Massachusetts Colony in 1673. He was a wealthy merchant of Boston, and was concerned, with others, in building the "Old in saying that our John Poole was "distinguished as a partisan officer in the great in saying that our John Foole was "distinguished as a partisan other in the great Indian war" of 1675-6. This distinguished officer appears to have been Captain Jonathan Pool of Reading, who was representative in 1677, and was of another family. [He was b. 1635; and d. Dec. 24, 1678. Elizabeth, wife of John Poole, d. Oct. 17, 1694, a. 44. John Poole died between 1707 and 1712; the exact date not being known.

A horizontal slab, once having on it a coat of arms, may yet be seen in the Old Cemetery in Salem, on the street which divides that city from Danvers, bearing an inscription, nearly illegible and partly obliterated. The slab is a few feet sonth of Judge Dawes's monument. We are enabled to make out the following :

> " Here Lyes ye Body of Elizabeth Poole, late wife to * * * * Poole, Daughr of Governer Brenton Esq. aged 44 years, died Oct. ye 17 1694."

[Another inscription on the left hand, illegible ; probably that of John Poole]. Following the above inscription, cut in the same horizontal slab, we read another, thus :

"Here lyes ye body of Jane Lendall, late wife to Timothy Lendall, daur. of John & Elizabeth Poole, deceased Decembr ye 15th 1710, in ye 29 year of her age."

"William Poole aged * * * * died March * * * * *

It seems probable, therefore, that after the removal of Hon. Timothy Lindall to Salem, or about 1716, the remains of John Poole and his wife, together with those of their daughter, Mrs. Lindall and her four deceased infants, were interred together, in the Old Cemetery of Salem and Danvers.

From 1705 to 1715, Timothy Lindall was a merchant in Boston.

Jan. 1, 1706–7. John Pole of Boston, merchant, "for the love and respect I bear my daughter Jane, do freely and absolutely give, grant, &e., to my son-in-law, Timothy Lindal of Boston, and to my aforesaid daughter Jane, his wife, my dwelling-honse, scituated on my wharff at the South end of Boston about forty feet in length and about twenty-two feet in breadth, and my warehouse at the easternmost end of the dwelling-house, s^d warehouse being in length about fortytwo feet, in breadth about twenty-four feet, and all the land appertaining and ajoining to said dwelling-house and warehouse, bounded north by the Marshall's land or wharff, &e." [Suff, Deeds, 24 : 70.

Mr. Poole's wharf was at the foot of what is now Central Street, a short distance south of Long Wharf; on the border of "Oliver's Dock." This was then the "South end of Boston;" nearly on a range with the "Old South Church." In the interval between the preceding and following deed, Mr. Poole must have died.

May 6, 1712. Timothy Lindall, administrator of the estate of John Poole (Pole, in the accompanying deed) late of Boston, merchant, deceased, petitions the Superior Court for leave to sell some of s^d Pool's real estate. [Ibid, 27: 54.

Timothy Lindall seems to have succeeded to a considerable share of his father Poole's estate. We find him, soon after, purchasing a more eligible site for a residence.

Sept. 1, 1712. Elisha Cooke, Esquire, and Dame Elizabeth his wife, Anne Hubbard, Hannah Davis, and Rebecca Lloyd, widows; Sarah Leverett, gentlewoman, and Elisha Cooke, Junr., gentleman, and Jane, his wife, all of Boston, for £370.10, lawful money of N. England, sell to Timothy Lindall of Boston, merchant, a parcel of land in Leverett's Lane, bounded on said lane, westerly, north on land of John Dorrell, housewright, south on land of said grantors in part, and in part on land of Samuel Sewall, Esq., and east on land of heirs of John Pole, decensed, measuring in front and grant, 114 (tect.* [Ibid, 26 : 256.]

June 10, 1714. James Lyndall of Salem, merchant, conveys land to his brother Timothy Lyndall of Boston, merchant. [Essex Deeds, 28:16.

July 11, 1715. Elizabeth Porter of Boston, conveys land in Salem to Timothy Lyndall of Boston, gentleman. [Ibid, 29:128.

In the interval between the deed last quoted, and the next, Timothy Lindall removed to Salem.

Feb. 27, 1717–18. Timothy Lyndall of Salem, gentleman, and Bethiah Lyndall his wife, dau. of Robert Kitchen of Salem, merchant, deceased, convey land to her mother, Madam Bethiah Kitchen, widow. [Bid. 35 : 104.

^{*} The ladies, whose names occur in the above deed, were, except the last, daughters of Governor John Leverett. Anne Hubbard was the widow of John Hubbard, owner of the Braintree Iron Works, from 1680 to 1710. (See Vinton Memorial, p. 31, note.) Hannah Davis was the widow of Thomas Davis. Rebecen Lloyd was the widow of James Lloyd; m. 1691; he d. 1693. Their grandson, James Lloyd, M. D., of Boston (b. 1728; d. March, 1810) was the father of Hon. James Lloyd, LL.D., for many years a Senator of the United States from Massachusetts. Sarah Leverett, in 1718, married Col. Nathaniel Byfield. [Geneal. Reg., Vol. IV, pp. 121-136.

Jan. 1721-2. Timothy Lindall, Esq., of Salem, buys land in "Salem Village." [Ibid, 39:116.

The part of Salem to which he removed, is included within the present town of Danvers; anciently, "Salem Village." In the north part of Danvers is a beautiful area of level land, of a little more than a mile square in extent. This has long been known in all the vicinity as "Danvers Plain," and was anciently known as "Porter's Plain." Rev. Joseph B. Felt, who is well versed in the history of Salem and the vicinity, supposes that it was called "Porter's Plain," after John Porter, who had a large landed estate there, and in the neighborhood, and died Sept. 6, 1676, aged about 80.

On Danvers Plain, extending over the hill on the north, and into Beverly on the east, was situated the noble farm of Hon. Timothy Lindall, containing one hundred and eighty acres. This farm he left by will to his great-grandson, Thomas Lindall Winthrop. In a conveyance by said Winthrop, in 1795, to William Burley of Beverly, it is thus described. Three parcels of land, being partly in Danvers and partly in Beverly, with all the buildings thereon. One of these parcels contains seventy acres, and is thus bounded: beginning at the corner of the Topsfield and Ipswich roads, thence running N. E. to land now or late of Larkin Thorndike, thence N. W. by said land, until it comes to the Topsfield road, thence S. and S. E. upon said road to the bound first mentioned. Also, one other piece of woodland and orcharding, containing forty acres, bounded thus; beginning at the corner of the Topsfield and Middleton roads, thence running N. upon said Topsfield road, to land now or late of Henry Putnam, thence N. W. upon land of said Henry and Aaron Putnam, thence S. upon land now or late of Thomas Towns, to the Middleton road, thence upon said road to the bound first mentioned. Also another piece of land containing seventy acres, bounded thus: beginning at the corner of the Topsfield and Middleton roads, thence running N. W. upon the Middleton road, &c.

In the northerly part of Danvers Plain is a swell of land about one hundred and twenty feet above the level of the sea, containing forty acres. It is the second of the parcels of land above described, and has long been known as "Lindall's Hill." It is said that in no part of the County of Essex can so splendid a view be enjoyed, as from the top of this hill. South Danvers, Salem, Beverly, Marblehead, the church spires in Wenham, Hamilton, and Ipswich, as well as the blue ocean, with the vessels borne on its bosom, can all be seen from this elevation.

Lindall's Hill, until long after the commencement of this century, was covered with the native forest, and was the favorite resort of foxes, squirrels, pigeons, and other game. When a detachment of British troops, under Col. Leslie, on Sunday, February 26, 1775, came from Boston to Salem to carry off some cannon belonging to the people, their march was arrested by a body of militia under Col. Timothy Pickering, who raised the drawbridge over the North River, between Salem and North Salem, until the guns were deposited in a safe place on Lindall's Hill. Ship timber was often procured from this hill for vessels built at Danversport. A part of the timber of the United States ship-ofthe-line Independence, built at Charlestown, in 1814, also came thence. But in the "Great September Gale," Sept. 23, 1815, one hundred and fifty of the largest and best trees, oaks, hickories, and pines, on this spot, were torn up by the roots; and since that time, the forest on Lindall's Hill has wasted away, till it has mostly, if not wholly, disappeared.

On removing from Boston to Danvers, Timothy Lindall appears to have relinquished mereantile pursuits, and to have hargely engaged in public affairs. Having inherited or acquired an ample fortune, he had leisure and opportunity for the service of his conntry. "He was," says Felt, in his Annals of Salem, "a gentleman of good understanding, of a cultivated taste, and of much information. He served with ability and faithfulness in many important offices." He sustained the chief offices of his native town of Salem; was Representative in the General Court, 1717–1721, also 1725, 1726, 1738; was Speaker of the House, 1720 and 1721; a member of the Executive Council, from May, 1727, till 1731; and, for a long time, Judge of the Courts of General Sessions, and of Common Pleas.

The following facts will show the estimation in which he was held as a public man. Nov. 20, 1718, he was appointed on a Committee of the House of Representatives to draw up instructions to the Agent of the Province in England, "on the present emergencies of the government." When first chosen Speaker, July 13, 1720, it was at an important juncture. A new General Court had assembled; the one chosen at the usual time, in May, having been dissolved by the Royal Governor, The choice of Mr. Lindall, as the presiding officer, resulted Shute. from the confidence reposed in his wisdom and patriotism. He was one of a Committee, June 10, 1725, to draw up a memorial to the king. June 28, 1726, he was one of the Commissioners to settle the controversy between Massachusetts and New Hampshire, respecting boundaries. In the same year, Nov. 28, he was on a Committee to consider the proposals of Governor Burnet, of New York, relative to the boundary between that Province and Massachusetts. Dec. 3, following, he was on a Committee to entreat his majesty to take measures to prevent the government of Canada from employing the Indians against the English Colonies.

He long worshipped with the religious Society at North Danvers, then called Salem Village; of which at the present time, and during many years past, the Rev. Milton P. Braman, D. D., is, and has been pastor. He lived and died in what is called the "Old Lindall House," which was standing in 1854, and may be standing now. It is an old unpainted building, at the foot of Lindall Hill, at the intersection of two roads, one of them leading from Danvers to Topsfield, and the other from Beverly to Middleton. The house is easily identified, as there are only two other unpainted houses on the road.

If died in Salem Village, the last survivor of his college elass, Oct. 25, 1760, a. 83. [Grave-stone.] He was buried with his kindred in Salem, in the Burying Ground on the Hill.

His will, which is very long, is dated July 7, 1760; proved Nov. 10, 1760; recorded Essex Prob., 37:187. He disposes of much real estate in Salem, Danvers, Boston, and elsewhere; also eonsiderable money, and large quantities of silver plate. To his wife Mary, he gives the use and improvement, during her life, of his mansion-house in Salem, his farm in Danvers, &c. To his grandson, John Borland, he gives all his real estate in Boston; also, his "Iron Oar" in Raynham, in land that his father Poole many years before had sold to Capt. James Leonard, reserving the "Oar" to himself and to his heirs. To his grandson, Francis Lindall Borland, he bequeaths one thousand Spanish milled dollars. To his great-grandsons, John Lindall Borland and Francis Lindall Borland, he gives lands, money, and plate. To his grand-dau. Winthrop's children, John, Jane, Francis, Ann, William, and Joseph, her six eldest, he gives two thousand Spanish dollars, to be put at interest till they arrive at age. To his great-grandson, Thomas Lindall Winthrop, then an infant, he gives his land, warehouse, wharf, and flats, in Salem, "that I bought of Mrs. Jennison," [his niece, the dau. of his brother, James Lindall]: also, land in Salem; and after the decease of the testator's wife, he is to have the mansion or dwelling-house in Salem, with the land adjoining, barn, &c., and the farm in Danvers.

Hon. Timothy Lindall, though the husband of three wives, and the father of seven children, had but one child who lived to enter on the married state; this was his daughter Jane.

SARAH LINDALL,³ (Timothy,² James,¹) sister of the preceding; b. in Salem, March 4, 1682-3; m. July 28, 1737, Capt. BENJAMIN MORESHEAD of Salem.

She remained unmarried till the mature age of fifty-four. Capt. Moreshead (pronounced in two syllables like Mösherd) was an Episcopalian, a worshipper at St. Peter's Church in Salem, an active man in its affairs, and for a time one of its wardens. He died insolvent.

She was interred among her kindred, in Charter (now Vine) Street Burying Ground, Salem, near the gate. We there read this inscription—

"This Stone perpetuates the memory of Mad^m. Sarah Marshead, who d. Dee^r. 25, 1750, aged 67."

She died a widow, and, as may be supposed, left no children.

CALEB LINDALL,³ (Timothy,² James,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Salem, Feb. 5, 1684-5; m. SARAH BUTLER, b. 1704.

He was a merchant in Barbadoes, at the date of a quitelaim deed, Feb. 9, 1714–15, in which he releases to his sisters, Sarah Lindall, and Rachel Barnard, widow, all his interest in the Real Estate, left by his father, Timothy Lindall. [Essex Deeds, 37:174]. He was in Barbadoes, also, at the date of his mother's will, Aug. 29, 17,20. See p. 320.

He d. Nov. 13, 1751, a. 67. Grave-stone.

His will is dated Sept. 16, $175\overline{1}$; proved Nov. 26, 1751; recorded, Essex Prob., 30: 138. He calls himself "Caleb Lindall of Marblehead, merelant;" gives his wife, Sarah, all his estate, real and personal; and requests her at her death to leave it to his niece, Sarah Lutwyche of Boston, widow [32], and to her son, "and our god-son," Edward Goldstone Lutwyche, to share equally.

His widow, Sarah, d. June 27, 1764, a. 60. They are buried side by side, in the Charter Street Burying Ground, Salem.

As his wife was about twenty years younger than himself, he was probably near forty when married. They seem to have had no children.

RACHEL LINDALL,³ (Timothy,² James,¹) youngest dau. of ' Timothy² and Mary (Veren) Lindall; b. in Salem, Dec. 3, 1686; m. 1, THOMAS BARNARD. She was his widow, in 1715, when her brother Caleb gave her a deed of release. When she became a widow, or how long she continued such, I am not informed. Afterwards, she m. 2, SAMUEL BARNARD, Esq., b. 1684, who survived her more than nineteen years. She d. Aug. 30, 1743, a. 57. After her death, he m. Elizabeth ——, who d. Nov. 9, 1753, a. 46.

Samuel Barnard, Esq., d. Nov. 21, 1762, e. 78. [Grave-stones.] He and his two wives were interred in the Charter (now Vine) Street Burying Ground, Salem.

I have no information of any children by either marriage.

FOURTH GENERATION.

28.

MARY LINDALL,⁴ (James,³ Timothy,² James,¹) daughter of James Lindall,⁹ Esq., by his first wife, Elizabeth Curwen; b. in Salem, Dec. 14, 1705; never married.

There is something touching and romantic in the history of this lady, as it has come down to us by tradition, and which we see no reason to discredit. In the days of her youth, her hand was sought in marriage ; but the suitor not being acceptable to her father, was debarred all access to his lady-love; and the father, to prevent their interviews, confined her to her chamber. Poor Mary ! she could never love another. That warm heart has long since ceased to beat. The green grass waves over it in the Old Charter (now Vine) Street Cemetery in Salem, where is still read the inscription—

" Here lies Interred the body of Mrs. Mary Lindall, who departed this life Jan'y the 22d, 1776, aged 70 years."*

Her memory is still affectionately cherished among the descendants of her niece, Mrs. Mary (Jennison) Giles. See JENNISON [57].

She left a will, but it is not to be found on record. At least, I have searched for it among the Essex Probate Records, without finding it. I have an extract from it, however, which I will here copy:

"I give to my beloved niece, Elizabeth Cheever, wife of David Cheever of Charlestown, the whole use and improvement of my house in Salem, situated on the Great Street [Essex Street] with the yard, garden, &c., belonging thereto, with all the rents and profits thereof, during the whole of her natural life. And if God shall please to give a child or children to my said niece Elizabeth Cheever, which shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years, or be married, then I give said house with all its appurtenances to said child or children, and to their heirs forever. But in case my said niece shall have no child or children that shall arrive at the age of twenty-one or be married, then I give said house to my kinsman, John Appleton of Salem, merchant, and to his heirs and assigns forever; provided, that within one year after said house shall come into his hands he pay or cause to be paid the following legacies, which I order and appoint to be given as part of the value of said house; that is to say, I give to my cousin [nephew] William Jennison, Samuel Jennison, and Mary Giles, sixty pounds each, to them and their children," &c. The date of this will does not appear.

Sixty pounds were equivalent to two hundred Spanish dollars.

John Appleton, H. C. 1757; d. 1817.

Mary Lindall also owned a farm in Danvers, containing 85 acres, which she devised to Edward Goldstone Lutwyche, William Jennison,

^{*} The delicacy of those times is to be commended, which allowed to all ladies of respectability who had passed the term of middle life, whether married or single, the address of "Mrs." prefixed to their names. A different usage, now current, seems quite unapt and unseemly. Think of a "Miss" of seventy or eighty years of age ! We always speak of Mrs. Hannah More.

Samuel Jennison, her nephews, and Mrs. Mary (Jennison) Giles, her niece, in equal shares. [Essex Deeds, 134 : 234.] See p. 31 of this volume.

In the deed just quoted, which bears date June 27, 1776, she is called "our aunt Mary Lindall, formerly of Salem, lately of Charlestown, single woman, deceased;" from which I infer that she passed the latter part of her life in the family of her niece, Mrs. Elizabeth Cheever [27].

SARAH LINDALL⁴ (James,³ Timothy,³ James,¹) daughter of James Lindall,⁹ Esq., by his second wife, Mary Higginson; b. in Salem, June 17, 1712; m. 1736, LAWRENCE LUTWYCHE of Boston, a native of the Principality of Wales.

He was a "distiller;" an occupation, which, in those times, occasioned no scandal. He was a member, and "vestry man" of Trinity Church, Boston, founded in 1728. [Drake's Hist. of Boston, p. 583.

1737-8, Feb. 1. Lately Gee of Boston, distiller, and Sarah his wife, for £625, sell to Lawrence Lutwyche of Boston, distiller, one half of my distill-house and land, bounded N. by the Mill Pond, 39½ feet; N. E. by Jackson and Simpson's land, 93½ feet; S. E. by land of Thomas Flagg, 50 feet; S. W. by a highway [Union Street?] 93 feet, 8 inches, &e. [Suff. Deeds, 55: 212.

Lately Gee bought this distill-house, in 1731, of Daniel Johonnot, one of the Huguenot exiles. [Ibid, 46: 56.

1745, May 22. Sarah Lutwyche of Boston, widow, Excentrix of her late husband, Lawrence Lutwyche, late of said Boston, distiller, deceased, for £1590, in bills of credit of the old tenor, sells the same property. [Ibid, 70:100.

The currency was so depreciated in 1745, that it required 36 shillings in \oplus bills of credit" to be equal to an onnee of silver. This property sold in 1745 for about 980 dollars, which in 1738 was bought for 515 dollars.

The will of Lawrence Lutwyche is dated Sept. 2, 1740; proved Oct. 15, 1740; recorded Suff. Prob., 35 : 85. He bequeaths one half of his estate, real and personal, to his wife, Sarah, and the other half to his son, Edward Goldstone Lutwyche. From this will we learn that the testator was from the County of Radnor, in South Wales; also that he had a brother Edward,* in Boston, and a sister Catharine Smith, widow, in London.

Edward Lutwyche, m. in Boston, Thankful Parmenter, Aug. 27, 1727, and Elizabeth Craige, Aug. 22, 1734.

His name is found attached to a petition signed by fifty-five men, mostly of Boston, addressed to the General Court, May 25, 1735, for a grant of the township, now called Gray, in Maine. The petition was granted. [Mass. Archives, 116:18. Also, Geneal. Reg. X., 165.

^{*} Edward Lutwyche of Boston, was an innholder. In 1733, he and sundry others, "taverners," &e., petitioned the General Court "for relief from the difficultics they labor under by reason of the aets for the mis-spending money in taverns." The petition was referred to the "Committee on Laws," who were directed to bring in a bill for repeating said act. Five years later, Edward Lutwyche's name appears again on the Journals of the General Court, in connection with "the heirs of the late Treasurer, James Tailter, Esq., deceased'; said Lutwyche having "intermarried one of the heirs."

His Inventory was—Real Estate, viz., distill-house and land, £1200 old tenor, equivalent to 950 Spanish dollars; Personal Estate £1425, old tenor, equivalent to 1133 Spanish dollars.

Mr. Lutwyche d. in 1740. Mrs. Lutwyche was still a widow in 1754, at the division of her father's estate.

She appears to have had but one child-

53. Edward Goldstone (Lutwyche), b. about 1737 ; m. 1777, Jane Rapalje.

Edward Goldstone Lutwyche owned a large estate, on which he resided, in the town of Merrimack, N. H. It was on the western bank of Merrimack river, near "Lutwyche's Ferry," as it was then called. He was a leading, influential man in that vicinity; and as early as 1767, when searcely thirty years old, he commanded a regiment of militia. When the Revolutionary struggle commenced, he adhered to the royal cause; fled to Boston during the siege, and at the evacuation of that town in March, 1776, accompanied the British forces to Halifax. In 1778, he was proscribed and banished, and his estate confiscated. In 1780, his estate was purchased by Matthew Thornton, successively of -Londonderry, Exeter, and Merrimack, N. H., one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; from whom the ferry was called "Thornton's Ferry," a name it still bears.

Col. Lutwyche became a Lieutenant Colonel in the British army; and in 1777 married Jane, dau. of John Rapalje, or Rapalie, of Brooklyn, N. Y. She was a descendant of a family of the name of Rapalie, Huguenot exiles from Rochelle, in France, who took refuge in Holland. A branch of the family came with the Dutch colonists to this country in 1623, and settled first at Fort Orange, [Albany,] then at New Amsterdam, [New York,] and finally at Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1637. Mrs. Lutwyche died at Brooklyn, in 1783, a. 23. Her dau. Catharine Lutwyche, m. George Weltden of the city of London. [Riker's Annals of Newtown.

Out of respect to Col. E. G. Lutwyche, Rev. Edward Lutwyche Parker received his name. Col. Lutwyche was a particular friend of Dr. Jonathan Parker of Litchfield, N. H., whose son Rev. E. L. Parker was b. in Litchfield, July 28, 1785; grad. Dart. College 1807; ord. pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Londonderry, N. H.,—in the section now the town of Derry,—Sept. 12, 1810; d. suddenly after preaching, Sabbath, July 14, 1850. A clergyman of great amiableness and worth of character; author of a History of Londonderry.

THE CURWEN FAMILY.

THE Curwen family have written the name differently, at different times. Capt. George, the first of the name in this country, wrote it Corwin, Corwine, and Curwin, but used the arms of the Curwens of Workington Hall, Cumberland, Eng. His son John,² wrote Corwin for the most part, but sometimes Curwin. Hon. Jonathan,² invariably wrote Corwin; while his son, Rev. George,³ invariably wrote Curwin. George,³ the sheriff, consin to Rev. George, wrote Curwen and Corwin. His descendants have continued to write Corwin. The descendants of Rev. George,³ have adhered to the spelling Curwen.

SI JE N'ESTOY. George,³ have adhered to the spelling Curwen. For the notices of the Curwen Family which follow, the writer is chiefly indebted to Mr. George A. Ward of New York, and Mr. George R. Curwen of Salem. The notices of the Curwens, in "Curwen's Journal," and the Curwen Pedigree, in the Geneal. Register, Vol. X., p. 304, contain some errors which are here corrected.*

Capt. GEORGE CURWEN,¹ was b. in Englayd, Dec. 10, 1610; it is believed, at Workington, in Cumberland. His ancestors were for centuries among the leading families in that county. He came to this country with wife Elizabeth, and dau. Abigail, then an infant, and settled in Salem, in 1638. He erected a house there, in 1642, at the west corner of Essex and North Streets, which remained in possession of the family till 1856, when it was sold to the present occupant. He was of an active, energetic character; an eminent merchant, engaged in the London trade; and may be said to have laid the foundation for the commercial enterprise and prosperity of Salem. He was a rich and influential eitizen; was often employed in town affairs; a deputy of the town for several years in the General Court; and commander of a troop of horse in the Indian war.

In 1659, he, with ten others, had a grant of a plantation, ten miles square, forty or fifty miles from Springfield. [Mass. Records, Vol. IV., Part 1., p. 374.

^{*} There was a SAMUEL CORWIN in 1652, as we learn from the Court files, &c. of the County of Essex. He seems to have been of Boston, where he d. Nor. 16, 1698. It is probable that he was the father or grandfather of Mary Corwin, who m. May 9, 1701, Thomas Smith of Boston, afterwards Captain of the fort at Saco. See p. 329, note. There are Corwins in New York, who may be descendants from him. They are not descendants of George Curwen.¹

In 1666, he was appointed one of a Committee of seven to view the fortifications. [Ibid, Vol. IV., Part 2, p. 297.

He was also appointed by the General Court, in 1666, to oversee the building of a Fort at Salem.

In 1670, he was appointed one of a Committee of six to revise the laws of the Colony. [Ibid, Vol. IV., Part 2, p. 453. Many other trusts, to which he was appointed, might be specified from the early records. These are sufficient to indicate the honorable position which he held in the community.

He was twice married. His first wife, m. in England, was ELIZA-BETH (HERBERT) WHITE, of Northampton, Eng., widow of John White. She was probably the dan. of Gregory Herbert and Jane Dalton, who were married at St. Giles's Church, Northampton, Sept. 27, 1607. She was b. May 1, 1611, and d. at Salem, Sept. 15, 1668. His second wife, to whom he was married, Sept. 22, 1669, was ELIZA-BETH (WINSLOW) BROOK, widow of Robert Brook, and youngest child of Edward Winslow, Governor of Plymonth Colony, by his wife Susanna, who had been the widow of William White, one of the passengers in the Mayflower. She d. after 1694.*

* Mr. Russell in his "Guide to Plymouth," 1st edit. p. 239, says that Capt. Curwen's second wife was the widow of John Brooke. This must be an error. For among the original documents pertaining to the settlement of Capt. Curwen's estate is-"A List of severall things Inventoried wth the estate of Capt. Geo. Corwine, web in right belong to Elizabeth his reliet widdow; being either received before, or given to her after, marriage." In this "List," occurs the following : "To a Large Tankard, plate, yt was my form" Husbands, Mr. Rob! Brookes, wth or armes.

"To a plate Sugr Box, given me per Govr. Winslow.

"To a porringer d'o sent Jno. Brook per ditto.

"To a small hand silver Candlestick given ditto Brook per Mr. Herbert Pelham.

"To 12 Silver Spoones : 6 : of ym Gilt & knubd.

" To 1 ditto given per ye Lrd Mayor.

The list of which the above is an extract, is signed by "Eliz. Corwin."

She had a son John Brook, mentioned in the will of her brother Josiah Winslow, 1675.

Capt. GEORGE CURWEN,³ (John,² George,¹) eldest son of Capt. John² and Margaret Curwen; b. in Salem, Feb. 26, 1665–6; m. 1, SUSANNA GEDNEY. 2, LYDIA GEDNEY. They were daus. of Hon. Bartholomew Gedney of the Province Council. Lydia survived her husband.

He was Captain in the disastrous Expedition to Canada, in 1690. Soon after, he was appointed Sheriff of Essex County, and performed the duty of executing the persons condemned for witcheraft, in 1692. For so doing, he was harassed by the friends of the sufferers, till his death, which occurred, April 12, 1696.

He had an only son-

24. †Bartholomew,4 b. June 21, 1693 ; m. Esther Burt.

Rev. GEORGE CURWEN,⁵ (Jonathan,² George,¹) son of Hon. Jonathan² and Elizabeth Curwen; b. May 21, 1683; m. July 27, 1711, MEHITABLE PARKMAN, dau. of Deliverance Parkman, E-q., by his second wife Mehitable, dau. of Hon. John Waite, Speaker of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts. She d. Nov. 13, 1718.

He grad. H. C. 1701; was ordained pastor (and colleague with Rev. Nicholas Noyes,) of the First Church in Salem, 1714; d. Nov. 23, 1717. He is thus noticed in the records of the First Church:

"Died in Salem, Nov. 23, 1717, the Rev. George Curwin, in the thirty-fifth year of his age, and the fourth of his ordained ministry. He was highly esteemed in his life, and very deservedly lamented at his death; having been very eminent for his early improvement in learning and piety, his singular abilities and great labors, his remarkable zeal and faithfulness. He was a great benefactor to our poor."

His children were-

25. Jonathan,⁴ b. May 6, 1713; d. Nov. 6, 1718.

Samuel,⁴ b. Dec. 17, 1715; m. May, 1750, Abigail Russell, b. Jan. 13, 1725, dan. of Hon. Daniel Russell of Charlestown. She d. March 31, 26. 1793. He grad. H. C. 1735; was educated for the ministry, but left that profession to become a merchant; was a Captain in the Expedition to Lonisburg, 1745; was afterwards Impost Officer for Essex County, and Judge of the Admiralty Court. On the departure of Governor Hutchinson for England, June 1, 1774, he signed the Salem address to that functionary, expressing entire approbation of his public conduct. This imprudent step made him obnoxious to the ardent friends of liberty, and rendered it necessary for him to quit his native land. He arrived in England early in July, 1775, and resided there as an American loyalist during the Revolutionary war. He returned to America and to his native town, in Sept. 1784, and died there, April 9, 1802, a. 86. He was the author of a "Journal and Letters," written during his exile, and comprising remarks on the prominent men and measures of that period. A selection from them were printed in an 8vo. volume at New York, in 1842, edited by his relative, Mr. George Atkinson Ward. The originals fill eighteen volumes, all bound in parchment. He had no children. Notwithstanding his departure for England at the commencement of the Revolutionary struggle, it would be great injustice to brand him as a

"tory," and a supporter of arbitrary power. He was a man of moderate which were pursued on both sides. He ardently loved his country, and honestly thought that those who were aiming at independence were involving her in a fruitless struggle, and in unspeakable calamities.

espoused the popular cause in the Revolution, and opposed the arbitrary measures of Parliament. He was a member of the "Committee of Safety and Protection" during the entire period of the Revolutionary struggle. He, as a subaltern officer in Colonel Piekering's Regiment, marched on the Lexington Alarm, and likewise on the day of the battle of Bunker Hill; though on both occasions they were not in season to participate in the conflict. In June, 1776, he was commissioned as captain of a company in a regiment commanded by Col. Timothy Pickering, from Essex County. Family affairs compelled his retirement from the military service, in 1777. He was for a long time at the head of the town government, and a member of the State Legislature. He d. Mehitable Cushing became the wife of her cousin, George Atkinson Ward, of New York City, editor of Curwen's "Letters and Journal."

Mrs. Sarah (Ward) Cushing, having at the age of twenty-seven become a widow, combed back her hair, put on a cap with a thick border, and a black ribbon round her head, together with a white collar, and a simple black dress. This style of ap-parel she never changed until her death, which occurred at the residence of her son-in-law, George Atkinson Ward, Esq., New Brighton, Staten Island, New York, June 9, 1862, at the advanced age of ninety-three years. She was a very dignified lady of the Old School ; very particular in observing the rules of etiquette ; a great reader; very agreeable in manners and disposition; foud of society, and never allowing her faculties to rust out. She was the last owner of the Old Curwen House, until it passed from the possession of the descendants of Capt. GEORGE CURWEN,1 in 1856.

THE MARSHALL FAMILY OF BRAINTREE.

PRELIMINARY CONSIDERATIONS.

In the first generation of New England people were many families of the name of MARSHALL. We find a Christopher Marshall of Boston, in 1634, who went with Rev. John Wheelwright to Exeter, in 1637; Edmund of Salem, 1636, who removed, says Savage, either to Ipswich or Newbury, though we think he went to New London with Rev. Richard Blinman, in 1648, (see p. 221); Edward of Warwick, R. I., 1658 ; Francis of Boston, who was a master-mariner, and came in the Hopewell from London, 1635, a. 30; James of Windsor, Ct., 1640; John of Duxbury, about 1650, whose wife was Mary, dau. of Rev. Ralph Partridge; John of Providence, R. I., 1639; John of Boston, who also came in the Hopewell from London, 1635, a. 14, and lived till 1715; John, a transient person, a mariner from Barnstaple, in Devon, Eng., who died in Boston, 1662; John of Billerica, 1658; John of Greenwich, Ct., 1672; Robert of Salem, 1637, who perhaps removed to Boston; Samuel of Windsor, Ct., the part afterwards Simsbury, 1637; Thomas of Dorchester, 1634, who probably removed to Windsor; Thomas of Boston, 1634, of whom more anon; Thomas of Boston, tailor, 1643, who d. Jan. 1708, a. 100; Thomas of Reading, who came in the James from London, 1635, a. 22; Thomas of Salem, 1657; Thomas of Middletown, Ct., 1669; Thomas of Andover; William of Salem, 1638; William of Charlestown, 1666.

THOMAS MARSHALL,⁴ one of those here enumerated, resided in Boston, and was a man of much respectability. He was admitted freeman, March 4, 1634–5. His name very often occurs on the early town and probate records. He "was chosen by general consent," Jan. 23, 1635–6, "for ye keeping of a Ferry from ye Mylne [Windmill] Point vnto Charlestowne, and to Wynnyseemitt," now Chelsea. He was one of the party of Rev. John Wheelwright, in 1637; and for signing, with others, a petition in his favor, was, by order of Court, disfranchised, and required to surrender his arms. Nevertheless, he continued to enjoy, in a high degree, the confidence of his fellow-citizens; was often chosen to offices of trust, and often employed in taking inventories of deceased persons. He was a deacon of the First Church; and was Selectman of Boston, from 1648 to 1657, ten ycars. He represented the town in the General Court, and died about 1665.

His estate lay at what is now the S. E. angle of Hanover and Blackstone Streets. Blackstone Street now occupies the place where formerly ran the Mill Creek, which was filled up and built upon about 1825. Marshall's Lane, now Marshall Street, passes, I think, directly over his land; and from him, undoubtedly, it derived its name. His land measured 44 feet on Hanover Street, and 74 feet on the Mill Creek. The "Water-mill," or Tide-mill, was near his house. His garden extended apparently to Union Street.

He brought from England, two sons, by a first wife-Thomas and Samuel, and two daus., Sarah and Frances; of whom Sarah m. James Penniman, and Frances m. July 16, 1652, Joseph Howe.

Samuel, one of the sons, settled in Windsor, Ct.; was a Captain in the "Great Swamp Fight," Dec. 19, 1675; and was there killed, with many of his men.

Eliakim, son of Thomas Marshall,¹ by a second wife, Alice, b. March 1, 1637, removed to Stratford, Ct.; returned to Boston; was of Capt. Lothrop's Company, in " Philip's war," and was killed at Bloody Brook, Sept. 18, 1675.

Alice, wife of Deacon Thomas Marshall, d. May 20, 1664.

JOHN MARSHALL,¹ who is also enumerated on p. 345, came in the Hopewell from London, 1635, a. 14, and was "allowed to inhabit" Boston, Feb. 24, 1639-40. His wife was SARAH ------. He lived in Milk Street, which we suppose is meant by "the lane leading from the Main Street towards Fort Hill." He appears to have lived to a great age. His will as recorded, Suff. Prob. 19:77, is dated Nov. 22, 1692, in which he speaks of himself as "arrived unto old age;" yet the will was not proved till March 20, 1715-16. If the probate of the will followed, at no great interval, his death, he must have lived to be at least 95 years of age. His wife Sarah d. Sept. 28, 1689, a. 66.

Col. Thomas Marshall had command of the Tenth Massachusetts Regiment of Continental troops, from 1777 to 1780. Capt. Christopher Marshall had a company in the same regiment. [Mass. Archives.] It is probable that they were of this family. It is also probable that most of the Boston Marshalls have been of this family; though there were some descendants from Robert and Francis.

The Family of MARSHALLS, to which we shall now confine ourselves, is not at all related, so far as we are aware, to any of the Marshalls of whom we have yet spoken. The preceding details have been given, because they were obtained in the fruitless attempt to discover a connection between the Marshalls of whom we have spoken, and the Marshalls of whom it remains to speak; and because, having been obtained, the compiler thought it proper to print them, in the hope that they might be serviceable to others. They will at least demonstrate that many other families have borne the name of Marshall, besides that which will now be brought to the notice of the reader.

The designation — "MARSHALL FAMILY OF BRAINTREE"—has been adopted as perhaps the only one which would distinguish it from all others. It does not indeed characterize the first American ancestor of this family, who was a resident of Boston. But the term—" Marshall Family of Boston" or "Family of John Marshall,"—would not distinguish it from the very numerous and respectable family of which we have already given an account. The term " Marshall Family of Braintree," refers, of course, to the fact that John Marshall, mason, the son of the original emigrant and husband of Mary Sheffield,—who happens to be that one of the compiler's Marshall ancestors, of whom the fullest information has descended to us—was a resident in that ancient town; and we seem compelled to make this fact the point of distinction from other families of the name.

The compiler is obliged to retract the supposition made in the Vinton Memorial, p. 343, note, as to the parentage of John Marshall, the husband of Ruth, and father of John of Braintree.

FIRST GENERATION.

JOHN MARSHALL,¹ the progenitor of the family of which I am now to speak, was a native of Scotland. The proof of this is found in the following statement:

"James, y* sonne of John Marshall a Scotishmä and of Ruth his wife borne 29 Sept. 59," i. e. 1659. [Boston Records.

He is here called a "Scotishman," to distinguish him from the other John Marshall, then resident in Boston, who came from England.*

There is a tradition in the family, that it is of Scottish descent.

He was probably the freeman of May 31, 1671. He was a mason, or "bricklayer," and his wife's name was RUTH. The time of his arrival in this country has not been ascertained. The first notice of him, which, after long research, has been discovered, is the record already quoted, 1659.

He purchased a lot of land, 1668, on which he probably creeted a house. Aug. 3, 1668, James Hawkins of Boston, bricklayer, and Mary, his wife, for £30 sterling, sell to John Marshall of Boston, bricklayer, a parcel of land in Boston, 87 feet in length, and 31 feet in breadth. This land fronted southeasterly on Sudbury Lane, [now Sudbury Street]; was bounded on the rear, or northwest end, on the orehard of James Hawkins, the grantor; on the northeast upon the garden of said James Hawkins, and on the southwest also on said James Hawkins's land. This parcel of land was afterwards found to be 96 feet in length, with a front of 324 feet. [Suff. Deeds, 20:147, 149.

From James Hawkins, the grantor in this deed, Hawkins Street must have derived its name. It was so called as far back as 1732. We are thus enabled to locate the residence of John Marshall, our ancestor, as being very near the intersection of Hawkins and Sudbury Streets, on the west side of the street last named.[‡]

He died in the autumn of 1672; his Inventory being dated, Nov. 29, 1672, and his widow Ruth being the same day appointed administratrix of his estate. [Suff. Prob., 7 : 268.] She afterwards married Daniel Fairfield of Boston, who died Dec. 22, 1709, a. about 77.

James Hawkins, who is mentioned by John Marshall,² author of the Diary, as James Hawkins, who is mentioned by John Marshall,² author of the Diary, as his "uncle," was son of the abovesaid James and Mary (Mills) Hawkins. He was b. March 18, 1653-4; and d. Jan. 6, 1709-10, æ. 56. James II. wkins, the father, died before 1694.

^{*} Lest any should imagine that he was one of the Scottish prisoners sent to America by Cronwell after the battle of Worcester, 1651, I will say, that I have seen a list of the Scottish prisoners, who were sent to Boston, and his name is not among them. He came no doubt as others did, of his own accord.

[‡] James Hawkins was an early settler in Boston. He was there as early as 1641; his wife was Mary Mills,² dau. of the excellent John Mills¹ of Boston, Afterwards of Braintree. See Vinton Memorial, p. 341. Their dau. Susanna, was b, Feb. 12, 1645-6; which proves that said Mary Mills was born long before 1640, the date assigned in the volume just quoted; doubtless as early as 1625, before the removal of John Mills, her father, to America.

They were married by Rev. Moses Fisk of that place.[‡]

Mr. Savage, quoting this statement in his Genealogical Dictionary, adds—"Whence he came for this visit, must be inquired, but can hardly be answered." We answer, he came from Greenwich, Ct., at that time his home, and during this visit to Boston executed the deed of release already cited.

t The Braintree Records, in recording the marriage of John Marshall, declare him the son of John and Ruth Marshall ; which was the fact. But those records, in the same place make his wife to be the daughter of Edmund and Mary Sheffield ; whereas she was the dau. of Edmund and Sarah, and so is her birth recorded.

EDMUND SHEFFIELD,¹ the father of Mary (Sheffield) Mills, in the text, was born in England, about the year 1615; came to New England; was of Roxwas born in England, about the year 1615; came to New England; was of Nox-bury, 1641; settled in Braintree, in 1645, where he resided from that time till his death; freeman, May 29, 1644; m. 1, April 17, 1644, MARY WOODY, dau. of Richard Woody, of Boston and Roxbury, admitted freeman, May 18, 1642; d. 1658. John Marshall,² was, like his father, a "bricklayer," or mason, by trade; he lived in Boston till Sept. 1690; and after that date lived in that part of Braintree which is now Quincy. He was not a man of wealth, but of strict integrity, and deep and earnest piety. He seems to have had more education than was common in those days among the unprofessional classes. He was one of the subscribers for Prince's New England Chronology; but died before that work was issued. He was a man of active habits; was a useful man in society; was constable

dau. of John Beal by his wife, Mary,² dau. of Edmund Hobart,¹ and sister of Rev. Peter Hobart,2 all of Hingham. She was married to Thomas Marsh, March 22, 1648-9. Thomas Marsh died a little before April 26, 1659, when his will was proved. See Abstraet of his will in Geneal. Reg., Vol. IX., p. 39. Edmund Sheffield, by his name, reminds us of Edmund Lord Sheffield, one of the Patentees of the Great Charter, granted Nov. 3, 1620, usually called the Plymouth Charter. It is not to be supposed, however, that there was any relationship between parties so unequal in social position. Our Edmund Sheffield was by trade a "wheelwright;" and appears to have been a man of great worth of character. He lived in that part of Braintree which is now Quiney; and died Oct. 13, 1705, "aged about 90," say the Braintree Records. His widow Sarah died Nov. 9, 1710, "aged about 84," according to the same authority; but the Diary of John Marshall, her son-in-law, says, "86 or thereabouts."

The children of Edmund Sheffield were-

These two brothers, in 1672, purchased of Joshua Fisher, six hundred acres of land at Chabboquassett; and William, in 1673, began there the settlement of what is now Holliston. He was driven away, two years later, by the Indian hostilities; but returned, and in 1679, petitioned the General Court to be annexed to Medfield. In 1686, he was rated the highest, save two, in Sherborn, of which Holliston was then a part. He died Dec. 6, 1700. He divided his farm of 600 acres among his four sons, William, Joseph, Nathanicl, and Daniel. [Rev. Abner Morse.

There was a William Sheffield at Dover, N. H., 1658 and 1659, who had a son Joseph. It was probably the same.

The wife of the celebrated Hugh Peters of Salem, m. about 1639, was Deliverance Sheffield, a member of the First Church in Boston. She was soon after deprived of reason, and so continued for twenty years or more. I know not whether she was related to this family; but suppose her to have been a sister of Edmund Sheffield. He had also a brother, Amos Sheffield, who d. in Braintree, Dec. 31, 1708, a. upwards of 80.

of Braintree, 1699, 1700, and 1707; surveyor of highways, 1709, 1730; and served on some important committees.

An Elegy, which he wrote, and procured to be printed, to commemorate the virtues of his excellent and beloved wife, after her decease, has descended to the compiler of this volume, and will be inserted in Appendix II. He was also the author of a valuable Diary. from 1697 to 1711, which is still preserved in the Library of the Massachusetts Historical Society. It was formerly in the possession of Rev. Thaddeus Mason Harris, D. D., of Dorchester, who often quoted it by mistake as "Fairfield's Diary." It was presented by Dr. Harris to the Historical Society.

The first husband of Mary (Sheffield) Marshall, was, as already stated, Jonathan Mills.³ She lived with him, according to the Elegy, two years and one month, which must have been from June, 1686, to July, 1688; and had by him one son, Jonathan, b. March 27, 1687, who died at the age of sixteen months. Her husband, Mills, died about July, 1688. These afflictions, as the same document informs us, led her into a more decided and thorough Christian experience, and to a public profession of religion. She lived with her second husband, Marshall, as the same authority informs us, "twenty-eight years, four months, and twenty days." She died October 1, 1718, a. 55. I heard my maternal grandmother speak of her, forty-four years since, as her great-grandmother, and as a woman of devoted piety.

John Marshall did not marry again. He survived his excellent wife fourteen years, and died Oct. 25, 1732, a. 68.

Their children, all b. in Braintree, were-

MARY MARSHALL,3 (John,2 John,1) dau. of John2 and Mary (Sheffield) Marshall ; b. in Braintree, Sept. 28, 1697 ; m. in Braintree, BENJAMIN SOPER,³ Sept. 22, 1721.

Benjamin Soper, at the time of his marriage, was of Hull, near Boston. He was a "mariner," and probably a ship-master.

Our knowledge of him is quite limited. Nine days before his marriage, he bought, for £34, current money of New England, of Joseph Benson, and Rebekah his wife, a dwelling-house, in Hull, with the land

Previous to 1734, he removed to Boston, where he was living at the date of a unitelaim deed from Rev. Josiah Marshall, his brother-in-law, of which the following is an abstract :

March 7, 1733-4, Josiah Marshall, late of Falmouth, in the County of Barnstable, in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, in New England, Clerk, now residing in the Province of North Carolina, in Consideration of the Especial Love, Goodwill, and Affection, which I have and bear to my Loving Brother-in-law Benjamin Soper* of Boston, as well as to my sister Mary Soper his wife give, grant, &c. to the said Benjamin Soper all my Right, Title, and Interest, in land and Buildings given to me and my sisters by my grandfather, Mr. Edmond Sheffield, late of Braintree, where the said Estate is situate by one Deed under his hand and seal some time in or about the year 1704, being that Estate lately improved by my Father, John Marshall, deceased. [Suff. Deeds, 50 : 223.

He was living in 1740, April 19, when Benjamin Soper of Boston, mariner, and Mary his wife, for £150, in Province Bills, [equivalent at that time to 120 Spanish dollars.] sold to Ebenezer Miller of Brantrey, "all our share, interest, claim," &c., to a messuage and five aeres of land, in Brantrey, bounded N. The property now sold had doubtless been the residence of John Marshall,2 the father of Mrs. Soper, and must have been not far from the tide-water in the present town of Quincy.

Benjamin Soper seems to have died between 1740 and 1750. This is inferred from the fact that we find his children joining, Oct. 20, 1752, in a mortgage to Henry Price of Boston, for £13.6.8, [$44.44] of the dwelling-house and land in Hull, which he bought of Joseph Benson, Sept. 13, 1721. Rev. JOSIAH MARSHALL,³ (John,² John,¹) the only son of John² and Mary (Sheffield) Marshall who lived beyond the period of childhood; b. in Braintree, Nov. 28, 1700; m. Feb. 1, 1726-7, HANNAH HATCH, b. in Falmouth, May 7, 1698, dau. of Benjamin and Mary (Hamblin) Hatch of that place.

He graduated at Harvard College, July 6, 1720; the first of the name of Marshall, in this country, who graduated at any college. Sixteen out of the twenty-one members of his class became ministers of the gospel. Among them we find Rev. John Angier of Bridgewater, Rev. Samuel Dexter of Dedham, Rev. Thomas Smith of Portland, Rev. Shearjashub Bourne of Scituate, Rev. Joseph Parsons of Bradford, Rev. Hull Abbot of Charlestown, Rev. Seth Storer of Watertown, Rev. Joseph Green of Barnstable, &c. See Geneal. Reg., Vol. XIII., p. 305.

He seems to have spent some time in teaching; as we find that he was employed in 1720 to teach a Grammar School in Malden a quarter of a year.

He was the second pastor of the Church in Falmouth, in Barnstable County. The town of Falmouth voted, Feb. 26, 1723-4, to concur with the Church in the Call to Mr. Marshall. He accepted the Call, April 7, and was ordained Aug. 19, 1724. The town voted him £120 the first four years.

Rev. Josiah Marshall, with Mr. Checkley and Mr. Cotton, attended the execution of the noted pirate captain, William Fly, who with two others, Samuel Cole and Henry Greenville, were hanged at Boston, July 12, 1726. The "three ministers went to prayer with them." Fly was a hardened wretch. Both at his trial and execution, he conducted himself with indecent boldness, and total unconcern, and even made light of the awful scene, bowing gaily to the spectators as he went to the gallows. See Diary of Jeremiah Bumstead in Geneal. Reg., Vol. XV., p. 310; also, see Drake's History of Boston, p. 573.

The mortgage reads thus—"Mary Blaney, widow, Benjamin Soper, as in the text. Matthew Smith, mariner, Zerubbabel Marshall, taylor, Sarah, wife of s^d Matthew, and Elizabeth, wife of s^d Zerubbabel, all of Boston," &c.

^{*} Possibly "Mary Blaney, widow," [19] was the widow, not the daughter, of Benja-min Soper [13]. I find her name as the first of the grantors in the mortgage to Henry Price, dated Oct. 20, 1752, quoted on page 352. It scems as if his widow, no less than his children, should have been a party to the mortgage. If so, she had become a second time a widow. Yet I think the record of the death of Mrs. Mary Soper, Nov. 1774, a. 77, refers to the widow of Benjamin Soper, as in the text.

Mr. Marshall and his wife did not live happily together. It appears that before they had been married a year, serious difficulties between them arose, which in 1730 led to a final separation, and to his dismission from the pastoral office. There is a full account of this painful affair, furnished by the parties themselves, in the Massachusetts Archives, Vol. IX., 206, 209; also, XI., 533. It appears that at a session of the Superior Court, held for Barnstable and Dukes Counties at Barnstable, April 23, 1730, Hannah Marshall, wife of Rev. Josiah Marshall of Falmouth, presented a petition, dated April 21, 1730, complaining of abusive and threatening language uttered against her by her husband, and that she made oath that she was in fear of her life or of bodily harm from him. Whereupon the said Josiah Marshall was laid under bonds to keep the peace, and be of good behavior towards his wife. The Court also directed and advised her to keep at her father's house till further order from the Court; and it appears that she did so.

It appears, moreover, that she petitioned the Council of the Province for a divorce, Nov. 24, 1785; but it was not granted.

Mr. Marshall was dismissed from his pastoral charge, Aug. 14, 1730, and the town bought his honse, Oct. 7, 1730, for £545. In July, 1731, he quitted Falmouth, and went to Boston, where he made arrangements for a removal to North Carolina. He did not, however, remove to that Province till after the ordination of his successor, Rev. Samuel Palmer, which was on the third Wednesday of November [24th day], 1731. He continued in North Carolina till the winter of 1737–8, when he returned to Massachusetts, and took up his abode in Mendon.

In December, 1738, he presented a petition to Governor Belcher and the Council of the Province, dated on the 14th of that month, in which he complains of the conduct of his wife in forsaking him, and joining the malcontents of his parish, &c. The separation having now continued between eight and nine years, and there being no prospect of a reconeiliation, he prays for a divorce.

The answer of Hannah Marshall is dated Falmouth, Jan. 1, 1738. In this document, she joins with him in supplicating a final divorce, but not on the grounds set forth by him. She speaks of his unkind carriage towards her, his threatenings, and hard speeches, "particularly at the time when I was in travail; as I never had but one child."

It appears that these petitions were dismissed, and the divorce not granted. It also appears that her previous petitions to the Court of Sessions, in 1730, and to the Council and General Court, in 1735, were denied, except to the extent of advising her to live at her father's house. It seems probable, therefore, that the case was not quite so bad as she represented. There were doubtless faults on both sides. There might be a want of mutual forbearance. There might be a lack of mutual sympathy. There might be an incompatibility of tastes and tempers between them. She might be an unfit companion for him. There might be considerable friction. He might be imprudent and careless in speech. She might misunderstand him, and pervert his meaning. She might be impulsive, nervous, fidgety, and apt to complain. His patience might be sorely tried with her, and hers with him. Circumstances stated in his petition make it quite probable, that her father, and other friends, who lived in the neighborhood, by their ill-judged interference, made a bad matter worse.

Rev. Josiah Marshall died in the year 1772.

Respecting the children of Rev. Josiah Marshall, I am at a loss what to say. I have long supposed that Zerubbabel Marshall, my great grandfather, was his son; and such was the statement I made in the Vinton Memorial, p. 343, note. This statement rested on information given to me, in 1819, by my maternal grandmother, that she was the grand grand-daughter of John and Mary Marshall of Braintree. As my grandmother was a Marshall, I understood her to speak of her descent in the Marshall line, through her father, Zerubbabel Marshall; and I still think she intended so to be understood. Her statement, however, is equally verified by tracing her pedigree through her mother, Elizabeth Soper [22] and the mother of the latter, Mary (Marshall) Soper [13], who was a daughter of John and Mary Marshall of Braintree.

I am still of the opinion that Zerubbabel Marshall was a son of Rev. Josiah Marshall, by a former marriage. But as I cannot obtain positive and documentary evidence of this—the Falmouth Records failing to afford light on the subject—I prefer to state only what I do know; which is, that Rev. Josiah Marshall had one wife, Hannah Hatch, and had by her only one child, viz.—

23. Mary,4 b. Dec. 4, 1727; d. in 1728.

21.

SARAH SOPER,⁴ (Mary Marshall,³ John,² John,¹) daughter of Benjamin and Mary (Marshall) Soper of Boston; b. perbaps in Hull, about 1725; m. 1, in Boston, Aug. 22, 1752, Capt. MATTHEW SMITH, a ship-master, said to be a native of Ireland. He had two daughters, Mary and Betsey, by a former marriage. He was a pious man. He d. Nov. 6, 1769, a. 43, and was interred in the Granary Burying Ground, Boston.

2, May 22, 1770, BENJAMIN STEWARD, of whom nothing further is now known. The marriage-service was performed by Rev. William Walter, who was rector of Trinity Church from 1767 to 1775.

3, JOHN GENT. The date of the marriage is not on record; but the "intention" was entered in the town clerk's office in Boston, December 25, 1777. We have been informed that he was from Philadelphia, and a man of piety.*

4, July 4, 1787, JOSEPH SWEETSER. The marriage-service was performed by Rev. Samuel Stillman, D. D., of the First Baptist Church. Mr. Sweetser died May, 1790, a. 82.

She passed her life in Boston, and died a widow, August, 1795, a. 70. She resided on Prince Street, at the North End. The compiler's mother lived with her and took care of her, in her last years; and Mrs. Sweetser gave to her by will most of her property. For an abstract of the will, and for notices of some of Mrs. Sweetser's connections, see pp. 72, 73, of this volume. She never had children.

^{*} If we mistake not, Mr. Gent was horn in Boston, May 11, 1711, the son of John and Abigail Jent, as the name was sometimes written. [Boston Records.] The name is very uncommon.

ELIZABETH SOPER,⁴ (Mary Marshall,³ John,² John,¹ dau. of Benjamin and Mary (Marshall) Soper, and sister of the preceding; b. about 1728; spent her life in Boston, and, like her sister Sarah, had four husbands.

1. ZERUBBABEL MARSHALL. My reasons for supposing him to have been a son of Rev. Josiah Marshall, have already been assigned. See p. 355. If the fact were so, then Zerubbabel and his wife were first consins. This is probable enough; but no documentary evidence of the fact has been obtained; and it may have been otherwise.

Zerubbabel Marshall was a "taylor" by occupation, as we learn from a dead, already quoted, dated Oct. 20, 1752. [Suff. Deeds, 81 : 136.] He was probably born about 1725, and died about 1760. He lived in Boston, at least from the time of his marriage, which was about 1752, till his death. He died young, not being more than 35 years of age. This fact, with the changes which subsequently came over his family, is sufficient to account for our imperfect knowledge of him and his antecedents.

2. FERRERS SHIRLEY was married to Elizabeth, widow of Zerubbabel Marshall, March 28, 1761. They were married by Rev. William Hooper, who was minister of Trinity Church, from 1747 to 1767. It seems probable that she and her sister were at this time "Churchpeople," or Episcopalians.*

3. HENRY SNOW. She was his second wife. His marriage to Mrs. Elizabeth (Soper) Shirley could not have taken place before the latter part of 1774, because we find a deed, dated July 16, 1770, wherein Henry Snow and Lillie his wife sell land on Temple Street, Boston; [Suff. Deeds, 125:111;] and this deed was acknowledged, Feb. 21, 1774, by Henry Snow and Lillie his wife.

He was married to Lilly Poor, in Boston, July 22, 1743.

Henry Snow was a cabinet-maker, and lived in Temple Street. He died in the autumn of 1778. Ilis will, dated Aug. 28, 1778; proved Oct. 30, 1778; recorded, Suff. Prob., 77: 131; gives to his "beloved and dutiful wife Elizabeth" the sole use and improvement of all his estate, both real and personal, during her natural life, except so much of the same as it may be necessary to sell for the payment of his just debts, funeral charges, &c. After her decease, one third of his real estate, should any be left, shall go to his friend, Mr. Thomas Phillips of Salem, mariner; one third part to Farris Shirley, an infant, abont thirteen years of age, now living at Merrimack, N. IL; and the other third part to Mary Soaper Marshall. He constitutes Nathaniel Coverly of Boston, printer, and wife Elizabeth, executors.

The inventory of Henry Snow is dated Nov. 6, 1778, and amounts to $\pounds 259.10$, including mansion-house and land on Temple Street, $\pounds 180$.

^{*} Tradition reports that Ferrers Shirley was a kinsman of Governor William Shirley. His name seems to justify the conjecture that he was an offshoot from the family of Shirley, earl Ferrars. Whether it were so or not, I have no means of determining. I will only observe that Mrs. Sarah (Soper) Choate of Rockport, [29] who is now eighty-six years of age, has always made a confident statement of the tradition, and appeals in confirmation to a splendid silk coat, highly ornamented with gold tissue, which came to her father from Ferrers Shirley, his step-father.

4. LUKE HOWELL was the fourth husband. They were married June 22, 1780, by Rev. Stephen Lewis, who was rector of Christ Church from 1778 to 1784. On the same day, and by the same clergyman, Mary Soper Marshall, dau. of Zerubbabel and Elizabeth Marshall, was married to Thomas Giles.

Mrs. Elizabeth (Soper) Howell died March 22, 1783.

It appears that the property left her by her third husband did not amount to much. The house was occupied a few months by Thomas Giles and wife, after his discharge from the naval service of his country, (see p. 54); and then sold, previous to Aug. 31, 1784, to pay the debts due from the estate.

The children of Zerubbabel and Elizabeth (Soper) Marshall, b. in Boston, were-†Benjamin Soper (Marshall), b. Feb. 21, 1754; m. Anna Baker Oakes.

 Mary Soper (Marshall), b. Aug. 9, 1756; m. Thomas Giles, June 22, 1780. For an account of them and their family, see p. 48-55 of this volume.

Ferrers Shirley had, by wife Elizabeth (Soper) Marshall, one child-

 Ferrers (Shirley), b. in Boston, 1765; married previous to 1794; the name of his wife being unknown. He was living, a farmer, in Londonderry, N. H., in 1808; since which time nothing has been heard of him.

There were no children by the third and fourth marriages.

FIFTH GENERATION.

BENJAMIN SOPER MARSHALL,⁵ (Zerubbabel,⁴ Mary,³ John,² John,1) only son of Zerubbabel and Elizabeth (Soper) Marshall; b. in Boston, Feb. 21, 1754; m. 1774, ANNA BAKER OAKES, daughter of Thomas and Margaret (Grover) Oakes, of Sandy Bay, now Rockport. She d. about 1830, a. 76.*

* Margaret (Grover) Oakes was the daughter of Nehemiah and Abigail Grover of Sandy Bay, now Rockport. Nehemiah was son of Edmund and Mary Grover. Edmund Grover was a ruling elder in the Church in Sandy Bay. He was born in Beverly, and removed, in 1721, with five children, to Sandy Bay, where he had a Beverly, and removed, in 1721, when the childran to childran of court, in the childran of 400 acres. He was a son of Nehemiah and Ruth Grover of Beverly, who were married Dec. 2, 1674. Ruth, wife of Nehemiah Grover of Beverly, was born daughter of WILLIAM HASKELL,¹ the first of the name in Gloucester, who was born in the Isle of Man, 1617, and came with his brothers Roger and Mark to Salem about 1635. [MS. notes of Ebenezer Pool of Rockport, 1860.

He was a carpenter ; resided in Sandy Bay, now Rockport, and was a member of the First Congregational Church in that place. When a Congregational Church was formed in Lanesville, a village two or three miles distant, in 1830, he and his wife's cousin, Matthew S. Giles [GILES 310] were designated to join the infant church, in order to strengthen it; and they were its first deacons.

in Ipswich. Josiah Choate⁵ was son of Thomas,⁴ who was son of Thomas,³ who was son of John Choate,² b. in England, 1632, who came from England when a child, in 1635, with his father, whose name we know not. The CHOATE family, as tradition reports, came to Newbury in 1635. [MS. of Ebenezer Pool of Rockport. There was in Essex County a John Choate, a. about 40, in 1664; his wife was Anne.

Thomas Rowe, father of Anna (Rowe) Marshall in the text, was a son of Thomas and Rebecca (Tarr) Rowe, and a descendant from JOHN ROWE,1 who ame from England to Gloncester about 1641. Reheece Tarr, just none, was a daughter of Benjamin and Rebecca Tarr, and Benjamin was a son of Richard and Elizabeth Tarr, who were the first family that settled in what is now Rockport, as early as 1690. Her mother was a Collins, a descendant of John Collins, who settled in Gloucester, about 1644. See p. 8, note, of this volume.

Mr. Marshall kept a store in his younger days. His residence in Rockport, 1860, though not equal to some others in the extent of its grounds, or the expense laid out upon it, is yet a perfect gem of neatness and good taste. It would be difficult to find, on so small an area, so many thriving fruit trees, and such convenience of arrangement.

Mrs. Marshall is a worthy member of the First Congregational Church in Rockport. She has suffered much from pulmonary disease, during the last twenty years.

FAMILY OF REV. JOHN ROBINSON OF LEYDEN.

THE name ROBINSON was of frequent occurrence in the first generation of New England people, and has been so ever since.

Persons bearing the name of Robinson in New England, in later times, have not unfrequently supposed themselves to be descended from the Leyden divine. But in many cases their pretensions have not been such as would bear the test of a thorough examination.

The Memoir now presented does not claim to be complete. It has been prepared in great part from materials furnished by Alfred A. Robinson, Esq., of Scotland, Ct., a descendant of the Leyden pastor.*

The compiler has borrowed from an article by Mr. Amos Otis, in the Geneal. Reg., XIV., 17–21, and from other sources.

FIRST GENERATION.

Rev. JOHN ROBINSON,¹ was born in one of the midland counties of England—probably Lincolnshire—in the year 1575. He entered Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, 1592; and received a fellowship there, 1598, which he resigned in 1604. While a member of college, he was bronght to the saving knowledge of God and of his Son Jesus Christ, under the faithful ministrations of the Reverend William Perkins, a learned and famous preacher in the University, and a strict Calvinist, who died in the year 1602. He embraced at the outset of his religious life, the principles of Puritanism. He began his ministerial labors in and near Norwich, in Norfolk; and while there, he is described by Ainsworth, as "a man worthily reverenced of all the city for the grace of God, which was in him." In the year 1606, the church at Scrooby, in Nottinghamshire, on the borders of Yorkshire

^{*} In one or two branches of the Robinson family in Scotland, Ct., there was a dim and uncertain tradition that they were descended from the great Leyden divine. Nobody, however, had any documents or facts to prove it. A careful, prolonged, and thorough examination of Town, Church, and Probate Records, and also records obtained from a distance, made by William L. Weaver, Esq., of Willimantic, Ct., editor of the Williamatic Journal, and compiler of a History (not yet published) of Old Windham, set the matter in a clear light, and proved beyond all question that Peter Robinson³ who settled in Scotland, in 1723, was a son of Isaac,² and grandson of Rev. JONN ROBINSON,³ of Leyden. He also ascertained the names and number of Peter Robinson's children. To him, therefore, the chief credit of this Genealogical Memoir instity belongs.

and Lincolnshire, was formed by the joining together in fellowship of "divers godly christians, who," as Secretary Morton says, "entered into covenant to walk with God, and one with another, in the enjoyment of the ordinances of God, according to the primitive pattern in the word of God."* Of this church, made up for the most part of honest farmers and ditchers, but men of sound, thoughtful, upright minds, John Robinson became the teacher; with Richard Clifton, a somewhat older man, who had been rector of Babworth, as pastor.

Harassed by persecution, "when they had continued together about a year,"—these are Bradford's words—" they resolved to get over into Holland as they could, which was in the year 1607–8." They went first to Amsterdam; but removed in 1609, to Leyden. It does not appear that Mr. Clifton, their pastor, accompanied them. But Mr. Robinson went with them; and his house, which he purchased in 1611, was their place of worship, during their continuance in that eity.

It appears that the condition of these exiles was one of poverty and suffering; of "great labor, and hard fare, and much inconvenience," as Bradford further says; the Dutch being restrained from showing them favor by the fear of giving offence to the English government. They had been brought up as cultivators of the soil, but having now no opportunity for this employment, were obliged to learn new trades. They were not at home in Holland, and could not bear to think of leaving their children in a land where they would soon cease to be English. They saw no prospect of living in England, save on the condition of abandoning what they profoundly felt to be their duty to God and their hope for eternity; and therefore, about 1617, they resolved to emigrate to the New World. After many disappointments, the plan was carried into excention, in part, in 1620.

It was intended that Mr. Robinson, with the remainder of the Leyden Church, should follow, at no great length of interval, the passengers in the Mayflower. Mr. Robinson, however, died at Leyden, during the prevalence of the plagne in that town, on the 19th of February, 1625, O. S., or March 1, 1625, N. S., aged 50 years.

More than any other man of modern times, he is regarded as the FATHER OF CONGREGATIONALISM. He was distinguished for learning and abilities; a sound classical scholar, and able theologian: foiling in debate Episcopius, the professor in the Leyden University, the successor of Arminius; yet a man most devout, hnmble, gentle and lovely in spirit.

His wife was BRIDGET WHITE. Their children were-

* Morton places this event in 1602, but Rev. Henry M. Dexter, in a highly valuable article in the Congregational Quarterly, for Jan. 1862, shows from Bradford's long-lost History, that it must have been in 1866.

ford's long-lost History, that it must have been in 1606. † Hon. Henry C. Murphy, in the Hist. Mag., New York, Vol. III., p. 331, says the name was James. Mr. George Summer, in Geneal. Reg., Boston, Vol. XIII., p. 342, says it was John.

These names appear in a tax-list, or census-registry of Levden, taken Oct. 15, 1622. There is no evidence that Mr. Robinson had any other children than these. Nor is it known what became of the widow and these six children, with the single exception of Isaac [4]. Mrs. Robinson was a witness-so it is recorded in Leyden-at her daughter Bridget's wedding in May, 1629; but there is no known record of her, after that time.

SECOND GENERATION.

ISAAC ROBINSON,² son of Rev. John Robinson of Leyden, came to New England in 1631. This is proved by a statement in the journal of Judge Sewall, during his judicial circuit in the Old Colony, in 1702. He savs:

He was born in Leyden about 1610; came to New England in 1631, and settled in Plymouth. He was freeman of the Colony, 1633. In 1636, he went to Scituate, and removed, with the Church in that place, and Rev. John Lothrop their pastor, to Barnstable in the autumn of 1639. About 1663, he removed to Falmouth, then a new settlement. In 1673, he was at Tisbury, on Martha's Vineyard, where he resided till Nov. 1701. He returned to Barnstable, and resided with his dau. Fear, who married Samuel Baker. During all these removals and changes he was a member of the Barnstable Church, a period of almost seventy years. He died probably in 1704, at the age of 94 years.

We find no Israel Robinson after 1668. But we find his father in two instances, Aug. 30, 1700, and Nov. 1, 1701, conveying land in Tisbury, "to my son Isaac Robinson." This Isaac had a wife Ann; but his will, proved Oct. 1, 1728, shows that he left no descendants. Ann, the widow, d. in 1737, "advanced in years,"

Lieut. PETER ROBINSON,3 (Isaac,2 John,1) son of Isaac2 and Mary Robinson; b. in Barnstable or Falmouth, between 1653 and 1666; m. EXPERIENCE MANTON, dau. of John Manton of Tisbury, on Martha's Vinevard.

He was of Tisbury, aforesaid, till about 1706, when he is called of Chilmark. In 1710, he resided in Norwich; afterwards at Preston, Ct. He is said to be of Preston, March 13, 1722-3, at which date he buys land in Scotland, then a Society or Parish in the east part of Windham, Ct.; but incorporated as a town in 1857. He made a further purchase of land in Scotland, May 30, 1723; when he is called "Yeoman, of Preston." Soon afterwards, he removed to Scotland, where he passed the remainder of his life.

There is no record of his death, nor any stone to mark the place of his sepulture. There is no reason, however, to doubt that he was buried in Scotland by the side of his wife, whose grave-stone is still standing there. Experience, his wife, d. April 30, 1727, a. 55. He must have died between Feb. 6, 1739-40, the date of his will, and April 15, 1740, the date of the Inventory of his estate. In his will, he names fifteen children. We give them below in the order in which he mentions them; presuming that they are named in the order of their birth. The exact date of the birth of only two of them has been found, and the baptism of only three others. The age of some others is ascertained from their grave-stones, or other records of their death.

April 21, 1834. 2, Jan. 6, 1835, Semantha Washburn, dau. of Col. Asahel Washburn of Montpelier, Vt. At the age of 31, after being several years settled in life, he became a subject of renewing grace, and commenced a preparation for the ministry. He studied about two years with several ministers of the Rutland Association, and was licensed to preach, Sept. 29, 1823. He was ordained pastor at Underhill, Vt., March 3, 1824. An interesting revival of religion ensued, in which the church was nearly doubled in numbers. He was dismissed, Oct. 31, 1826; and installed pastor in Fairfax, Vt., Feb. 21, 1827. He preached half the time in Fairfax, and half the time in Fletcher and Waterville; the churches in each of these towns being feeble. The labors of so extensive a field proving too severe, he requested a dismission after two years; and was acting pastor in Milton, a neighboring town, from Feb. 1, 1829, to Jan. 31, 1835. Two revivals in Milton under his ministry, added nearly eighty souls to the Church. The remaining twenty-five years of his life he spent as pastor of the Congregational Church in Morristown, Vt. where he labored also with good acceptance and success; about one hundred souls being gathered into that church during that period. THE SAMPSON FAMILY.

MOST of the Sampsons in America, it is presumed, are descendants of HENRY¹ and ABRAHAM¹ SAMPSON of Duxbury.^{*} Whether these two original emigrants were brothers, is not known. We suppose that they were. While there is no known fact, which militates against the supposition; the fact that two men of the same name, of not dissimilar age and condition, are found living side by side in the same town, a town containing then but a small population, so early in the history of New England, and when there was so little to attract emigrants to that portion at least of our coast, this fact of itself goes far towards strengthening the presumption—the belief, even—that these two men were brothers.

The destruction of the early records of Duxbury (prior to 1666) by fire, and the unsatisfactory manner in which, for the most part, they have since been kept, renders the task of him who would construct a full and clear Genealogy of any ancient family of that most respectable town, exceedingly ardnous. The compiler of this volume has never found himself beset with more serious difficulties in any undertaking of this nature. Some questions of descent he has been compelled to give up in despair. The reader will find them as he proceeds.

The ensuing Memoir is derived from the following sources: Personal researches in the Old Colony Records and the Probate Office at Plymouth; Winsor's History of Duxbury; a Genealogical Memoir in MS. of the Sampson Family in Plympton, compiled in 1832, by Deacon Lewis Bradford, town clerk of Plympton, with additions by another hand; researches in the records of Duxbury, Plymouth, Pembroke, Middleborough, Boston, Beverly, and other towns, made by the compiler, or by others at his request; a MS. of Mr. Thomas Bradford Drew of Plymouth; communications made to the compiler by Mr. Joseph Allen Sampson of Duxbury, Mr. Alfred Wood of Middleborough, Miss Marcia A. Thomas of Marshfeld, and many others. The Mass. Archives have also been thoroughly examined by the compiler.

The name is SAMSON in rearly all the records, down to a late period; which is no doubt the true orthography, derived from the sacred volume. But as the name now almost universally appears with a p, the modern usage is here followed throughout, or nearly so.

The Sampson Family has become quite numerous. The Boston Directory, for example, exhibits more than fifty of the name, while the New York and Brooklyn Directories have nearly an equal number.

^{*} Richard Sampson, a tailor, aged 28, embarked at London, in the Elizabeth and Ann, for New England, May 14, 1635. [Geneal. Reg., XIV., 314.

FIRST GENERATION.

HENRY SAMPSON¹ was one of the company of Pilgrims who came in the world-renowned MAYFLOWER to Plymouth in 1620. He was a member of the family of his uncle, Edward Tilley,* and was too young to sign the immortal compact of November 11, in the cabin of that vessel, while at anchor in the harbor of Provincetown. He was, however, enumerated in the assignment of land, 1623, and in the division of cattle, 1627, and was admitted a freeman of Plymouth Colony in 1637.

He early removed to Duxbury—probably with the first settlers of that town; and married ANN PLUMMER, Feb. 6, 1635-6.‡ He was one of the original grantees of Bridgewater, 1645, but did not remove thither. He was constable of Duxbury, 1661. "This," says Winsor, "was an office of high trust and responsibility, and none were elected to it but men of good standing."

He died Dec. 24, 1684. In his will, bearing date the same day, he mentions no wife, but to his sons Stephen, John, and James, gives a tract of land he had purchased in Dartmouth; to each of them a third part. To his son Caleb he gives one shilling. He also gives one shilling each to dau. Elizabeth, wife of Robert Sproat; to dau. Hannah, wife of Josiah Holmes; to his dau. — [name not given] "now wife of John Hammond;" to dau. Mary, wife of John Summers; to dau. Doreas, wife of Thomas Boney. Mr. Wiswall [Rev. Ichabod Wiswall, pastor of Duxbury from 1676 to 1700] was to be overseer of the will. Thomas Delano and Joseph Chandler were witnesses. The will was exhibited before the [General] Court of Plymouth, March 5, 1684-5; and may be found in the Old Colony Records, Wills, Vol. 4, p. 94.

The will thus indicates that the property of the testator, all but the Dartmouth purchase, had already been distributed among the heirs.

Guided by the will, we make out the children of Henry Sampson, at the time of his death, to have been as follows:

- Elizabeth,² m. Robert Sproat, who was of Scituate, 1660, and died at Middleborough, in 1712.
- 3. Hannah,² m. Josiah Holmes² of Duxbury, March 20, 1665-6. For an account of her descendants, see p. 185, and sequel, of this volume.
- 4. A daughter, whose name is not given ; m. John Hammond.§ See above.

* We learn this fact from Governor Bradford's List of passengers in the Mayflower, at the end of his long-lost and lately-recovered History, published by the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1856.

Bradford, in 1650, says—"the youth Henery Samson is still liveing, and is maried, and hath 7. children." From this we infer that all the children of Henry Samson in the above list were born before 1650, except Stephen and Caleb, who must have been horn after that date.

[‡] The will of John Barnes of Plymonth, dated March 6, 1667-8, names his "consen" the wife of Henry Sampson.

§ The only John Hammond known to me, who could be the husband of this daughter of Henry Sampson, was born in England, 1627, son of William and Elizabeth Hammond, who settled in Watertown as early as 1642. Assuming this to be a son-in-law of Henry Sampson, the name of the daughter was Sarah, b. 1643, d. Jan. 14, 1688, a. 45. See Bond's Watertown, p. 270.

- 5. †John,² b. about 1645; m. Mary Pease.
- Mary,2 m. John Summers.* 6.
- 7. Dorcas,² m. Thomas Bonney of Duxbury. In the will, and in the early records, the name is Boney. Thomas Boney was a shoemaker; had land in Duxbury, 1640; constable, 1643-4; d. about 1693. The husband of Doreas was probably his son.

- 9. †Stephen,2 m. Elizabeth -
- 10. †Caleb,2 m. Merey Standish.

ABRAHAM SAMPSON,' supposed to have been a brother of the preceding; came from England some time after Henry, it is not known in what year, but probably in 1629 or 1630; and settled at Duxbury. He was on the list of persons in Duxbury "able to bear arms," in 1643. That list included all able-bodied males between the ages of sixteen and sixty. He was one of the fifty-four original gran-tees of Bridgewater, 1645, all of whom then resided in Duxbury.‡ Most of the grantees, including Abraham Sampson, did not remove. He was surveyor of highways, 1648; constable, 1653; and was admitted freeman of Plymouth Colony in 1654. He was living in 1686; after which there is no record of him.

His wife, whose baptismal name does not appear, was a daughter of Samuel Nash, the Lieutenant of the Duxbury company. Lieut. Nash was frequently engaged in the military expeditions of the colony, and was an officer in nearly all of them. He was respected by the people; was frequently honored with eivil trusts: and was sheriff or chief marshal of the colony, from 1652, through a period of more than twenty years.

Winsor says that Abraham Sampson had a second wife, but does not give her name.

There is no will of Abraham Sampson, or settlement of his estate, on record. As the records of Duxbury, prior to 1666, were destroyed by fire, we are unable to make out a full list of his children.§ We are able, however, to give the names of four sons, who came to maturity, and had families. If there were daughters, and if there were other sons, their memory has perished. The four sons are the following:

- 12. †Samuel,2 b. about 1646 ; m. Esther ----.

 - †George,² b. 1655; m. Elizabeth —.
 †Abraham,² b. abt. 1658; m. Sarah Standish.
 - 15. †Isaac,3 b. 1660; m. Lydia Standish, her sister.

* The will of John Parker of Taunton, dated Nov. 6, 1665, calls Mr. John Summers, minister, his brother. [Geneal. Reg., VII., 177. ‡ Bridgewater was a part of Duxbury till 1656.

§ Richard Sampson was made freeman of Massachusetts, May 27, 1674. He was y rivindu canof Richard, who eame over in 1635. Hugh Sampson was of Bos-ton, and had by wife Mary, Jeremiah, b. June 4, 1688; and Hugh, b. Sept. 13, 1690; d. Jan. 11, 1730, a. 40. Edward Samson of Boston had by wife Lettice, Edward, b. Nov. 22, 1715. Alexander Samson of Boston had by wife Recea, Elizabeth, b. April 29, 1728; Alexander, b. Feb. 19, 1729-30; John, b. Feb. 28, 1731. Whether complete correct of the second seco any of these were of the Sampson family of Duxbury, we cannot tell. Alexander was probably a son of Caleb² of Duxbury. But see the end of this Memoir.

SECOND GENERATION.

JOHN SAMPSON,2 son of Henry Samp-on1; born in Duxbury, about 1645; m. MARY PEASE, Oct. 22, 1667.

He resided in Beverly, from about the time of his marriage till about 1680. He was chosen there, March 4, 1672, also in 1673-6-7, "to execute the order about swyne." In 1673, the town voted "that John Sampson shall have that par-ell of swamp lying by the place called the Outlett." This place is on Essex street, about 3 mile from the First Church, on the road to Essex. In 1675, John Sampson "doth give and quit unto the town four acres of land for a school-house." A portion of this land is now included in Beverly Common. In exchange for this, the town voted, "that John Sampson, living in Beverly, shall have twelve acres of land, which is now in common." John Sampson was chosen constable in 1676, 1678, 1679, 1680. March 14, 1682, it was voted, "to sell the town's swamp at the Outlett, that was formerly John Sampson's." The Records, under date of May 26, 1683, mention land that was formerly John Sampson's; after which time his name disappears from Beverly.

The children of John and Mary (Pease) Sampson, born in Beverly, were-

STEPHEN SAMPSON,² son of Henry Sampsou¹; born in Duxbury, 165-; married ELIZABETH ----

He lived in Duxbury; was constable, 1690; and died, probably, in the winter of 1714-15.

* Knowing that James Sampson settled in the old town of Dartmouth, in Bristol County, which originally included all the territory now belonging to the present city of New Bedford, and the towns of Dartmonth, Westport, Fairhaven, and Acnshnet-(he settled in that portion which was afterwards incorporated as Fairhaven)knowing this, and that his family dwelt there during several generations, I applied to the town clerk of Dartmouth for such extracts from the records of that town as would illustrate the genealogy of the Sampson Family. In reply, I was informed that the records of Dartmouth were in such a state of confusion, various matters being entered there without regularity or care, and having no index, that a compli-ance with my request was impossible. I was informed, moreover, that the Sampson Family have disappeared from all the five towns above named.

I am happy to be permitted to say, however, that the town of Dartmonth and the city of New Bedford have placed this chaos of records in the hands of a gentleman of that city to be reduced to order, copied, and made available to future inquirers.

Jan. 31, 1714-15, Stephen Samson of Duxbury having deceased, intestate, his widow Elizabeth is appointed administratrix. Inventory dated Feb. 8, 1714-15; amount £83.16.10. [Plym. Prob., 3: 342.

June 20, 1716. The estate of Stephen Samson, late of Duxbury, is divided. His two eldest sons, Benjamin and John, had by deed from their father, in his life-time, one half of his lands in Dartmouth. They are to have his home-tead in Duxbury, after their mother's decease. Six other children, Cornelius, Hannah, Mary, Elizabeth, Dorcas, and Abigail, share among them the other half of his lands in Dartmouth; and some lands in Duxbury. [Ibid, 3: 421.

MERCY STANDISH,³ day, of Alexander Standish,² eldest son of the renowned Captain MYLES STANDISH.1* The mother of Mercy Standish was Sarah Alden,² dau. of the no less renowned JOHN ALDEN,' all of Duxbury.

He was of Duxbury, 1710. We are left greatly in the dark concerning him and his family. There is no will of his, or settlement of his estate, on record. Nor have I found a record of the birth of any of his children. Winsor gives him only two children, Rachel, and Lora. Yet he doubtless had others; and I venture to place several names, on probable evidence, as his children-

SAMUEL SAMPSON,² eldest son of Abraham Sampson¹; b. in Duxbury, about 1646; m. ESTHER -----.

We infer that he was the eldest son, and born about 1646, from the age of his son Samuel.³ He resided in Duxbury, and was killed in "Philip's War." His Inventory was taken June 28, 1678, and exhibited at a Court held at Plymouth, July 1, 1678, on the oath of Esther-Sampson, "widdow;" amount, £27.15.6. The Court gave order, July 3, 1678, concerning his estate. They say—"The children are but small, and the estate but little." The Court assign the whole to the widow, except one acre of meadow, "which is all the land the said Samuel Sampson died possessed of: which acre of meadow is to be reserved for the sons of the said Samuel. Easter Sampson, relict of the said Sampson, is towards marriage with John Soule, and the said Soule and the now widdow are willing that the estate be reserved for the future good of the children." [Old Colony Records, Wills, 3: 108, 120.

In 1678, the widow Esther married John Soule² of Duxbury, born 1632, son of GEORGE SOULE,' one of the Pilgrims of the Mayflower, 1620, and the ancestor of the Soule Family in America. She died Sept. 12, 1733, a. 95.

The children of Samuel² and Esther Sampson were-53. Ichabod,3 b. ----. He was in Duxbury, 1710. We have no further knowledge of him.

GEORGE SAMPSON,² brother of the preceding; b. in Duxbury, 1655; m. about 1678, ELIZABETH ------.

He was one of the first settlers of Plympton; which was originally a part of Plymouth, was formed into a Society, 1695, and incorporated as a town, 1707. He lived in a house which stood on the site of the house afterwards owned and occupied by his great-grandson, George Sampson^{} [397]; and also by Joseph Sampson,^{} son of the latter. It was the first dwelling-house north from the Plympton Woolen Factory, on the west side of the road. The Plympton Woolen Factory was situated on the lowermost mill-dam on the Winnetuxet River, in Plympton.

His wife Elizabeth was one of the original members of the Church in Plympton; formed, 1698. She d. May 27, 1727, æ. 71. George Sampson d. July 26, 1739, æ. 85. He and his wife were buried in the Old Cemetery in Plympton, near its northerly side. Their grave-stones are still standing.

Samuel,2 first minister of Middleborough, who was son of the excellent Dr. SAMUEL FULLER,1 who came in the Mayflower, 1620, was deacon of the Church in Plymouth, and was the first physician and surgeon in New England. He lived in that part of Old Dartmouth, which was afterwards incerporated as Fairbayen.

All that I know of his family is derived from the manuscripts of Hon. Abruham Holmes [HOLMES 177] of Rochester, his great-grandson. From this source I learn that the children of Joseph Sampson³ were—

BENJAMIN SAMPSON.³ (Stephen,² Henry,¹) eldest son of Stephen Sampson² of Duxbury; b. there, 1686; m. March 19, 1716, REBECCA COOK,⁴ b. Nov. 19, 1688, dan. of Jacob³ and Lydia Cook of Kingston. Jacob Cook,³ b. March 26, 1653, was son of Jacob,² and grand on of FRANCIS COOK,⁴ who came to Plymouth in the Mayflower, 1620.

He was of Duxbury, 1710. Not long after, he settled in Kingston. He is the common ancestor of the Sampsons of that town. In his will, he ealls himself "merchant," and is elsewhere styled "gentleman." He appears to have been a man of property and standing.

His will, dated Feb. 20, 1750–1; proved May 1, 1758; recorded, Plym. Prob., 14:523, provides for wife Rebecca; grandson Micah Samson, a minor; elder son Cornelius, "merchant," and younger son Benjamin; and dan. Deborah Venzie, wife of Rev. Mr. Samuel Venzie.

Ho appears to have been a zealous, though imprudent minister; and a bitter controversy, growing out of his conduct, was waged in Duxbury during seven years. DAVID SAMPSON,³ (Caleb,² Henry,¹) presumed to be a son of Caleb2 and Mercy3 (Standish) Sampson of Duxbury; b. there, 1685; m. in Marshfield, June 5, 1712, MARY CHAFFIN of that town.

It is nowhere recorded that David³ was the son of Caleb Sampson.² Yet the evidence is such as seems to place the matter beyond rea-onable doubt. There is no record of any of Caleb Sampson's children, save two; though it is very probable that he had others. David could not be the son of Stephen,2 for Stephen's sons' names appear in the division of his estate; nor of John² or James,² for they had removed away; nor of Samuel,² for he had only Samuel³ and Ichabod³; nor of George,² for we have a full record of his family in Plympton; nor of Abraham,² for his will mentions him not; nor of I-aac,2 for the births of all of I-aac's children were carefully copied from the Plymouth Records into those of Plympton, after the incorporation of the town last named, and David is not among them; nor did David join in releasing a claim on the estate of Josiah Samp-on, as Josiah's other brothers did, in favor of their brother Ephram.

On the other hand, a number of circumstances very decidedly point to Caleb Sampson² as the father of David. Caleb Sampson, so far as we know, did not remove from Duxbury, the town in which David passed his life. David seems to have received his own name from the affection entertained by his mother for her brother, David Standish. He had a daughter Mercy, doubtless named for his mother Mercy Standish. He called his eldest daughter Lydia, for the regard he had for his aunt Lydia Standish. He called his eldest son Charles, from a kind remembrance of his uncle Charles Standish. Here are four Standish names in David Sampson's family; and it could not have been through mere accident, as some of those names were not then in common use. At the same time, there is nothing adverse to the supposition here made.

David Samson, and his sons Charles and Chaffin (otherwise Chapin) resided just within the bounds of Duxbury, adjacent to Marshfield. Their families always worshipped with the First Church in Marshfield, and the children were baptized there. Their dwelling-houses are still standing, 1862, in good repair; though long since passed into the possession of other families.

His will is dated March 26, 1767; proved June 17, 1772; recorded Plym. Prob. 21: 164. He calls himself David Samson of Duxborough, yeoman; and mentions wife Mary, eldest son Charles, sons Ebenezer, Jonathan, Chaphen (who is appointed executor) and David; also, my five daughters, Lydia Bosworth, wife of Nathaniel Bosworth; Mary Little, wife to John Little; Mercy Hutchinson, wife to Timothy Hutchinson; Elizabeth Pineo, wife to Peter Pineo; Eleanor Farnum, wife to Joseph Farnum.

Inventory, March 19, 1774; amount of Real Estate, £304; Personal Estate, £25.11.9.

JOSHUA SAMPSON,³ (Caleb,²(?) Henry,¹) presumed to be a son of Caleb² and Mercy (Standish) Sampson of Duxbury.

Where records are wholly wanting, as in the case of the parentage of Joshua Sampson,³ it is not easy to reach a satisfactory conclusion. Yet after prolonged and laborious investigation, I think I incur little risk in assuming Caleb² and Mercy Sampson as the parents of this, our The grounds of this assumption are: that Caleb² was of Dux-Joshua. bury, where Joshua also dwelt; that he was of suitable age to be his father; that we have no list of Caleb's children, except two, from any source, while the full and complete lists which we seem to have of the children of Caleb's brother Stephen,² also of the children of Samuel,² George,² Abraham,² and Isaac,² sons of Abraham Sampson,¹ seem to exclude Joshua from their families; and finally that I have repeatedly met with a tradition among the descendants of Joshua, that they are descendants of Henry Sampson,1 who came in the Mayflower.

It is possible, but wholly improbable, that Joshua³ was a son of John² of Beverly, or James² of Dartmouth. John² of Beverly wholly disappears after 1680; and it is likely that he died not far from that time. The list of early proprietors of Dartmouth, in Ricketson's History of New Bedford, leads to the belief that James² of Dartmouth had but two sons, James³ and Joseph,³ who came to mature years.

He resided in Plympton, in a house which stood two or three rods north from the Lower Mill-Pond on the Winnetuxet river, on the easterly side of the road. It was two stories high in front, and one story in the rear, or north side. It had a stone chimney, and the fire-place in the front room was capacious enough to contain the whole family, sitting on each side of the fire. Capt. Richard Cooper, the husband of his grand-dau. Hannah Sampson, [401] removed the old house, and built a new one on the same spot. This house was consumed by fire, originating in the Woolen Factory, July 22, 1845.

George Sampson and Hannah his wife were members of the Church in Plympton. They were admitted during the pastorate of the Rev. Isaac Cushman, the first minister of the gospel in Plympton. PELEG SAMPSON,² (Isaac,² Abraham,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Plympton, Nov. 12, 1700; m. MARY RING.

It appears from the Pembroke Records that he was of Pembroke in 1724 and 1726, and that his children Mary and Peleg were born there. From the Probate Records we learn that in 1734, he was of Plympton, a "nailer;" at which date he and his brothers and sisters released to their brother Ephraim certain lands in Plympton. [Plym. Prob., 7. 67, 68.] In 1736, he must have been of Kingston, because his son, the renowned Capt. Simeon Samson, was born there. He owned Iron-Works in Middleborough, which were suppressed by the royal Government; and as his daughter Priscilla was baptized in the First Church in that town in 1738-9, he doubtless lived there at that time. He was a private in a company commanded by Captain (afterwards General) John Winslow, in the Expedition against the Spanish West Indies under Admiral Vernon, which cost the lives of so many New England men; and fell a victim to disease, April 27, 1741.

His children, so far as can be collected, were-

- Mary,⁴ b. in Pembroke, Jan. 6, 1724.
 Peleg,⁴ b. in Pembroke, Nov. 19, 1726.
 Merey,⁴ b. perhaps in Plympton, 1731.
- 222. †Simeon,4 b. in Kingston, Aug. 1736; m. Deborah Cushing.
- 223. Priscilla,4 bap. in First Church in Middleborough, March 19, 1738-9.

Perhaps there were others. I venture to add two more:

221. †Jonathan,4 b. Oct. 25, 1733; m 1, Mary Oakes. 2, Sarah Osborne.

224. Ephraim,4 b. ____. I find his name in the Mass. Archives, as of Middleborough, in 1776, when he was a soldier in the months of June, July, and November, in Col. Thomas Marshall's Regiment. Ephraim Samson of Halifax, who was probably the same man, was a private in the Ninth (Col. Wesson's) Massachusetts Regiment of Continental troops, and served from Sept. 11, 1777, to Sept. 11, 1780, three years.

He was a "cordwainer," of Plympton, in 1734; and a "ycoman," of Middleborough at the time of his death in 1750. His will, dated May 4, 1749; proved Nov. 6, 1750; recorded Plym. Prob., 12: 130; speaks of wife Experience, son Barnabas, and "other children," not individually named.

His children, known to us, were-

225. †Barnabas,4 b. Feb. 26, 1730-1; m. Merey Clark.

226. Experience, 4 b. Jan. 1, 1732-3; m. Andrew Cobb, Jan. 10, 1760.

Capt. CHAPIN SAMPSON.⁴ (David,³ Caleb,² Henry,¹) brother of the preceding; bap. in Marshfield, Sept. 21, 1735; m. ELIZABETH CLIFT of Marshfield.

His name appears on the Duxbury records as I have now given it; yet his baptism is recorded in Marshfield as that of Chaffia Samson. His mother's family name, which he bore as a christian name, was Chaffin. In his father's will, of which he was executor, he is called Chaphen. The Duxbury records call his wife Betty.

He resided just within the bounds of Duxbury, adjoining Marshfield, in a tenement near that of his father; both of which are said to be now, 1862, in a state of good preservation.

He was a ship-master; and died in the West Indies, Sept. 1, 1773, w. 38.

His children were-

PAUL SAMPSON.⁴ (Caleb,⁵ Caleb,² Henry,¹) presumed to be the son of Caleb Sampson³ of Duxbury; b. about 1731; m. ESTHER CHANDLER, dau. of Philip Chandler of Duxbury.

I presume that he was the son of Caleb Sampson,³ because the similarity of names in their families, and the whole circle of circumstances, leave no doubt of the fact.

He resided in Duxbury till after 1760, and then removed to Marshfield, where he passed the remainder of his life. In 1759 he served in a company of foot from Duxbury, under the command of Capt. John Wadsworth, against the French in Canada.

His will is dated Feb. 25, 1806; proved June 3, 1811; recorded Plym. Prob., 43: 463. He speaks of his wife as living, but does not give her name. Mentions, also, my six sons, Luther, Caleb, Chandler, Calvin, Proctor, and Martin Sampson; and my four daughters, Silvia Turner, Olive Ford, Martha Bourne, and Esther Magoon.

He died therefore in 1811, a. about 80. His children were-

JONATHAN SAMPSON,⁴ (Jonathan,⁵ Isaac,² Abraham,¹) son of Jonathan³ and Joanna (Lucas) Sampson of Plympton; b. there, April 3, 1729; m. DEBORAH BRADFORD, tb. Nov. 18, 1732, dau. of Elisha Bradford³ of Plymouth. Her mother was Bathsheba Le Broche, an elegant French lady, whose father was a native of Paris. Elisha Bradford³ was m. to this lady, Sept. 7, 1717; she was his second wife. They had thirteen children, of whom Deborah was the seventh. Elisha³ was son of Joseph,² b. 1630, who was a son of Governor WILLIAM BRADFORD.¹ See Bradford Genealogy, in Genealogical Register, IV., 30, &c.

Elisha Bradford was a man of property: but being underwriter on a ship and valuable cargo belonging to Plymouth, the greater part of his fortune was ingulfed in the waves of ocean. He did not long survive the misfortune.

Jonathan Sampson was heir to a considerable estate, heing the only surviving son of his father, who died in 1758; but by the unfair management of a brother-in-law he was not suffered to come into possession of it. This disappointment unsettled his mind to that degree, that he forsook his former quiet employments, and sober habits, and betook himself to a seafaring life. He was still unsuccessful; went to Europe; was not heard from for years; and at length perished by shipwreck. These things occurred soon after his daughter Deborah's birth. His wife was obliged, when Deborah was five years old, to seatter her family.

Jonathan and Deborah Sampson had several children. There were sons, for Deborah, the daughter, [530] in a MS. in my hands, speaks of having brothers.

I have the names of only two children of this family-

529. Sylvia,⁵ b. — ; m. April 6, 1799, Jacob Cushman, b. Feb. 29, 1747-8, son of Benjamin Cushman of Plympton. See Cushman Genealogy.

JONATHAN SAMSON.⁴ I feel confident that he was a grandson of Isaac³ and Lydia (Standish) Samson, and great-grandson of Abraham,¹ but I am unable to determine with certainty who was his father. I think his father must have been either Ephraim³ or Peleg³; so I judge from the similarity of names. The names, Jonathan, Abraham, Lydia, Ephraim, in the family of Jonathan,⁴ clearly indicate a descendant of Isaac² and of Abraham.¹ I think it quite probable that he was son of Peleg Samson.³ If he were a son of Ephraim³ was living in 1733. We seem to have a full record of the children of Ephraim³; while we have not a full record of the children of Peleg.³ The list which I have given of Peleg's children is collected from three different sources, and still seems incomplete; therefore there can be little risk in adding to that list, as I have done, the name of Jonathan.⁴

Jonathan Samson⁴ was b. in Middleborough, Oct. 25, 1733. He m. 1, MARY OAKES, who was b. July 16, 1741. 2, SARAH OSBORNE, b. Nov. 10, 1735, a widow of Swanzey, N. H.

He resided in Middleborough, till the early part of 1776, and then removed to Ashburnham, in Worcester County. He was a soldier in the "Eight months' service," 1775; then residing in Middleborough. [Mass. Archives.

Jonathan Samson of Ashburnham was a private in Col. Dike's regiment, on Dorchester Heights, from Sept. 1, 1776, to March 1, 1777; marched 90 miles from home on the "Bennington Alarm," Aug. 22, 1777; was a soldier on duty "at and near Boston," probably in guarding Burgoyne's captive troops, from April 1 to July 2, 1778;* and finally was a corporal in Capt. Timothy Boutelle's company in Col. John Rand's Regiment, from July 10 to Oct. 10, 1780. [Mass. Archives.

Most of these services were doubtless performed by Jonathan Samson,5 the son, b. 1759; who, as we know, was a Revolutionary pensioner in 1840, then being of the age of 81. But the services in 1775 and 1776 may have been performed by the father.

Capt. SIMEON SAMSON,4 (Peleg, 3 Isaac, 2 Abraham,1) son of Pelegs and Mary (Ring) Samson; b. in Kingston, Aug. 1736; m. 1759, DEBORAH CUSHING, b. in Hingham, Aug. 31, 1740, dau. of Seth Cushing of that town.[‡]

In youth he betook himself to a sea-faring life, and performed many voyages in the employment of the merchants of Plymouth. In 1760, he was taken prisoner by the French, in a vessel belonging to Goodwin & Warren of that place. The French captain released the vessel upon the promise of a sum of money, and Mr. Samson was left in his hands as a hostage. He escaped in the dress of a female, and returned to his family in Plymouth.

On the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, a maritime force being deemed essential to the successful prosecution of the conflict, the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts appointed him their first naval captain.§ He immediately took command of the armed brigantine Independence, belonging to the Province, which had been built at Kings-

|| The name of this vessel, which was given to her, it would seem, some months before the Declaration of Independence, indicates that a separation from the mother country was already determined upon, as early as the Spring of 1776. The first t In his will, Capt. Samson writes his name as I have now written it. In the Massachusetts Archives, his name occurs several times, and always without the p. All of his descendants, to the present time, conform to the same orthography, which is unquestionably the true method of writing the name.

ston under his direction. In this vessel, he was eminently successful. He captured and sent in five prizes, one of which was the Roebuck, Capt. White, in the autumn of 1776. Shortly after this [probably early in 1777] he was himself captured by a British cruiser, commanded by Capt. Dawson, after a severe and bloody conflict. The intrepidity and skill exhibited by Capt. Samson were applauded even by the enemy; and had he been properly sustained by his crew, he would probably have been the victor. The papers of that day state that he was driven to the necessity of running through the body two or three of his men, who abandoned their guns at the most trying moment. One of these was his third lieutenant. Soon after his captivity-which was spent at Fort Cumberland, near Halifax*-he was appointed, Aug. 15, 1777, to the command of the armed brig Hazard, fitted out by the State of Massachusetts. In this vessel he took several prizes, among which was the ship Live Oak. In 1779, he was selected to command the ship Mercury, built at Plymouth for Congress by Mr. John Peck. She was employed to carry despatches to our ministers in France. In this ship he returned from Nantz, during the severe winter of 1780. He was promoted, May 11, 1780, to the command of the armed ship Mars, a larger vessel, belonging to the State.‡ In this vessel he was also employed in carrying despatches; and carried one of our ministers to Europe. These facts show the confidence that was reposed in him. While in the Mars he captured the British flag-ship Trial. He retired from command of the Mars, March 12, 1781, and, so far as we know, this was the close of his naval career.

Notwithstanding his important services to his country, he found himself in the possession of a very scanty estate, and with a numerous family dependent on him for support. In 1788, he disposed of his mansion-house on Middle Street, Plymouth, and purchased a farm in the neighboring town of Plympton. In that town, he died of apoplexy, June 22, 1789, a. 53. He was buried upon his own farm; but afterwards the remains were removed to the Burying-Hill in Plymouth, where an appropriate monument marks his last resting-place. Few naval commanders stood higher in the public esteem. Few citizens were more respected for the domestic virtues.§

His will, dated April 14, 1787; proved Aug. 3, 1789; recorded Plym. Prob., 31:26; gives wife Deborah the whole use and improvement of my whole estate, both Real and Personal, so long as she remains my widow. Mentions my dau. Lydia Cushing Goodwin; daus. Deborah, Mercy, and Maria, unmarried. I give to my son George Washington Samson, my wearing apparell, my sea-chest, all my warlike instruments, books, maps, and charts; also the remainder of my estate, &c.

* He was sent from Halifax to Boston to be exchanged, June 28, 1777.

[‡] The compiler's maternal grandfather, Thomas Giles, was sailmaker of the ship Mars, in this cruise, under Capt. Samson.

§ Most of this Sketch of Capt. Samson is derived from a MS. furnished by one of his grandsons.

Joshua Sampson removed, early in life, from Duxbury to Braintree, where he exercised the trade of a shipwright, in company with Lieut. Daniel Loring, who was also a native of Duxbury.* They built vessels at the Iron-Works Landing in East Braintree, at the head of tide-water on Monatiquot River, at the place where the South Shore Railroad now crosses that river. The compiler remembers him as living in that vicinity, more than fifty years ago.

He was a soldier in the army of the Revolution; one of the "Eight months' men," May, 1775. The Mass. Archives do not speak of him after that time. In his latter years, he received a pension. He died at the house of his son Isaac, in Weymouth.

His children were-by first wife, Rachel-

- 633. Rachel,⁶ b. Sept. 3, 1774; never married; died, Nov. 6, 1856, a. 82. She was a woman of strong native intellect, of excellent good sense, of great energy and decision of character. She had an uncommonly retentive memory, and possessed extensive information of persons, families, and facts. In genealogy, and dates, she was without a rival, at least in the old town of Braintree. Were she now living, and in full possession of her faculties, some points which the compiler has been obliged to leave in obscurity, would have been cleared up. She was a fluent talker, and was fond of society. A tailoress by trade, she was employed in that capacity by many of the first families of Braintree and Quincy. It was then the custom to have the family's clothing made up at the family residence. I often saw her under my father's roof at East Braintree; and she was always a welcome visitor. She was universally respected. She became a member of the First Church in Braintree, Rev. R. S. Storrs, Rev. EZRA SAMPSON,⁵ (Uriah,⁴ Isuac,³ Isaac,² Abraham,¹) eldest son of Uriah⁴ and Anna (White) Sampson of Middleborough; b. in that town, in the part which is now Lakeville, Feb. 12, 1749; m. in the Spring of 1776, MARY BOURNE of Falmouth.

He fitted for college under Rev. Solomon Reed of Titicut, which is the North Parish in Middleborough, and graduated at Yale College in 1773. Although his class was distinguished for the number of eminent men it produced, he was reckoned inferior to none in point of scholarship. He was ordained pastor of the church in Plympton, Feb. 15, In the summer of that year, he acted as chaplain to the regi-1775.ment of Col. Theophilus Cotton, in the camp at Roxbury; a regiment raised in Middleborough and the vicinity. He continued in the ministry at Plympton a little more than twenty-one years.

He resigned his pastoral charge, April 4, 1796. Dr. Sprague, in his "Annals," says, the cause of his resignation was an affection of the head, and a partial failure of the voice. But Rev. Thomas Noyes, in his Notices of Congregational Ministers in Plymouth County, says—" changing his views on Scripture doctrines, and consequently his former mode of preaching, he lost the confidence and affection of the people of his charge in some measure."*

^{*} Am. Quar. Reg., Vol. VIII., p. 157.

Shortly after his dismission, he removed to Hudson, N. Y., where he devoted himself chiefly to literary pursuits, preaching only occasionally. In 1801, in connection with Mr. (afterwards Rev. Dr.) Harry Croswell, he established the newspaper at Hudson, called "The Balance." Of this paper, he was a joint editor until 1804. In 1802, he published a compilation from the Scriptures, entitled "The Beauties of the Bible," designed especially for schools. In 1804, he was solicited to take the editorial charge of that highly respectable paper, "The Connecticut Courant." He went to Hartford for the purpose, without removing his family thither, remained about a year, and then returned to Hudson; but continued to write for the Courant during many years afterwards. A volume, entitled "The Brief Remarker," consisted of a series of admirable articles furnished by him for that paper; it passed through several editions. He also published a Thanksgiving Sermon in 1795; and "The Sham Patriot Unmasked," in 1803; first having appeared in a series of articles in "The Balance." In April, 1814, he was appointed by Governor Tompkins one of the Judges of the Court in Columbia County; but served in that capacity only a short time. During the last three years of his life, he resided with his son in the city of New York; and died there after a short illness, Dec. 12, 1823, æ. 75.

He was a man of superior intellectual powers, and high moral worth. Rev. Edward Robinson, D. D., Professor in the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, speaks of him in high terms, in a letter, which may be found in Sprague's Annals of the American Pulpit, Vol. II., from which work most of the foregoing sketch has been derived. Dr. Robinson calls "The Brief Remarker" "an admirable volume."

DEBORAH SAMPSON,⁵ (Jonathan,⁴ Jonathan,³ Isaac,² Abraham,¹) dau. of Jonathan⁴ and Deborah (Bradford) Sampson of Plympton; b. there, Dec. 17, 1760; m. 1784, BENJAMIN GANNETT of Sharon.

Her story is one of the most remarkable on record.* At the age of five years, she was, by the pressure of want upon the family, separated from her mother-her father being absent at sea, or having perished by shipwreck. After spending a few years with a maiden lady of the name of Fuller, and also with a Mrs. Thacher, she was placed under the care of Deacon Jeremiah Thomas in Middleborough, in whose family she remained from the age of ten to that of twenty years. In this family her fondness for books was sternly frowned upon; yet she used her limited opportunities for acquiring knowledge with such success that when not quite seventeen, she taught a public school in Middleborough. The books studied in this school were-The New England Primer; here and there a Spelling-book; the Psalter, and a few Testaments. A sheet of paper was sometimes allowed the boys for penmanship; while the chief occupation of the girls was, to learn to knit and sew !

At the age of twenty, she assumed male attire and enlisted as a soldier in the Continental Army. The design was not hastily embraced, but had been revolved in her mind during several months. Her motives were of a mixed character; a disgust with the low employment of My friend, Rev. Stillman Pratt of Middleborough, became interested in the story, and had collected some materials towards a memoir of this remarkable woman, when his life was suddenly cut short, Sept. 1, 1862. These materials remain in the hands of his sons, who expect to use them for the purpose he intended.

^{*} I am enabled to give it from a manuscript, compiled from her own statements by Herman Mann of Dedham, in whose family she was intimate, and afterwarda (in 1850) corrected and re-written by his son. The manuscript, as prepared by the elder Mr. Mann, had her own sanction and approval. It is prolix and verbose, and written in an inflated, ambitious style; many things are introduced which have no necessary connection with the narrative; but the story is told with apparent sincerity and truthfulness, and its substantial verity is not doubted.

I have also had constantly before my eye, while penning the following sketch, the volume entitled "The Female Review, or Memoirs of an American Young Lady," compiled by Herman Mann, and printed for him at Dedham, in 1797. Not much, in fact, not anything, can be said in favor of this volume, considered as a composition; the style being intolerably flashy, pompous and affected. It is called by his son "a crude and very imperfect sketch;" and so it is. There are errors, both in fact and sentiment.

feeding pigs and poultry; a desire to see the world; and, last but not least, patriotism. She sympathized strongly with the struggle for liberty, and had with deep emotion listened, from a hill near her residence, to the boom of cannon on the day of Bunker Hill. The suit of masculine apparel in which she left the house of Dea. Thomas, was spun and woven by her own hands. The spinning-wheel and loom were then found in every farmer's family; and all the clothes needed for the attire of the household was produced within doors. Deborah employed a tailor to make up the suit, pretending that it was for a young man, a relative of hers, who was about to leave home, for the army.

In April, 1781, she left home secretly, and in the night; wandered through Taunton, Rochester, and New Bedford—where she made a partial engagement with the captain of a privateer to enlist on board of his vessel, but abandoned the design on being informed of his bad treatment of his men. She then visited Wrentham, Dedham, and other towns, and at Bellingham enlisted as a Continental soldier for the town of Uxbridge,* under the assumed name of ROBERT SHURTLIFFE.

About the end of the month, she was mustered into the service at Worcester, and, in company with a large number of new recruits, marched to join the army at West Point. There she was placed in Capt. Webb's Company of light infantry, in Col. Shepard's Regiment, and Gen. Patterson's Brigade. Her stature, as recorded by the proper officer, was five feet, seven and a half inches; eyes hazel, inclining to blue, &c. Here her civilian's suit was exchanged for the Continental uniform.[‡] Not long after, in the month of June, she was sent with a part of her company on a reconnoissance to Haerlem and the White Plains. They had a skirmish with a party of the enemy, consisting chiefly of tories, whom they compelled to retire. Though the shock of battle was unexpected and furious, and the man next to her was shot dead at the second discharge, she says she suffered less from fear, than from fatigue, thirst, and the heat of the day.

Soon after this, she was transferred, with most of her company, to Col. Henry Jackson's regiment of light infantry. The American forces were now, early in July, joined by the French army from Newport, under Count Rochambeau. After a series of manœuvres, made to deceive the enemy into a belief that an attack on New York was intended, the whole allied army, under Washington, about the 20th of August, took up its line of march for the Chesapeake. Of this rapid march; the scenery by the way; the passage through Philadelphia, where a vast multitude thronged the streets and houses to witness the grand spectacle; the voyage of the army from the Head of Elk to James River, in a fleet of transports, consisting of more than a hundred vessels, furnished for the occasion by the French admiral, Count de Grasse; and of the investment, siege, and capture of Yorktown, which soon followed, our heroine gives an animated description. In the hardships, as well as glories, of that siege, she had a personal share. She labored, unwilling to be outdone by sturdy, robust men, in the trenches; and was often exposed to great danger from the enemy's fire. Once, she distinctly felt the wind of a cannon ball which passed over her head and killed four men just behind her. On the night of the 7th October, she was one in a large detachment under Gen. Lincoln, who were ordered to open trenches within a mile of the enemy's lines. The night was one of severe labor and exposure to her, already suffering from a violent cold. In the morning, Gen. Lincoln noticed her extreme exhaustion and blistered hands, and very mildly said to her-" You have too great a share of fatigue upon you, my fine lad; retire to your tent, and pleasantly dream an hour or two." On the following night, fire was opened on the enemy from the whole extent of the allied lines. Carnage and death now became familiar. Day after day, and night after night, during a whole week, the air was filled with shot and shells from both sides. Two large redoubts, held by the enemy 300 yards in advance of their lines, severely enfiladed the besieging forces. These redoubts it was necessary to carry by assault. The attack on one was entrusted to a body of French troops under Baron de Viomenil; the attack on the other to a detachment of American infantry under the Marquis de la Fayette. Our heroine was engaged in this perilous affair. The hostile intrenchments were carried on the 15th at the point of the bayonet. Three days after, Cornwallis signed articles for the surrender of his whole army; which were carried into effect on the 19th. Of this inspiring scene, our heroine was a witness, and has given an animating account.

^{*} Each town—or rather its population—was then divided into classes, as they were called; and each class was obliged to furnish a soldier for the army. Deborah enlisted, and was accepted, for one of the classes in Uxbridge.

After the surrender, the army returned by the same route it had pursued in its progress to Virginia; and went into winter-quarters on the banks of the Hudson.

In June, 1782, our heroine, with about thirty others, volunteered on an expedition against a party of tories, who were committing outrages on the loyal inhabitants east of the Hudson. After a sharp skirmish, they put the tories to flight. But the heroine received two wounds, one in the left temple, the other (from a pistol ball) in the thigh, near the groin. She was carried to the hospital, and the adventure came near discovering her sex. But resolutely concealing the second wound, and extracting the ball herself, she escaped detection.

Our limits will not allow any farther account of her military career. It abounded with hardy and hazardous adventures, in all of which she bore herself with the firmness, resolution and patient endurance, which are often thought to belong exclusively to the stronger sex.

Peace was proclaimed in the army, April 19, 1783. The troops, however, were not disbanded till the autumn following. Having occasion to visit Philadelphia during the summer, our heroine was seized with a malignant fever then raging in that eity, which proved fatal to multitudes. She was carried to the hospital, and narrowly escaped with life. Indeed, at one time, the attendants supposed her to be dead; and she heard some of them (who were men) disputing about some part of her clothing, which they expected to have. By an almost superhuman effort, she made it known that she was yet alive; and sunk again into a state resembling death. The surgeon, Dr. Binney, happening to enter the hospital, was made acquainted with the fact. Thrusting his hand into her bosom, to ascertain if there was motion at the heart, he found a compress over the breasts; the removal of which disclosed the fact that the soldier Robert Shurtliffe, was a woman ! This secret, however, the benevolent surgeon imparted to none but Mrs. Parker, the matron of the establishment. She was immediately conveyed to Mrs. Parker's apartment, and nursed with the greatest care. As soon as she was able to ride, she was taken to Dr. Binney's house, and treated with the most delicate attention. On her departure for camp, for the purpose of being discharged, Dr. Binney gave her a letter for Gen. Patterson, in which he disclosed the fact of her sex, and the manner in which it was discovered. The General was greatly astonished, but treated her very kindly. She had been well known to him as a brave soldier, and had, during part of the third year, acted as his aid-de-camp, and had lived in his family, during the illness of Major Haskell, who had served him in that capacity. Gen. Patterson supplied her with a suit of female apparel; but she continued to wear her military costume during the following winter. She received an honorable discharge, Oct. 23, 1783, from the hand of Gen. Knox. Testimonials of faithful performance of duty, and of exemplary conduct, were given by Generals Patterson and Shepard, Col. Henry Jackson, and others.*

She arrived among her relatives in Massachusetts in November, 1783. She did not immediately make herself known; but at length resumed feminine apparel and employments.

In a few months (in 1784) she became the wife of Benjamin Gannett, an industrious young farmer of Sharon, and lived to rear a family of respectable children. She had an only son, Capt. Earl B. Gannett, and two daughters.

She died at her home in Sharon, April 27, 1827, æ. 67, sustaining to the end the character of a faithful and exemplary wife and mother, a kind neighbor and friend.

As a soldier she exhibited alertness, activity, courage, and valor. It is said, that on scouting parties she would always ride forward a little nearer the enemy than any of her comrades dared. On one occasion, meeting the enemy suddenly, it was necessary to abandon their horses, and run across a swamp for dear life, to escape a foe of overwhelming force. She then shewed herself to be as fleet as a gazelle, bounding through the swamp many rods ahead of her companions. It was thought that no man in the army could outrun her. She went through three campaigns without the discovery of her sex, and consequently without the loss of her virtue. Her delicate appearance, and particularly her having no beard, was often noticed; she was often called the "smock-faced boy," and the like; but her sex was never suspected.

in the American Army."

[&]quot;To all whom it may concern.

[&]quot;This may certify, that Robert Shurtlieff was a soldier in my regiment, in the Continental Army, for the town of Uxbridge in the Commonwealth of Massachascuts, and was eulisted for the term of three years; that he had the confidence of his officers, did his duty as a faithful and good soldier, and was honorably discharged the Army of the United States. HENRY JACKSON, late Col.

To gratify the curiosity of the multitude, she once visited Boston, and, clad in military attire, upon a platform, erected on the Common, she went through, at the word of an officer of the army, the manual exercise. Those who witnessed the scene said, that "she would almost make the gun talk;" every time it came to the ground from her hand the sound was so significant.

She obtained a pension for her Revolutionary services, as appears from the following authentic document, which I take from the Historical Magazine : —

"War Department, 11 March, 1805.

"Sir.

You are hereby apprised that Deborah Gannett, who served as a soldier in the army of the United States, during the late Revolutionary war, and who was seriously wounded therein, has this day been placed on the Pension List of the United States, at the rate of four dollars per month, to commence on the first day of January 1803. You will be pleased to enter her name on your books, and pay her or her legally authorized attorney, on application, accordingly.

I am, Sir, very respectfully, Your obt servant,

"Benjamin Austin, Jr. Esq. Boston.

H. DEARBORN."

The usual pay of a continental soldier was forty shillings (= $6.66) per month.

At a subsequent period the Pension Act was passed, and full pay was allowed to Mrs. Gannett, during the remainder of her life. In 1832, an Act was passed allowing pensions to the widows of deceased Revolutionary soldiers. The extraordinary services of our heroine were subsequently brought to the notice of Congress by John Quiney Adams, then a member of that honorable body, on petition of Mr. Gannett, her surviving husband. A special Act was passed to meet the peculiarity of the case, and he was placed upon the same footing as the widows of Revolutionary soldiers. The pension of Mrs. Gannett was continued to her husband during his life-time.*

The case of DEBORAH SAMPSON, taken in all its parts, is, I am fully persuaded, without a parallel in the history of the world.

"Therefore, RESOLVED, that the Treasurer of this Commonwealth be, and hereby is, directed to issue his note to said Deborah for the sum of thirty-four pounds, bearing interest from October 23, 1783."

Thirty four pounds of the Massachusetts eurrency were equivalent to one hundred dollars, and a trifle over.

^{*} RESOLVE of the General Court of Massachusetts, January 20, 1792.

[&]quot;On the petition of Deborah Gannett, praying compensation for services performed in the late Army of the United States :---

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAMSON,⁵ (Simeon,⁴ Peleg,³ Isaac,² Abraham,1) only surviving son of Capt. Simeon⁴ and Deborah (Cushing) Samson; b. in Plymouth, Dec. 27, 1781; m. at Plympton, 1805, HAN-NAH C. SHAW, b. in Middleborough, Sept. 17, 1782, daughter of John Shaw of the place last named.

At an early age, he followed the example of his father, and betook himself to a sea-faring life. His first voyage was to Charleston, S. C. He was there at the time of the great fire in 1796, which consumed nearly four hundred buildings. So abundant was the flow of rum and molasses, all on fire, into the dock, that it became necessary to remove the shipping out into the stream; the harbor resembling a lake of fire. In 1800, he sailed for England. The vessel was captured by a French cruiser in the English channel, and the crew carried into the port of Brest. From Brest he was taken up through the country under an escort of gens d'armes; and being confined in prison every night, he saw the inside of thirteen different prisons! On his arriving at Nantes, the American consul, Peter F. Dubree, procured his release. In 1802 and 1803, he went as mate of the brig Apollo, and visited many of our Southern ports, and of the West India Islands.

After experiencing many of the vicissitudes of a sea-going life, he retired to the farm in Plympton, left to him by his father. In 1812, he removed to Homer, Cortland Co., N. Y., of which town he was an early settler. He was an innkeeper many years; owning and occupying several different hotels within the county. The last was "Samson's Temperance House," in the village of Homer, where he now resides. In 1852, he sold it to his son Isaac M. Samson, and withdrew from active business. He had an extensive reputation as a good landlord, entertaining his guests with his good-humored conversation, and even with his poetic productions. As a specimen of the latter, we will here give "The Fountain's Invitation," which was posted over the watering-trough, supplied from a spring on a neighboring hill. It was often copied by the traveller while stopping to water his horse :----

> " Come, traveller, slake thy parching thirst, And drive away dull care ; Thou need'st not broach thy little purse, For I am free as air.

" My source is on the mountain side, My course is to the sea: Then drink till thou art satisfied, Yea, drink ! for I am FREE."

During more than twenty years, he has been an active and efficient supporter of the cause of Temperance. Such was the esteem in which he was held by the Temperance community, that the first lodge of Good Templars organized in Homer, was called the Samson Lodge of Good Templars.

His children have been-born in Plympton-

His name was originally Briggs, without the Henry. He was master of the brig Sampson, owned in part by his father. At a certain time, he met a vessel at sea, and as is customary, the two ship-masters held a friendly parley. "What brig is that?" inquired the stranger. "Brig Sampson," was the reply. "What is her captain's name?" "Briggs Sampson," was the answer. This response, seeming identical with the former, the question was repeated-"What is the captain's name?" and the answer was returned as before-" Briggs Sampson." The misunderstanding continued, and the question was asked a third and a fourth time-"What is the captain's name?" Of course the reply was the same as had been given-"Briggs Sampson." The vessels separated; the other captain highly displeased that a civil answer was not returned to a civil question; and Capt. Briggs Sampson resolving to preclude such a misunderstanding in future, by prefixing Henry to his name.

He received his business education in Boston. In 1825, he went to Mobile, Ala., where he has ever since resided. He is Cashier of the Southern Bank of Alabama. His last visit to his native city was 1840. There is no reason to doubt his loyalty to the Union and to the "Starspangled Banner;" while he has always contended for what the Southern people have regarded as their rights under the Federal Constitution. He has had two sons and three daughters; four of them died young; and one dau. still lives in Mobile with her parents.

In 1828, he went to Mobile, where he was for a time partner with his brother Daniel, under the style of D. C. & H. Sampson. At one time, he was largely interested in steamboats, having for years the contract from Government for the transportation of the mails in Alabama. Sometimes he was in command of steamers, and is to this day familiarly known as "Captain Sampson." He still resides in Mobile, and his views on public affairs resemble those which are entertained by his brother Daniel.

He has had one son and four daughters, of whom two only are now living.

At the early age of thirteen, he was placed in a counting-house in Boston, with a highly respectable firm, who were transacting a large southern commission business. In 1827, being then only sixteen, he was sent to the North coast of Africa as supercargo of a fine vessel, having the entire charge and responsibility of the voyage, which was successfully conducted. In 1820, he was sent to China by the Hon. Israel Thorndike. After his return, the following year, he was again sent, by way of Europe, to China, arriving there in 1831, and continuing there until 1887.

He has since that time resided in Boston as a merchant, doing an extensive business in company with Lewis W. Tappan, under the firm of Sampson & Tappan. He is now largely engaged in the business of refining sugar.

Nov. 1, 1841, SUSAN LAZELL REVERE, b. Nov. 29, 1817, dau. of Paul Revere of Bridgewater, and grand dau. of Col. Paul Revere of Revolutionary memory.

He began to work in the ship-yard with his father, at the age of eleven, and so continued till seventeen. He then went to school a year, and on the fourth day of April, 1836, began life as a business man, in the service of the Bridgewater Iron Manufacturing Company in Bridgewater, Mass. In their employ he continued twelve years; then removed to Boston, and in 1856, to New York City. He is there established in the Iron business, in its different branches, both manufacturing and selling; particularly in the line of constructing Iron Buildings, those especially which are used for the storage and disposal of the cereal grains. He has patents for some improvements of this sort. He has enjoyed perfect health for more than thirty years; nor were his children ever sick, save with the customary epidemics ; a fact which must be attributed to a strict observance of the laws of life, particularly to temperance in eating and drinking, and entire abstinence from alcoholic and narcotic substances. Not a particle of tobacco in any form was ever used by himself, nor by his grandfather, his father, or his children. His father never had any sickness previous to his last, except that he once had the small pox. A similar practice might not insure health and long life, but such a blessing can scarcely be enjoyed without it.

SKETCH OF REV. THOMAS SAMPSON, 1517-1589.

The Reverend and learned Mr. THOMAS SAMPSON was one of the most eminent and excellent ministers which Old England ever produced. He was born about the year 1517, and educated at the University of Oxford; he heartily embraced the Reformation, and was a means of converting the holy martyr John Bradford to the Protestant religion; he was ordained to the ministry in 1549 by archbishop Cranmer, who at his request dispensed with his wearing the canonical robes; he was a famous preacher in the reign of king Edward VI., but upon the accession of Queen Mary fled to Strasburgh. During his exile he assisted Miles Coverdale in the translation of the Scriptures, which is still known as the GENEVA BIBLE. When queen Elizabeth succeeded to the crown, she offered him the bishopric of Norwich, which he refused for no other reason, but because he could not conscientiously conform to the habits and ceremonies.* In 1561, he was made dean of Christ Church, Oxford ; but in 1564, was deprived of the office by archbishop Parker for nonconformity. He was specially obnoxious to the High Church party, who held the reins of power, for his strict adherence to the dictates of his conscience; for which they compelled him to live in poverty all the remainder of his life. He was "a most exact man in his principles and morals." He dealt faithfully with Grindal, who had been his companion in exile, though now advanced to the dignity of archbishop of York ; cautioning him against being elated with his high title. Fifteen years before his death he was seized with paralysis of one side; but continued preaching and writing to the last; and was in high esteem over all England for his learning, piety and zeal. He died in great peace and comfort of mind, about the beginning of April, 1589, æ. 72. [Neal's History of the Puritans, Vol. I., 339, 484, 485.

* The Puritans have been ealled stiff, precise, and needlessly scrupulous, because they refused to wear the canonical garments, and to conform in all respects to the usages of the Church of England, as by law established. Let it be remembered, however, that many of these ceremonies had been abused to purposes of idolarry, and were still regarded with a superstitious reverence by the common people. The canonical robes worn by the clergy were supposed to convey a special and mysterious virtue to those who received the sacraments at their hands, making the sacraments, thus administered, sure passports to Heaven. None were allowed to officiate as ministers but those who were ordained by a lord bishop; nor was the public worship of God permitted without the use of a prayer-book, not yet purged from all the abominations of Popery. The worst of it was—these things were enforced by the law of the land. Queen Elizabeth and her successors claimed the right of imposing religious obligations and duties, and thus usurped the throne of the Lown JESUS CHRIST, who alone is entitled to reign over the Church, which he has redeemed with his own blood. The Puritans, therefore, were obliged either to sacrifice conscience, or to suffer the loss of all things.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE SAMPSON GENEALOGY.

WHILE it is believed that most of the Sampsons in America are descendants of HENRY¹ and ABRAHAN¹ SAMPSON of Duxbury, it is not doubted that there are in this country at the present time a considerable number, bearing that name, who are not thus descended. There are in Boston, New York, and other large cities, a number of Sampsons who are, or whose parents were of foreign birth. It is not improbable that Richard Sampson, who came to America in 1635, may have a posterity among us. It is supposed, also, that other men of the name have at later periods come to these shores.*

JOHN² and JAMES³ SAMPSON, who were sons of Henry Sampson¹ of Duxbury, are no doubt represented at the present time by hundreds, if not thousands, of descendants, who are unaware of the fact. Cornelius,³ [27] Ichabod,⁹ [53] Micah,⁴ [85] Caleb,⁴ [150] Israel,⁴ [151] Seth,⁴ [159] Abraham,⁴ [173] Isaac,⁴ [197] Jacob,⁴ [202] and many others, it is altogether probable, have many descendants now living.

In what now follows, the reader will find-

1. Families, noticed in the foregoing Genealogy, concerning whom fuller information has been received, since the preceding pages were prepared for the press.

2. Memoirs of two or three families, which must here be exhibited by themselves, because we have no evidence sufficient to justify their incorporation with the descendants of HENRY¹ and ABRAHAM¹ SAMPSON.

3. Isolated statements, respecting individuals whose lineage cannot at present be ascertained.

Family of WILLIAM SAMPSON, of Cornwall, Vermont.

I have not been able to discover from which of the original emigrants this family is descended. It is a plausible conjecture that it was derived from John Sampson,² [5] son of HENRY SAMPSON' of Duxbury. He disappears from our view at Beverly, about 1680. Did he remove thence to Newbury? Was he the father of Jonathan and William Sampson of the town just named?

1731. WILLIAM SAMPSON,⁵ b. Oct. 10, 1733; m. JUDITH MERRILL, b. Nov. 1, 1738. They resided in Newburyport, where they had a family of ten children. They were both members of the Congregational Church; and were persons of the Old Puritan character, very consistent and strict in all the duties of a christian life. Their children were all baptized in infancy; were taught the good old Catechism, and were carefully trained in the ways of piety. Not long before the Revolutionary war, or perhaps after its commencement, they removed to Londonderry, N. H., and in 1784 to Cornwall, Vt. They were original members of the Congregational Church in Cornwall, which was formed July 15, 1785.* Of this Church, William Sampson was chosen Deacon. He died in Cornwall, Nov. 11, 1798, a. 65. His wife Judith died June 15, 1796, a. 68. Their memory is still fragrant, and the savor of their piety remains among their numerous descendants.

William Sampson was originally a calker by trade. After the death of his wife Judith, he married a widow Goodyear of Cornwall, grandmother of Rev. Luther G. Bingham.

^{*} There was a powerful and blessed Revival of Religion in Cornwall, which commenced in February, 1785, and prepared the way for the formation of the Church. About thirty persons were subjects of the Revival, and the happy results are felt to this day, in the character of the town, which is decidedly christian.

Dea. DANIEL SAMPSON,6 eldest child of William5 and Judith Sampson of Cornwall, Vt., b. in Newburyport, Nov. 10, 1758; n. 1, BETSEY GILBERT. 2, MARY WOOSTER, sister to Rev. Benjamin Wooster, a native of Waterbury, Ct., and minister of Cornwall from 1797 to 1802. 3, Widow MARY LANE of Cornwall.

He came to Cornwall soon after the Revolutionary War, and was one of the early settlers of that town. He was one of the original members of the Congregational Church there, which, as we have seen, was organized in 1785. Of that Church he was Deacon forty years. In 1832 he removed to Barré, Orleans County, N. Y., where he died May 28, 1842, æ. 84. There were many sorrowful hearts at his leaving Cornwall, and the Church deeply felt the loss of his christian example and labors. He was faithful, earnest and thorough in every duty. No one knew him but to love him.

The following sentences are extracted from an obituary notice of him which appeared in the New York Observer, prepared by his son, the Hon. Ashley Sampson:-

"For fifty-seven years he was a consistent professor of religion; he officiated as a Deacon more than fifty years. With no remarkable endowments by nature, he nevertheless, as a christian, exerted an extensive influence. His acquaintance was widely cultivated, not only by private christians, but by ministers of the gospel. His admonitions and reproofs, though frequent and faithful, were tempered with so much kindness, as seldom or never to give offence. The Bible was his daily companion, and his soul was deeply imbued with its spirit. He was a firm believer in the doctrines of grace, as taught by the Reformers. He was eminently a man of prayer. He was wont to pour out his whole soul in strains of fervent pathos, such as often melted the hearts of the hearers. In the benevolent operations of the day, especially in Foreign Missions, he felt a deep interest. It is believed that he read every line of the Missionary Herald, from its commencement in January, 1818, until the close of his life. He lived to see all of his children hopefully converted to God. During several of his last years, he appeared to live more in Heaven than upon earth. He died without a struggle or a groan."

His children were-by first wife-

He read law in Saratoga County, and established himself in that profession, first in Pittsford, Monroe County, N. Y., but in 1817 removed to Rochester. He was Judge of the County Court for Monroe County, from 1823 to 1825, and again from 1838 to 1843. He was a member of the Assembly of the State of New York, and filled many other important stations. The crowning excellence of his character was, that he lived for Christ and for heaven. He died in Roehester in 1858, a. 68. His wife died in 1848. By his will, he gave seven thousand dollars to Middlebury College, and seven thousand dollars to another Institution ; not forgetting his needy relations. He had no children.

He removed to Londonderry with his parents in his youth ; and, after the war, 1784, to Cornwall, Vt., where he passed the remainder of his life. He was a farmer, and was remarkable for neatness, punctuality, and order, in everything he did. He was never late at church, and never failed of being at church, when able to attend. He was Captain of a company of militia, which were called to Plattsburg in the war of 1812. He had the respect and confidence of all his soldiers, and performed religious services with them every morning and evening.

He and his wife were very careful in the religious training of their children, as well as in the ways of industry, and in all moral duties. They had seven sons and five daughters, "all of whom but two sons," says my informant, "I have no doubt, are now praising God in heaven. They all professed religion before the age of twenty-five, and were all married."

Family of JACOB SAMPSON,4 [202] p. 389.

JACOB SAMPSON,⁴ [202] youngest son of Isaac^a and Elizabeth Sampson of Middleborough. He was put under guardianship by the Court, in 1750, after the death of his father; from which we infer that he was then under fourteen years of age. He was probably born about 1737. His great-grandson, Calvin T. Sampson.⁷ [1871] says, that he was in the French and Indian war, and was in the battle on the Monongahela when Braddock was defeated, July 9, 1755. It has not been supposed that New England troops fought in that battle; and that part of the statement may be erroneous. He also says that Jacob Sampson served through the Revolutionary War. We have already seen evidence from the Massachusetts Archives that he participated in that great struggle. Previous to that war, he settled in New Salem, in the old County of Hampshire, Mass., where he probably passed the remainder of his life. He had three sons-

3. I believe all these facts are on the Braintree records, only giving the birth of presidents, etc., as plain Johns, etc.

M. L. T. A. Taintree records and histories give all. Mary, daughter of John and Ruth (Alden) Bass, married first, Christopher Webb, Jr., In 1688. Webb died in 1690, and his widow married, second, April 13, 1604, William Copeland. They had nine children, who have a multitude of descendants.

J. W. P.

3. Concerning Mary Bass. Ruth, daughter of John and Priscilla Alden, married John Bass of Braintree. Their daughter Hannah married Joseph Adams, grandson of Henry Adams of Braintree. A grandson of Joseph and Hannah (Bass) Adams was John Adams, second President of the United States. According to the records of Braintree, another daughter, Mary, born "12 mo. 11 d. 1669," married March 24, 1686, Christopher Webb (third of the name in Braintree), grandson of Christopher Webb. They had three children: Hannah, born Dec. 16, 1686; Sarah, born Oct. 10, 1688, and Christopher, born Aug. 19, 1690. Mary (Bass) Webb's husband, Christopher Webb, died of smallpox in March, 1690, and she married for her second husband William Copeland. A sister of Christopher Webb, Hannah Webb, married Captain John Adams, grandson of Henry Adams, and their grandson was Samuel Adams, the distinguished patriot, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, governor of Massachusetts, etc., whom Bancroft calls "the helmsman of the Revolution at its origin," and John Fiske proclaims as "a man who, in the history of the American Revolution, is second only to Washington." The Webb and Adams families formed what is sometimes called "the quadruple alliance." As just mentioned, Hannah Webb, granddaughter of Christopher Webb, married Captain John Adams, grandson of Henry Adams. John Webb married Bethiah Adams, twin of Captain John Adams. Mary Webb married Captain Peter Adams, brother to John and Bethiah. Samuel Webb married Mary Adams, a cousin to John, Bethiah and Peter, and a granddaughter of Rear Admiral Graves, as well as of Henry Adams of Braintree. The dates are to be found in Braintree town records. John, Samuel, Christopher, Hannah and Mary Webb were children'of Christopher and Hannah (Scott) Webb of Braintree, Mass. There were four more children. K. G. S.

If "D. B. F"could find a copy of a book called "Family Memorial," by Elisha Thayer of Dedham, Mass., 1835, which contains the genealogy of fourteen families of the early settler of New England, and includes the names of Alden, Adams, Bass and Copeland, he would get the information for which he is seeking in a much more compact form than is given in the Braintree Records. I have looked this over, and find that Mary Bass, widow of Christopher Webb, Jr., who married William Copeland, was the daughter of John and Ruth (Alden) Bass. She (Mary Bass) had a sister Hannah, who married Joseph Adams. Joseph and Hannah (Bass) Adams had a son John, who was father of John Adams, the second President of the United States. President John Adams was father of John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States.

THE WEBB FAMILY OF BRAINTREE.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENTS.

THERE were several families of the name of Webb, among the early settlers of New England. Francis Webb and Thomas Webb were members of the Massachusetts Company in England. Whether they ever came to these shores does not appear, though Francis was one of the active promoters of the plantation.

Richard Webb of Weymouth had Joseph, b. Aug. 19, 1640, and Nehemiah, b. Oct. 19, 1641. He removed to Boston, probably in 1644; was a shoemaker, and was chosen by the town of Boston scaler of leather, 1649. He died July 2, 1650. He had no other sons living at that time, for he says in his will, "my two sonnes." His son Joseph² (lived in Boston; d. Oct. 9, 1698) had by wife Grace, Joseph³ b. March 10, 1666; Mary³ b. Aug. 27, 1671; Sarah³ b. Oct. 14, 1673; Elisha³ b. Feb. 13, 1675. Sarah³ just mentioned, m. May 26, 1699. John Marshall³ b. March 19, 1678, son of Samuel², and grandson of John¹ and Sarah Marshall of Boston.—See p. 346 of this volume.

The last named [Deacon] Joseph Webb⁵ (a maltster or brewer, b. 1666; d. 1746) had by wife Lydia, Joseph⁴ b. Feb. 18, 1698–9; a baker; d. Oct. 10, 1762; m. Abigail Torrey, Oct. 26, 1721, and had fourteen children; of whom seven d. in infancy. Two sons, Nehemiah⁵ and John⁵ and five daughters, Abigail, Lydia, Deborah, Grace, and Persis, are not recorded as dying thus early.

HENRY WEBB of London came to this country with his father, who was of Salisbury, Eng. He was at Boston previously to Sept. 25, 1637, when he had leave from the town to "buy the house where he now lives." He had a lot at Mount Wollaston, 1638. He was admitted freeman March 13, 1638-9. In 1640, "200 acres of land at the Mount [Wollaston] beyond Monotocott river," were granted him; this must have been in the present territory of Braintree. He was a successful and wealthy merchant; appears to have devoted himself to traffic; and to have taken no part in public affairs. He was a stockholder in the Iron Works at Braintree and at Lynn, from the beginning in 1644, till the failure of the Company in November, 1653. He advanced large sums of money to help that Company in their difficulties; and the property of the Company was attached to satisfy his claims, along with those of his friends, Thomas Savage, Anthony Stoddard, and others. See Vinton Memorial, pp. 465-470. He d. Sept. 7, 1660. Dowsabell, his wife, d. Feb. 28, 1659-60.

The will of Henry Webb, dated April 5, 1660; proved Sept. 13, 1660; may be found in the Genealogical Register, X., 177. He gives property to his only daughter Margaret, late wife of Jacob Sheafe, and her children Elizabeth Sheafe and Mehitable Sheafe. He also mentions his brother John Webb, deceased, of Titherly in Hampshire, England, and several other relatives and friends. The will further savs-"I giue vnto Harvard Colledge, Immediately after my decease, my house And land which I lately purchased of Henry Phillips, and was ye late house of Samuell Oliuer, deceased, with such deed or deeds that Concerne the same, the yearely Rent whereof to be improued, after ye due and necessary Repayres thereof is provided for, to be forener, either for ye maintanace of some poore schollars, or otherwise for ye best good of ye Colledge, to be Improved by the Care And discretion of ye President and overseers of ye Colledge, and Approbation of ye overseers of this my will. I further give vnto ye said Colledge, £50 more, to be payd in speciall good pay," etc. The house here given was not his mansionhouse; for that was given to his dau. Mrs. Sheafe, and to her dau. Elizabeth after her. The property given to the College is still owned by that corporation; it is the land on which stands the book-store so full of literary treasures, of Little, Brown & Co., No. 110 Washington Street. This store was handsomely rebuilt, of substantial granite, three vears since, and the inscriptions, HENRICVS WEBB, COLL. HARV. D. 1660, DENVO ÆDIFICAV. PRÆS. ET SOC. 1860,* are sculptured in two tablets on the front wall.

His only daughter and child, Margaret, b. 1625; d. Feb. 23, 1693-4, a. 68; married Sept., 1642, Jacob Sheafe, b. Aug. 4, 1616, at Cranbrook in Kent, England. Mr. Sheafe d. at Boston, March 22, 1658-9. Mrs. Sheafe afterwards m. Rev. Thomas Thacher, the first minister of the Old Sonth Church in Boston. By Mr. Sheafe, she had two daughters, Elizabeth, b. Oct. 1, 1644, who m. 1, Sept. 7, 1660, Robert Gibbs; 2, March 20, 1675, Jonathan Corwin of Salem (see p. 341 of this volume); and Mehitabel, b. May 28, 1658, who m. Sampson Sheafe, then a merchant of Boston, afterwards Judge of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire; from whom most of the name in New Hampshire are descended.

John Webb was admitted freeman, Dec. 7, 1636. He was a member of the Artillery Company in Boston, 1643. "One John Webb, alias Evered,"[‡] was the conductor of a fishing enterprise at the Isle of Sable in 1641. "John Evered, alias Webb," was one of the three appraisers of the estate of Mrs. Anne Leverett, mother of Governor Leverett, Boston, October, 1656. He was one of the early settlers of Chelmsford, of which town he was a representative, 1663, 1664, 1665.

John Webb, brazier, was admitted an inhabitant of Boston, Nov. 24, 1651.

There were, therefore, two John Webbs in Boston in 1655. One of them, probably "John Webb, alias Evered," sold house and lands in Braintree to Samuel Allen of Braintree, April 19, 1648. [Suff. Deeds, 1:90.] This may indicate a connection with Christopher Webb. Richard, son of John and Anna Webb of Boston, died Dec. 30, 1651.

^{* &}quot;Henry Webb gave this property to Harvard College, 1660." "The College the diffee, 1860." the diffee, 1860." the "Evered" was probably assumed on leaving England, as a means of eluding the vigilance of the government, who would hinder emigration to these shores.

THE WEBB FAMILY OF BRAINTREE.

FIRST GENERATION.

CHRISTOPHER WEBB¹ came from England some time previous to 1645. He appears to have brought with him a family of several children. In May, 1645, he became a freeman of the Massachusetts Colony. The most careful research has failed to elicit another fact concerning him. His descendant, Dea. Jonathan Webb (b. 1752, d. 1826) affirmed, in a Genealogical statement which the present writer has used in the preparation of this Memoir, that he settled in Braintree, which is a very probable supposition. He may have been a brother of William Webb of Weymouth, 1640, and of John Webb, who sold land in Braintree to Samuel Allen in 1648. Perhaps, also, of Richard Webb of Weymouth, 1641. The name of his wife has not been preserved.

His children, as given in the statement just referred to, were-

2. †Christopher,2 b. about 1630; m. Hannah Scott, 1655.

3. Sarah,2 m. Zechariah Buckmaster of Boston, March 7, 1654-5.

5. Mary.²

SECOND GENERATION.

2.

CHRISTOPHER WEBB,² son of the preceding; b. probably in England, about 1630; m. Jan. 18, 1654-5, HANNAH SCOTT, dau. of Benjamin Scott. The marriage service was performed by Capt. Torrey of Weymouth. The civil magistrate usually solemnized marriages.

He was, undoubtedly, an inhabitant of Braintree, nearly the whole time, from his marriage till his death, a period of about forty years, besides what time he may have spent there before marriage. His marriage, and the births of all his children, with one exception are recorded in Braintree. He describes himself, in his will, as of Braintree.

The exception, just referred to, is of his son Christopher, who was b. March 25, 1663. It seems likely that Christopher was b. in Billerica.

Mary, dau. of Thomas and Sarah Webb, b. June 4, 1691. Thomas, son of Thomas and Sarah Webb, b. Sept. 14, 1699.

- Sarah, wife of Thomas Webb, d. March 14, 1702.

- Michael Smith, son of Isaac and Abigail Webb, b. Aug. 31, 1708.
- Isaac Webb died Dec. 20, 1709.
- Isaac, son of Isaac and Abigail Webb, b. June 15, 1710.
- Jonathan Pierce m. to Mary Webb, Nov. 27, 1712. John Hurd m. to Elizabeth Webb, March 16, 1690-1.
- Edmund Knight m. to Grace Webb, Feb. 16, 1709. Samuel, son of Thomas and Mary Webb, b. May 15, 1727.
- Thomas Webb m. to Elizabeth Dunnell, April 26, 1726.

^{*} I find on the Boston Records the following entries, most of which undoubtedly refer to the family or descendants of Thomas Webb,2 son of Christopher Webb.1

It appears from an instrument, printed in the Geneal. Register, Vol. VI., p. 86, that Christopher Webb, whose name, with 23 others, is thereto subscribed, was, at the date thereof, viz., 24th of 12th mo., 1661, i. e. Feb. 24, 1661-2, an inhabitant and a proprietor of Billerica. This was a little more than a year before the birth of Christopher³ [9]. We conclude, therefore, that he bought land in Billerica, and resided there a year or two preceding and following the date of this instrument.

In the probate of his will, he is called a "mill-wright." He was chosen town-clerk of Braintree. May 18, 1678. In 1683 he was of Braintree, a Commissioner for dividing John French's estate. [Geneal. Reg., XIII., 353.7 He was representative of Braintree, 1689 and 1690.

His will is dated April 14, 1694; proved, June 28, 1694; recorded Suff. Prob., 13: 220. To my son John Webb and his heirs twenty pounds, to be paid immediately after my wife's decease. To my son Peter Webb and his heirs twenty pounds after my wife's decease; also the east end of my dwelling-house, which he liveth in, &c. To my son Christopher Webb's children, my grandchildren, Christopher Webb, Hannah Webb, and Sarah Webb, twenty-four pounds, to be divided equally among them. 14. Abigail,3 b. Aug. 13, 1675.

Here we have four children of Christopher Webb² united in marriage to four children of Joseph Adams,² all of that part of Braintree, which is now Quincy. Verily this may be denominated a "Quadruple Alliance."

THIRD GENERATION.

SAMUEL WEBB,⁹ (Christopher,² Christopher,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Braintree, Aug. 6, 1660; m. December, 1686, MART ADAMS,⁹ b. Oct. 9, 1663, dau. of Joseph² and Abigail (Baxter) Adams of Braintree, and sister of his brother John Webb's wife,[#]

He removed, with his wife and four children, to Windham, Ct., in the year 1707. Windham had then been settled about 18 years. Many of the first settlers were from Braintree, Hingham, and the towns in that vicinity. Jan. 29, 1706–7, Samuel Webb of Braintree purchased of Thomas Huntington of Windham, for £233, the fifth "home-lot" at Windham Centre, with the one thousand-acre right belonging to it.‡ Notwithstanding this phraseology, it would seem that a part of this land had been previously sold to some other person; for we cannot make out more than 300 to 400 acres in Samuel Webb's first purchases. There was, at the time, a house on his home-lot, and an apple orchard on his farm. The house was situated on the west side of the "town street."

The same mistake is found in Thayer's Family Memorial, and in Mr. Savage's Genealogical Dictionary.

We know that Samuel Webb went from Braintree to Windham, Ct.; that his wife's name was Mary Adams, and Joseph Adams, her father, in his will, ealls Samuel Webb his son-in-law. We know, moreover, that Samuel Webb and his wife Mary died, at the times stated in the text.

‡ The whole territory, which was comprised in the old town of Windham, was originally given by will of Joshua Uncas to sixteen individuals, and by them divided into 48 shares; each share being estimated to contain one thousand acres, and actually outruaning this estimate. None of these legatese settled on this land; but they sold their "rights" to those, for the most part, who became settlers. It was designed to have three simultaneous settlements; but only two were effected, viz., at Windham Centre, and at what is now Mansfield Centre. The village lots were called "home-lots." At Windham Centre, most of the home-lots contained thirty aeres each. Opposite these home-lots "pasture-lots," of twenty areres each, were hidl out. Afterwards, at different times, other lots were laid out one holder of a 1000 acre right; each one obtaining his proportion of mealow, upland, and woodland, until the whole territory was divided among the proprietors. Mr. Webb onglit the Fifth Home-lot, with the 1000 acre right to bub each of several of the too be as a considered view of several of the lots to other persons, being still in common and undivided. In 1707, to is poshable that not much of the land, except the home-lots, that been brought under cultivation. The price of a 1000 acre right, when the settlement of Windham began, was but £8 or $10.

^{*} There is a mistake in the Vinton Memorial, p. 298, first line, in regard to Mary Adams, No. 15³. She did not "die young," but became the wife of Samuel Webb in the text. Nor did Samuel Webb marry Mary Adams, No. 17 (third line of same page) b. Feb. 25, 1667-8, who became the wife of Dea Samuel Bass. The name of the latter (No. 17) is doubtless wrongly entered on the Town Records. It may have been Marcy or Mercy.

It was the second lot north from that of Cates, the first settler, and the second lot south from the centre lot in the village; the lots being twenty rods wide on the street.

He was formally admitted an inhabitant of Windham, March 14, 1709. In 1709 he was chosen one of the "Listers" or Assessors, and was also one of the School Committee. In 1713, he was appointed "Innkeeper." He was evidently a man of substance for those days, and there is every indication that he was esteemed and respected. The mark of respect, "Mr." is prefixed to his name. In his inventory he is styled "gent."

Samuel Webb and Mary his wife were members of the First Church in Windham. The time when they united with it cannot be ascertained, as the early records are lost; but it was before 1726.

His will is dated Jan. 7, 1730-1; proved, March 6, 1738-9; and is found in the second vol. of Windham Probate Records. He gives to wife Mary "all my moveable Estate both Within doars and Without doars to be Wholly at hur dispose, and that end of my dwelling hows next to ye town Street, to be hurs deuring hur Natural life." All the lands that the testator had by deed of gift given to his sons Samuel, Nathaniel, Zebulon, and to his son-in-law, Amos Dodge, were now assured to them and their heirs and assigns forever. Son Nathaniel, Executor. Witnesses, John Flint, Joseph Walding, John Larabe.

Inventory, £172.9.3. This was mostly personal property, and the currency was much depreciated. The real estate had, as we have seen, and as was customary, been divided among the children by "deeds of gift."

Samuel Webb d. in Windham, Feb. 20, 1738-9, æ. 79. His widow Mary d. there, Dec. 21, 1744, a. 81. Their grave-stones, in Windham, are still standing.

Their children, all b. in Braintree, were-

He spent all his days in Braintree, and died before his father. Thayer says he died of small-pox, March, 1690. Another record makes him to have died Feb. 7, 1689-90. His widow Mary m. April 13, 1694, William Copeland,² b. Nov. 15, 1656, son of Lawrence Copeland¹ of Braintree.

The children of Christopher and Mary (Bass) Webb were-BENJAMIN WEBB,3 (Christopher,2 Christopher,1) fifth son of Christopher² and Hannah Webb; b. in Braintree, Feb. 2, 1667-8; m. in Boston, Nov. 21, 1692, SUSANNA BALLANTINE of Boston.

At the time of his marriage, and for three or four years after, he lived in Boston. He then returned to Braintree, the part now Quincy, and passed there his remaining days. He was a tanner and currier; but from the mention, in his will, of his "books," which he divides in equal shares among his children, we infer that he was fond of reading, and had, for those times, a considerable library. Two of his sons had a college education, and became useful and honored ministers of the gospel. He was chosen town-elerk of Braintree, July 19, 1709. He appears to have been a man of property, and of very respectable standing.

His will is dated Feb. 16, 1738-9, with a codicil, dated May 2, 1739; proved, Oct. 30, 1739; recorded, Suff. Prob., 34: 245. He gives to Anthony Checkley, in the text, was half-brother to Samuel Checkley of Bostor, father of Rev. Samuel Checkley. They were sons of William Checkley of Preston, in Northamptonshire, Eng. See Drake's History of Boston, p. 459.

^{*} The first wife of Samuel Adams⁵ (the Patriot) was Elizabeth Checkley, b. March 15, 1725, dau. of Rev. Samael Checkley, pastor of the New Sonth Church, Boston. The mother of Elizabeth Checkley was Elizabeth Rolfe, dan. of Rev. Benjamin Rolfe, second minister of Haverhill. When Haverhill was attacked by the Indians, Aug. 29, 1708, Mr. Rolfe was killed, together with his wife and youngest child. This was early in the morning. A negro slave, named Hagar, leaped out of bed, caught up two of the daughters, one thirteen years of age, the other nine, fled with them to the cellar, concealed them under two large tubs, and then successfully concealed herself. The Indians, in search of plunder, frequently passed these tubs, but did not discover the children, nor the faithful servant. One of these children, Elizabeth, was afterwards the wife of Rev. Samuel Cheekley. The other, Mary, became the wife of Col. Estes Hatch of Dorchester.

Andrew Eliot.

He was ordained the first pastor of the New North Church in Boston, Oct. 20, 1714; and during more than thirty-five years discharged the duries of that office with exemplary zeal, diligence and fidelity. He was a man of ardent, impulsive temper, of great energy, and of much decision of character. His labors, as a minister, were abundantly successful. He was a leading, efficient promoter of the Great Revival of 1740–3. No church in Boston shared more largely

[‡] The Hon. EDWARD BROMFIELD, father of Mrs. Webb, was born at Haywood House, the seat of the family, in Hampshire, England, Jan. 10, 1648–9; was bred a merchant in London; went to Jamaica; came to Boston in 1675, and there passed the remainder of his life. His house was where the Indian Queen Tavern stood in the compiler's youth, and where the Bromfield House now is, on the south side of Bromfield Street. He was a member of the Old South Church, and Rev. Ebenczer Pemberton, pastor of that Church, joined his daughter in marriage to Mr. Webb. He was "a gentleman of great integrity and singular piety." He was, from 1703 to 1728, a member of the Honorable Council of the Province. He died Jane 2, 1734, a. 85, greatly respected. His wife, the mother of Mrs. Webb, was Mary, the eldest daughter of Rev. Samnel Danforth of Roxbury, and grand-dau. of Rev. John Wilson, first pastor of the First Church in Boston. Mrs. Bromfield did not long survive her husband; she died "very much lamented," Oct. 7, 1734. [Genealogical Register, Vol. V., p. 100.

than his in the blessings of that glorious manifestation of Divine power and grace. We have his own statement, made to the Rev. Thomas Prince, pastor of the Old South Church, and Compiler of the Christian History, that in a period of three months, in 1741, he was visited by more than one thousand different individuals, in deep concern for their own salvation. He also stated to Mr. Prince that one hundred and sixty were received to full communion with his church during the revival. He was a warm and active friend of those earnest and rousing evangelists, Whitefield and Tennent, who visited Boston at that time, and whose labors were so greatly blessed in the Great Awakening. He is often mentioned with respect in the history of that memorable period.

He published, during his life-time, forty-five sermons, twenty-four of which were contained in one volume. Several of them were reprinted. His house was on the corner of North Bennet and Salem Streets.

Rev. Peter Thacher, formerly of Weymouth, was installed as his colleague, Jan. 27, 1723; died Feb. 26, 1738–9, a. 61. Rev. Andrew Eliot was ordained as his colleague, April 14, 1742, and after his death remained sole pastor until his own death. Sept. 13, 1778, a. 59.

Mr. Webb's will is dated March 28, 1728; proved, Jan. 15, 1750-1; recorded, Suff. Prob., 44: 234. He gives to his well-beloved brother Samuel Webb of Charlestown, miller, and to his well-beloved sister Bethiah Nichols, wife of William Nichols of Boston, ship-joyner, to each the sum of thirty pounds. To Elizabeth, my dearly beloved, my Virtuous and Discreet wife, all my remaining estate, Real and Personal, Lands, Messuages, Tenements, Household Goods, Moveables, Monies, Plate, Library, Negro servant-man named Will, and all other things to me belonging. Wife Elizabeth, sole executrix.

No children are mentioned in this will; yet it appears that he had at least three children, born after the date thereof.

SAMUEL WEBB,⁴ (John,³ Christopher,² Christopher,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Braintree, Oct. 19, 1689; m. ABIGAIL _____.

He lived in Charlestown, at least from the year 1719 till his death. He was a "miller," as his father and uncle Peter were. He was "well-to-do" in worldly affairs, though not rich. From the fact that he was a subscriber to Prince's Chronology in 1736, we infer that he was fond of reading. He was administrator on his father's estate in 1727.

He died intestate, in 1739. His widow Abigail was appointed administratrix, Oct. 29, 1739. The inventory of his estate is dated Dec. 25, 1739. His personal estate was valued at £411.13. This includes one negro man, valued at £80; silver tankard, weighing 30 ounces, at 25s. the ounce=£37.10. Silver buttons, 24 ounces. House well furnished. Real estate,-part of the grist-mills, dams, &c., being four Eighth parts, one Sixteenth part, and one Thirty-second part=£1400. Dwelling-house and land thereto belonging, upland, salt-marsh, &e., £450. Pasture, £220. Whole amount, £2511.13. [Midd. Prob., 21:75 and 22:384.

The currency being greatly depreciated, so that an ounce of silver was worth 25 shillings, Samuel Webb's whole property may be estimated at about 2000 dollars,—a handsome amount for those days.

His widow Abigail died in 1748; an inventory of her estate being dated April 20 in that year.

^{*} The births of Sannel and Peter are not recorded in Charlestown, and I have no certain evidence that they were of this family. Every circumstance, known to me, however, tallies with the supposition that they were so. He was a "miller," and spent his life in Braintree. He owned and occupied a grist-mill, which stood on Monatiquot river, probably on the site of the valuable mill owned a few years since by Hon. Benjamin Vinton French. See Vinton Memorial, p. 193. His pasture was bounded on the canal which conducted the water to the mill, and was divided by a fence from lands of Rev. Samuel Niles. [Suff. Prob., 45:57.

He lived, therefore, in what is now called North Braintre², about half a mile east from Rev. Dr. Storrs's meeting-house. He and his wife Mary united with Rev. Mr. Niles's Church in 1724.

He died intestate, in the autumn of 1749. His widow Mary was appointed administratrix, Nov. 28, 1749.

TIMOTHY WEBB,⁴ (Benjamin,³ Christopher,² Christopher,¹) brother of the preceding; b. in Braintree, June 30, 1708; m. May 26, 1725. SARAH HOWARD, b. in Salem, August, 1708.

He settled in Windham, Ct., where his uncle Samuel Webb was already settled. At what time he removed to Windham is not definitely ascertained. It was as early as 1742, because his son Stephen [171] was b. there, which fact we learn from the inscription on Stephen's gravestone. As none of his children appear on the records of Braintree, and as his marriage is recorded in Windham, we may venture to assume that he removed to Windham soon after marriage. We find, nevertheless, that Timothy Webb of Pomfret, Ct., sold a parcel of land, with a dwelling-house thereon, to Henry Bass of Windham, March 18, 1740-1; which renders it probable that after marriage he settled in Pomfret, and that his first five children were born there. He was a shoemaker by trade. He d. in Windham, Feb. 22, 1792, æ. 84. Sarah, his wife, d. in Windham, Sept. 30, 1785, a. 77.

SAMUEL WEBB,⁵ (Samuel,⁴ John,³ Christopher,² Christopher,¹) presumed to be the son of Samuel Webb⁴ of Charlestown; b. about 1711; m. in Boston, Nov. 2, 1732, DEBORAH BELKNAP, b. March 31, 1711, eldest child of Jeremiah⁴ and Sarah (Fosdick) Belknap of Boston.*

He resided in Newport, R. I., at least from August, 1736, to September, 1747, as appears from his receipt-book, now in the possession of his descendant, Dr. Thomas H. Webb of Boston. He is on the list of subscribers to Prince's New England Chronology, and is there designated "Mr. Samuel Webb of Newport." This list was completed about 1736. See Genealogical Register, Vol. VI., p. 199. The births of his two eldest children were recorded in Boston; and evidently he did not remove his family to Newport till after the birth of his second child. Some time, we know not how long, previous to his death, he was a "shop-keeper" in Boston. He died previous to Dec. 4, 1754. His widow Deborah died previous to January, 1759.

Dec. 4, 1754, Deborah Webb, widow, of Boston, one of the children and heirs of Jeremiah Belknap, late of Boston, leather-dresser, deceased, executes a quit-claim deed of Real Estate in Boston, in favor of Joseph -Belknap and Jeremiah Belknap, leather-dressers, Joseph Edwards, stationer, and Sarah his wife, Mary Belknap, spinster, Anna Norton, widow, Rebecca Belknap, spinster, Thomas Jackson, merchant, and Elizabeth his wife, and Abigail Belknap, spinster, all of Boston, and all being children and heirs of Jeremiah Belknap of Boston, deceased. [Suff. Prob., 49:740.

1759, Jan. 9, Joseph Belknap, Executor of the Will of Deborah Webb, late of Boston, widow, deceased, presents his account, from which it appears that she was the mother of Samuel Webb, Jeremiah Webb, Joseph Webb, Mary Webb, Hannah Webb, the three last being minors, above the age of fourteen years. [Ibid., 54:71, and 55:129.

The Belknap family were members of the Old South Society, and Deborah was married by its minister, Rev. Joseph Sewall, as her father had been by his predeces-For. Rev. Ebenezer Pemberton, Nov. 3, 1709. [See Gen. Reg., Vol. XIII., p. 17.

^{*} I have met with no record which assures me that Samuel Webb, the husband of Deborah Belknap, was the son of Samuel Webb of Charlestown, while every known circumstance favors the supposition.

The father of Jeremiah Belknap,' in the text, and his grandfather, were both named Joseph, and both were residents of Boston. His great-grandfather, and first American ancestor, was ABRAHAM BELKNAP¹ of Salem, whose will, dated Feb. 6, 1643-4, is found in the Essex Prob. Records. Jeremiah Belknap,⁴ b. Jan. 11, 1686 1643-4, is found in the Essex Prob. Records. Jereinian Berking, b. Jan. 11, 188; in. Sarah Fosdick, Nov. 3, 1709; was a leather dresser, as were his soms Joseph⁵ and Jeremiah.⁵ He died in 1751, a. 65. From him Belknap Street took its name. His eldest son Joseph⁵ m. July 3, 1741, Sarah Byles, nice of Rev. Mather Byles, first minister of Hollis Street Church, Boston, (ord. Dec. 20, 1732); and they were the parents of Rev. Jeremy Belknap,⁶ horn in Boston, June 4, 1744; d. June 20, 1788; some time pastor at Dover, N. H., but installed in 1787, pastor of the Church E. 2 and E. The Berecau was a very fine vessel and a fast sailer. The action lasted two hours, during which the corvette was very much ent up, losing fore and main masts, and between 30 and 40 men. The Bereean surrendered, and was brought as a prize into the port of Boston. It had so happened, however, that a treaty of peace had been concluded at Paris, Sept. 30, 1800, between the American envoys and the government of Napoleon Bonaparte, who was now First Consul of France. This fact, unknown to the combatants at the time, rendered necessary the restoration of the captured vessel. Mrs. Vinton informed me that her husband was in this action. The Home Circle

The Way

Oh, the joy that I have known All along the winding way; Fresh, wild winds of morning blown Out across each glorious day! Sweet the call of field and hill And the dewy-scented moor, Where the flaming heather still Woos and wins me as of yore.

Lilting song of thrush and linnet Vocalize each hedge and hollow, There's a touch of magic in it That doth lare my feet to follow Where the rushes green are bending Down to kiss the little stream, Stealing softly by and sending Forth the music of its dream.

Oh, that I could catch the meaning Of that music, ere it dies; Catch the light and beauty beaming

In the sunny, morning skies! All too soon my day is going, Empty fall my hands apart,-But the western skies are glowing And a song is in my heart.

Then, when twilight, gently falling From the shadows, cool and deep, Guides me where the stars are calling I shall find the soundest sleep 'Neath the tendrils of the willow, Where the breath of sweet, white clover Shall float idly o'er my pillow And the green grass he my cover. -Mary Bassett-Rouke.

Webb Brook

By John Elliot Bowman.

Its name is scarcely known outside the limits of a single Middlesex town, for its length is not more than three miles from its source in the meadows below the village to its junction with the loitering Shawshin, yet its waters, in their quiet flowing, have preserved that name for two hundred and fifty years since the man who bore it gave up all title to the lands that border the stream.

Christopher Wehh came hither from Braintree when northern Middlesex was a wilderness, dwelt near the woodland stream for two or three years; then return-ed to the older settlement and sold his Shawshin lands. Yet the transient resident has left his name, while the men who cleared these fields and built the roads and stone walls that intersect and separate them are forgotten. The stream is Webb Brook from source to mouth, the Webb pasture lies nidway along its course and the main thoroughfare that crosses it is known as Webb Brook Road

Through half its length it runs through cleared fields plainly visible from the side hill farms in the neighborhood; photographs taken with the changing season would supply illustrations for Longfellow's

- the pleasant water courses,

You could trace them through the valley

By the rushing in the Springtime,

By the alders in the summer,

By the white fog in the autumn, By the black line in the winter."

At the farthest limit of the open fields in view from Wyman Road the stream passes the ruins of the "stock farm" buildings, burned thirty years ago; and dribbles through the remains of a dam which once retained its waters for the convenience of the farmer. While there is suggestiveness in any trace of the handiwork of man upon nature there is perhaps something peculiarly characteristic about deserted water works. A mill pond well nigh dry, grass-grown, with a slender stream trickling through its midst; a broken race way with its planks falling in shreds, while the stream, once forced to pass between its sides now slips by at will.

These are associated with man's temporary success in bending nature to his wish; and the water flowing unhampered by his plans seems conscious of the tran-sient character of his conquest. Yet his failure in all these things is only apparent. He falls back at single points to gain all along the line. A thonsand brooks may laugh as they will through deserted race ways, West Boylston holds a valley filled with water at his command. It is possible that pessimistic views con-cerning the moral and spiritual advancement of mankind might be removed by a fuller realization of the fact of which these things are a parable. Is aping from the broken gate the brook enters the only it of woodland left along its course, through whic it flows for a mile on its way to Shawshin, this narrow strip of shade alone remaining of the forests and swamps that once hid its banks from the sunlight.

It is as though one whose life had been that of the hermit; some Selkirk, seeing and unwilling to renounce the charms of his solitude, had been forced to live his life in the open, among men, yet should be able to spend his closing years in the meditation dear to him.

The brook enters the woods silently but gladly; clearer like the human life of which it has reminded us for having flowed through open fields. It bears no dark taint of fallen hemlock logs, or of forest leaves, steeped year after year in the pools along its way. Many of its impurities which it would otherwise bear in its current have been filtered away in the beds of quartz and feldspar which the frosts and rains of two centuries have placed along its course.

It bears into the forest memories of the sunlighted pastures near Webb Brook Road. Here and there in the forest depths some eddy retains a fragment of golden rol or meadow grass borne from upstream, or is bright with the crimson of a bunch of barberries, fallen from the pasture shrubs. Happy the human anchorite of whom the same is true.

* * * *

It is unnecessary to invade the woods : to disturb the brook in its meditations. Leave the task of overcoming the thickets to the first chance angler who thinks that its waters still harbor trout. You will carry away as much as he. It is easier to resume acquaintance at the point where the brook reaches Shawshin as it is often easiest to understand one life at its point of junction with another. The canoe will take you from the bridges on Boston Road, along a serpentine path perhaps a mile; it is hard to estimate distances where there are so many involved loops of water, ox bows that almost form islands, then the voice of the brook is heard as it greets the river. It is a trifle darker for its woodland sojourn, but its voice is deep and musical.

Two centuries and a half ago the brook was holding practically this same course. The clearing of its sides has been gradual, but perhaps for half that period it has been as open to the sunlight as it is today. In all that time it has, perhaps, turned no machinery larger than a boy's water wheel, yet that is no unimportant task, for therewith are sometimes connected unseen shafts and shuttles that weave a rich tapestry for the arras hangings of castles in Spain. You may drain all Niagara into turbine chutes and leave only a sunburned ledge where its rainbows are now arching and still the product may not compete in value with the memories that generations of boys have woven along the banks of Webb Brook.

Hon. THOMAS DENNY WEBB," (Peter,⁶ Samuel,⁵ Nathaniel,⁴ Samuel,⁵ Christopher,^{*} Christopher,¹) son of Peter⁴ and Tamasin (Denny) Webb; b. in Windham, Ct., May 10, 1784; m. in Warren, Ohio, Jan. 13, 1813, BETSER STANTON, b. at Montville, Ct., Feb. 22, 1792, dau. of John and Betsey (Maples) Stanton of Montville, in the County of New London, Ct. John Stanton, her father, was b. in Groton; Betsey Maples, her mother, was b. in Norwich; he d. in Bozrah, and she in Norwich, where they are respectively buried. All in the same County of New London, Ct.

He was prepared for College at the Academy in Leicester, Mass., the place of his mother's nativity; graduated at Brown University, in 1805; studied Law under that distinguished jurist, Hon. Zephaniah Swift, afterwards Chief Justice of Connecticut; (see p. 517 of this volume), and was admitted to the Bar of that State. Immediately after this, he left New England, with the intention of going into what is now the State of Indiana, and locating himself near the Falls of Ohio; but was induced to change his plan, and in December, 1807, took up his abode in Warren, in the County of Trumbull, Ohio, on what was formerly known as the Connecticut Reserve. In that flourishing town, he practised Law until the year 1857, when the infirmities of age compelled him to desist. During this time, though not a printer, he established the first newspaper ever issued in Northern Ohio. In 1814 he was appointed a Collector of Internal Duties for the Eighth District of Ohio.

He was twice elected a member of the Senate of Ohio. In one instance, he forbore to take his seat in that body. In the other, he served the constitutional period of two years. About 1832, he was a candidate for Congress, with Hon. Elisha Whittlesey for his antagonist. He had a majority in one county, but Whittlesey prevailed in two counties, and gained the seat.

On the first of December, 1811, his right leg was amputated above the knee, in consequence of an injury received at the raising of a log building. Notwithstanding this serious inconvenience, he has attended to his professional duties, until within about six years past.

The Compiler has received essential aid from him in the preparation of this work; and it is but just to say, that but for him, this history of the WEBB Family would never have been attempted.

He is now disabled from all active employments; is unable to walk, even with crutches; but retains, in a good degree, his mental faculties. His children have been-

THE VERY FAMILY.

THE belief has already been expressed, that the VERY Family came from Salisbury, See page 5. The name existed there not long before the in Wiltshire, England. settlement of Salem, and seems to have been identical with Veren, though afterwards wholly distinct from it. The name VERY ascends to a high antiquity ; being derived, as is supposed, from the Roman Verus or Varus, and having the same meaning in English as Verus in Latin. We find the name along the line of the Roman conquests in Savoy, Geneva, &c. For example, the name Viry, and even the identical VERY occurs in an old French History of Geneva, which I have seen, where, in 1391, Galey de Very is mentioned as a witness to some compact or convention between the republic of Geneva and the duke of Savoy. The same book contains copies of old inscriptions still found in Geneva on the tomb-stones of "the illustrious family (inclyta domus) of Viry." Mr. Washington Very of Salem [GILES 387] saw these inscriptions, when travelling in Europe, 1844-5. The subjoined Sketch of the Very Family is compiled from materials furnished by Mr. Jones Very of Salem, with some corrections and additions by the author of this volume.

BRIDGET VERY,1 wife of Edward Giles, had, by her first husband, Very, these three children, who are mentioned in her will ;* 2. SAMUEL,² 3. MARY,² and 4. THOMAS.² They were doubtless born in England.

SAMUEL VERY,2 son of Bridget, b. 1619, m. ALICE, dau. of John and Frances Woodis. This name has been supposed to be equivalent to Woodhouse; but it is unquestionably put for Woops or Woop; since John Woods, in his will, 1659, mentions his son-in-law Samuel Very. [Geneal. Reg., VIII., 168.] Samuel Very died 1683-4. His children were-

- Samuel,³ b. before 1659; a mariner; d. after 1734; was one of Major Appleton's soldiers in the Narraganset Expedition, 1675, and on this account received agrant of land on Souhegan river, within the present territory of New Hampshire. His wife was Abigail -----, t by whom 5. he had-

 - Thomas,3 b. ____; m. 1681, Elizabeth Proctor. He was a soldier in "Philip's War," and seems to have been one of the few, only eight in all, who escaped from the sanguinary fray at Bloody Brook in South Deerfield, Sept. 18, 1675. On that fatal day,* Capt. Thomas Lothrop of Beverly, and eighty-four men, under his command, fell into an ambuscade, made by about seven hundred Indians, led probably by Philip, and, in a fierce conflict, the Captain and seventy-six of his men were slain. Thomas Very of Marblehead presented a petition to the General Court, February, 1679, representing that "in the late Indian warre, ander the command of Capt. Thomas Louthrop, he was sorely wounded, having his great thighbone broke in pieces by a shot, and thereby disabled for nine months to get his livelyhood, by which means he was for his diett in ye sd time indebted nine pounds, which summe though in part it hath been defrayed and discharged by y^e Towne, yet a good part of it is yet behind," &e. The Court granted six ponnds to the petitioner. [Mass. Archives, 69:260. Though in this petition Thomas Very is said to be of Marblehead, we afterwards find him living in what is now South Danvers. He and his uncle Edward Giles, and thirty-eight others, were dismissed, June 25, 1713, from the First Church in Salem, to form a distinct Church at the Middle Precinct, now South Danvers. Children-

Of these persons, only Mr. Very and two others came safely to land, and were "restored to their families, as from the dead," after forty days of great suffering and danger, twenty-three of which were passed in a small leaky boat, after leaving the wreck. FAMILY OF RICHARD TARR OF ROCKPORT.

[From information furnished by Ebenezer Pool of Rockport, for this work, with additions from Babson's History of Gloucester, and other sources.]

RICHARD TARR¹—so tradition affirms—was b. in the West of England about the year 1660. If came to this country when young, and seems to have spent a little time, after 1680, in Marblehead, where he married his wife ELIZADETH. A few years after, we find him in Saco. See his Petition, in the footnote.* If lew was probably compelled to leave Saco hy the hostility of the Indians, in 1689, and settled finally, as early as 1691, and probably a year or two previous, in that part of Gloucester which was long known as Sandy Bay, and is now the town of Rockport. He was the first settler there, of whom we have any account. The town of Rockport erected, in 1854, a granite monument, in the Old Cemetery, having on its face a tablet of marble, to perpetuate his memory. In 1697, he had a house in Sandy Bay, on the south side of Davison's Run, a small brook which passes through the village of Rockport, near the junction of Beach and King Streets. Some of his numerous descendants still occupy portions of the land where he dwelt more than one hundred and sixty years ago. He died there in 1732, leaving an estate valued at £399, equivalent to about the same number of Spanish dollars, the currency being depreciated.

His children were-

- 2. William,² b. ——; m. Elizabeth Felt in 1708, and had several children; but none of the name can trace back their lineage to him.
- John,² b. ------; m. Elizabeth Heans [Haynes ?] of Marblehead, in 1714. 3.
- Elizabeth,2 b. Jan. 10, 1691; m. Ebenezer Davis. 4.

- Joseph,² b. —, 1698; m. Sarah Sargent, July 28, 1719. They had Abigail,³ Joseph,³ Benjamin,³ Nathaniel³; all b. before 1726. They soon after removed to Parker's Island, Georgetown, Me., where their descendants are still found ; as also in Pittston on the Kennebee river.
- *Benjamin,² b. _____, 1700; m Rebecca Card. See the sequel.
 Caleb,² b. _____, 1703; m. Martha _____; had twelve children. Three of his sons, Caleb,3 Joshua,3 and David,3 married, and have living descendants.

[Chiefly from information supplied by his descendant Ebenezer Pool of Rockport.]

JOHN POOL,1 according to family tradition, was a native of Taunton in Old England; which we know to have been the birth-place of William Pool and his sister Elizabeth, who founded Taunton in New England. His grave-stone informs ns that he was born about the year 1670. He was a carpenter, and settled first in Beverly, about 1690; but in 1700 took up his residence in that part of Gloncester, which since 1840 has constituted the town of Rockport, and of which he was the first settler after Richard Tarr. He dwelt on the north side of Davison's Run, a near neighbor of Richard Tarr. He died there in 1727, and was buried on his own land. His grave is now within the orchard of Dea. Thomas Giles [GILES 311], who married one of his descendants; where his grave-stone is still to be seen, bearing this inscription :--

REMARKS. In the foregoing deed the residence of Thomas Gyles is not given, as it probably would have been, had he not then lately come to these shores. The payment of the consideration, twenty-seven pounds, in English Goods, seems to imply that he had just come from England. The land sold was two miles in length, and one mile in breadth at the "fresh water brooke" at its western extremity, but ran down to a point at the "high head" on the east, which projected into the waters of Merry Meeting Bay.

Thomas Gyles not only purchased the land of Thomas Watkins, but procured the consent of the Indian Sagamore to his possession and occupancy of the same. Here is proof of the fact :--

Darumquin, the father of the above-named deponent, is called Tarumkin, in Williamson's llistory of Maine and in Drake's Book of the Indians. He was Sagamore of the Anasagunticooks on the Androscoggin River.

In the Deposition of "Edward Keemer, aged seaventy yeares or thereabont, and Andrew Willett aged forty yeares or thereabont," sworn to in Boston 21⁴ April 1696, these persons testify that "about Twenty Yeares ageo they lived att Kennebeck, and were then Exceedingly well acquainted with Mr. Thomas Gyles, Sen. of Kennebec (since deceased) and that the sd Thomas Gyles Sen. did then, and for many years before his death, and before his being driven away by the Indians, peaceably and quietly enjoy a Certain Neck or Tract of Land lying in Kennybeck Kiver aforesd, bounded Southward By the Great Bay above Merry meeting Gutt soe called, Northward by Muddy River soe called, Westward by Land of the Late Cap^a Reynolds dee⁴. the point of the s⁴. neck running Eastward into y^e sd Bay. I have several other ancient documents, such as deeds, depositions, &c., relating to the claim of the heirs of Thomas Gyles, and the claims of the heirs of James Thomas and Samuel York to land in Topsham; which claims were satisfactorily arranged with the Pejepseot Proprietors: the Gyles claim in 1727 (see page 112) the York claim in 1721, and the Thomas claim in 1758. The Pejepseot Proprietors derived their claim from Richard Wharton, 1684. See page 126, note.

PEMAQUID, ANCIENT AND MODERN.

[In the compilation of the ensuing Sketch, I have freely used Williamson's History of Maine, and Thornton's "Ancient Pemaquid," but have also drawn largely on my own private resources.]

The eastern coast of New England had been visited from an early period by English fishing vessels. Monhegan, an island ten niles from the shore, and opposite Pemaquid Point—which point projects several miles into the sea—lay directly in their track, and became a noted landmark. Some men left by Edward Rocroft at Saco,* in the fall of 1618, found their way to Monhegan, and spent the winter there. There is some reason to think that the island was never afterwards wholly abandoned. We know that it was permanently settled as early as 1622. In the spring of that year the Plymouth Colony sent hither for provisions which they readily obtained from ships always found in these waters. Pemaquid, on the mainland, with which Monhegan is naturally connected, began to be permanently occupied about the same time; not later, certainly, than 1623. Pemaquid Bay and Monhegan Island were places of great resort in those days, even before their permanent occupation, by vessels which came to fish and to trade with the Indians.

In the autumn of 1622, Abraham Jennings, a merchant of Plymouth, Eng., who was largely engaged in the cod fisheries and fur trade on the eastern coast, purehased of the Plymouth Council, lands in New England, for the consideration of $110. Under this conveyance, Jennings immediately established a plantation at Monhegan. In 1626, he transferred his title to the island for £50 to Robert Aldsworth and Giles Elbridge, merchants, of Bristol, Eng., who shortly after sent over Abraham Shuret to act as their agent, and to take possession in their behalf.

According to the best accounts which we have, the mainland at Pemaquid was first occupied permanently by John Pierce of London, in the latter part of 1622, our beginning of 1623, under a charter which he obtained from the Plymouth Council, June 1, 1621. The name of John Brown is remarkable as being that of the first man who purchased land of the Indians in New England, or perhaps on this continent. He was commonly known as "John Brown of New Harbor," and it is said that he lived at New Harbor as early as 1621.‡ To this man a conveyance was made, July 15, 1625, by John Somerset and Unnongoit, two Indian Sngamores, of all the lands on both sides of Mascongus river, beginning at Pemaquid Falls, running east to the head of New Harbor, then to the south end of Muscongus Island, taking in that island, and then running twenty-five miles into the contry north and east, then eight miles northwest and west, then running south and west to Pemaquid Falls, the place of beginning. This tract of land included the most of Bristol, part of Newcastle, and the whole of Jefferson and Nobleborough. The consideration was fifty beaver skins. It may well be doubted whether these Indians understood what they were doing. Somerset was the identical SANOSER, whose name will ever live for the cordial "Welcome, Englishmen!" extended to the weary and suffering pilgrims at Plymouth, March 16, 1621. He was sakem of Pemaquid, a name which included an indefinite extent of country. It had learned his English from the fishermen and traders who visited that place.

¹ John Forwar removed to the Kennebec, and in the fall of (Nov. 1,) 1630, with Edward Bateman purchased of the Sagamore Robinhood the site of the present town of Woolwich. He was driven way by the Indians in 1676, and died in Boston soon after.

A patent was granted, Feb. 29, 1631-2, by the Plymouth Conncil, to Robert Aldsworth and Giles Elbridge, already mentioned, conveying to them a tract of land containing one hundred acres for every person by them transported, or to be transported, within the seven years next ensuing, together with twelve thousand acres additional thereto. Said land was "to be taken near the river commonly known by the name of Pemaquid." The territory embraced the whole of Bristol and parts of Newcastle and Nobleborough. This patent was very ample, being not only an entire quitclaim of the right of property, but conferring the powers of civil government.

The population introduced into this new colony, and into other settlements made on the eastern coast, was not of the most desirable kind. It was, to a considerable extent, such as Weston's colony at Weymouth was made up of-"rude and profane fellows," "not fit for an honest man's company."* They had few restraints, except from the strong arms of others as lawless as themselves. It required all the tact and energy and uprightness of the excellent Abraham Shurte, t who resided at Pemaquid nearly sixty years, and administered whatever of civil government and of law was there known, to keep matters in tolerable order, and to preserve peace with the Indians. But whatever of deference was paid to him was yielded not to his authority as a civil magistrate, but to his great private personal worth.

During many years, however, Pemaquid was eminently prosperous. In 1624 a small fort was built there, called Fort George. The commodious harbor, the facility of obtaining fish in the neighboring waters, and the security afforded by the fort, attracted settlers. Eighty-four white families, embracing a population of about five hundred souls, are said to have occupied Pemaquid and the shores in its vicinity in 1631. The first settlements were made, and the fort was originally built, on the west side of the harbor, on the point called the Barbican. After a while, the principal settlement and the fort were on the east side, and so continued to be. It soon became a place of much note; outstripping in importance every locality between the Piscataqua and Port Royal in Acadia; becoming in fact the capital of the Eastern coast. It was the chief resort for vessels; the principal mart for fish and furs. In the autumn of 1632, Dixy Bull, a man of some note, and fiften more of the English who kept about the Eastern coast of New England, turned pirates, rifled Pemaquid, and took several boats in that region. This is the first account of pirates on our coast. The authorities at Boston and Piscataqua dispatched several small vessels, with about sixty men, in pursuit of these outlaws, but were not able to find them. At Pemaquid, resistance was made to the pirates, and one of them was killed on the spot. Capt. Roger Clap, in Prince's Annals, says-" Bull got into England ; but God destroyed this wretched man."

Aldsworth died in 1634, in his seventy-third year. Leaving no issue, he bequeathed all his estate to Giles Elbridge of Bristol, Eng., who married his niece. The patent of course became the sole property of Giles Elbridge,§ from whom it passed to his second son Thomas in 1647. The latter, in 1650, sold one half of the patent and one half of the personal property, for £200, to Capt. Paul White, a trader at Pemaquid, who soon after removed to Newbury, and on the 27th of April, 1653, Elbridge and White sold the entire patent to Nicholas Davison, a mariner, of Charlestown. The title lay dormant through the Indian wars, but was at length rewived as the "Shem Drowne claim," so called from Shem Drowne of Boston, who married a daughter of Davison. This, with other conflicting titles, led to great disturbances in the County of Lincoln, which were at last quieted by legislative interference in 1811 and 1812.

Thomas Elbridge, not long after the patent passed into his hands, visited Pemaquid, and held a manorial court there, to which the inhabitants generally repaired to pay their acknowledgments to him as their superior. A few years after, we find him a stated resident there, but with no rights of property or of government above those of the mass of the settlers.

King Charles II., on the 12th of March, 1664-5, gave to his brother James, duke of York, all the territory between the Pemaquid river and the St. Croix; which grant was afterwards extended westward to the Kennebec. This extensive region was erected into a Province called Sagadahoek. But the duke utterly neglected his new acquisitious during twelve years, and for most of this period the inhabitants lived without any government. Nor had they schools or churches. The Royal Commissioners sent over, in 1665, to regulate the affairs of New England, or more truly to crush the colonial liberties, speak unfavorably of the people of this eastern coast. "These people for the most part are fishermen, and never had any government among them. Most of them are such as have fled from other places to avoid justice;" "the worst of men." John Josselyn (brother of Henry Josselyn of Scarboro', afterwards of Pemaquid) in 1671, represents them as inordinately given to the gratification of appetite, and especially as addicted to drankenness.

The condition of the people was truly lamentable. It was such as will always exist where civil society is not moulded and pervaded by the influences of a living Christianity. At length, the people themselves could endure it no longer. A petition was drawn up, signed by the inhabitants generally, and presented to the Government of Massachusetts, begging to be taken under their jurisdiction. It is entitled "The Humble Request to the Honoured Governour, Deputy Governour, Majestrates, and Deputies Assembled in the General Court now sitting in Boston, this 18th day of May 1672. The petition humbly sheweth for these several years we have not had any kind of government at all, which is greatly to our Prejudice and damage, having no way to Right ourselves upon any Account whatsoever The Humble Request therefore of your Petitioners is that you will please so farr to favour us as to take ns under your Government and protection," etc. Signed by 21 men of Kennebeck,* 15 of Shipscoate, 16 of Cape Bonawagen, 11 of Pemaquid,* 15 of Damariscove, 18 of Monbegan.

Massachusetts was not in haste to assume jurisdiction over a people in so forlorn a case. Two years afterwards, in May, 1674, a Commission was issued at Boston for the regulation of their affairs. Under this Commission, a Court was held at Pemaquid, July 22, 1674, which organized the "County of Devonshire," and appointed the necessary civil officers. A tax of twenty pounds was laid on the new County for defraying the necessary charges, of which Kennebee was to pay four pounds, Monhegan five pounds ten shillings, Cape Nawaggen three pounds ten shillings, Damariscove five pounds, and Pemaquid only two pounds; a sad indication of the decline of the place last named from its former wealth and consequence.

On the first of July, 1674, Major Edmund Andros was commissioned Governor for the duke of York of the territory east of the Kennebec, the province of Sagadahock. No attempt, however, was made by him within the three ensuing years to govern the territory. Meanwhile, Massachusetts proceeded to make good her claim to it. In May, 1675, she appointed Capt. Thomas Lake and others, to hold the Courts in Devonshire as usual; and again in May, 1676, they were sent on the same duty. Lake was an eminent merchant of Boston, a gentleman of distinguished worth, who had large possessions on the Kennebec. In 1675, there were as many as 156 families east of the river Sagadahock, and nearly 100 fishing vessels owned by the people; according to the statement of Capt. Silvanus Davis of Arrowsic Island to the Massachusetts authorities in 1675.

Distressing calamities now overtook Pemaquid, and all the eastern settlements. The savages, stimulated, as there is much reason to believe, by the malignant French Jesuits, who had for years been endeavoring to exasperate them against the English, now fell with great fury on the settlements. Pemaquid, New Harbor, Arrowsie, Damariscove, and many other places, were laid in ashes, in August, 1676, the inhabitants being either slain, or compelled to flee to the more western settlements.

After the Indians had wholly ceased from hostilities, Sir Edmund Andros took possession of Pennaquid in June, 1677. Under his direction the fort was rebuilt, and called Fort Charles; fifty soldiers stationed there with seven great guns, military stores and provisions. He also established a custom-house, and made various regulations, the manifest purpose of which was to exclude Massachusetts and all her people from the territory.1

^{*} The name, neither of Thomas Gyles, or of his brothers, appears among these petitioners. Among the sub-cribers at Pemaquid, we find THOMAS ELBRIDGE, the former patentee and liege lord,

Among the subscribers at Pernuquid, we find THOMAS ELBADOR, the former patentee and lege lord, now humbly asking to be taken under the protection of Massachusetts ! ‡ The king gave order, at his piace in Windsor. Sept 19, 1635, that "our Fort and Country of Pernaquid be annexed to our Territory and Dominion of New England, and with the great guna, ammunition and Stores of Warr, be delivered into the hands of our Trusty and Well-beloved Sir Edmand Andres, Knight, our 'daptaine General and Governor-in-Chief of our Territory and Dominion of New England," &c. The attack made by the Indians, August 2, 1689, and the entire destruction of the fort and settlement at Pemaquid, have already been related, page 108, etc. Early in August, 1692, Sir William Phips,* who had arrived in Boston the May before, as the first Governor under the new Charter, embarked for Pemaquid, attended by Major Benjamin Church, the conqueror of Philip, and 450 men, for the purpose of erecting a strong fortress at that place, for which he had the king's special instructions. Despatching most of these troops, with their renowned commander, to the Penobscot against the enemy, the governor left two companies at Pemaguid to do the work, and returned to Boston. "In place of the flimsy stockade built by Andros, a fortress was erected, in extent and strength superior to any English fort in America, and called Fort William Henry." It was quadrangular in form, 108 feet across, and 747 feet in compass on the outside. The walls were of stone, laid in lime-mortar, six feet in thickness ; 22 feet high on the south, where the land slopes toward the sea; on the west, toward the river, 18 feet; on the north, 10, and on the east, 12 feet. The great bastion at the southwest corner is said to have been 29 feet in height. There were 28 embrasures; eighteen guns were mounted, six of which were eighteen pounders. It had a garrison of sixty, and sometimes of one hundred men. The whole cost of building was borne by the Province of Massachusetts, and is said to have been twenty thousand pounds.

Pemaquid now seemed fully entitled to be regarded as the capital of the East, the balwark of Protestantism and of English civilization in this part of the world. But the high expectations connected with it were speedily and most sadly disappointed.

Fort William Henry was regarded with great jealousy, both by the French and Indians. In the spring after its completion, they made preparations for an attack, but, appalled by its great strength, they abandoned the enterprise. At length, on the 14th of July, 1696, a powerful hostile armament arrived in Pemaquid Bay, and summoned the fort to surrender. The armament consisted of two French frigates, two companies of French regular troops, and fifty Mickmaek (or Nova Scotia) Indians, aided by the Baron de Castine, with two hundred Indians from Penobseot; the whole being under the command of Iberville, an experienced officer. The fort was garrisoned by 95 men, under Captain Pasco Chubb, having 15 guns well mounted, and an abundance of ammunition and provisions. Had the defence been conducted by a man of spirit, it would have been impregnable. But Chubb, after retarning on the first day this answer, "I shall not give up the fort, though the sea were covered with French vessels, and the land with wild Indians;" was so intimidated on the morrow by the discharge of five bombs into the fort, and still more by threats of Indian barbarity made by Castine, as tamely to surrender this Gibraltar of the West into the hands of the enemy. This noble structure, which had cost several months of hard labor, was demolished and wholly abandoned by the French only four days after its investment.

The immediate consequence of this pusillanimity was the entire desolation of the whole coast of Maine, except Wells, York, and Kittery, for more than twenty years. This second Indian war lasted ten years, and was brought to a close in 1698, having cost the lives of about 450 of the people of Maine, and as many as 250 were carried into captivity, some of whom never returned.

The resettlement of Pemaquid was attempted about 1718, and some repairs were made upon the fort, but little progress was made during several years. In 1729, the fortification was put in tolerable repair, by Col. David Dunbar, a native of Ireland, and a reduced colonel in the British service. The name was changed from Fort William Henry to Fort Frederick, in compliment to the new Prince of Wales. Under a royal commission, as surveyor of the king's woods, he obtained entire control of the province of Sagadahock. He took up his residence at Pemaquid, where, on the peninsula, near the fort, he laid out the land in city lots, designing it as the metropolis of his province. A building-lot in the city was assigned to each actual settler, besides forty acres in the vicinity. Instead of deeds, he gave perpetual

This prolific couple removed to a plantation, then recently made, on the east side of the Kennebec, or Sazadahock river, in the present town of Woolwich, where the future Sir William was horn, Feb. 2, 1650. leases, with the annual rent of a "pepper-corn," if demanded. [He obtained an officer and thirty men from Nova Scotia, to garrison Fort Frederick, and to enforce obelience to his requisitions. He continued at Pemaquid three or four years, acting with much executive ability, introducing a large number of valuable settlers into the province, but obliging them, as well as the people alrendy on the ground, to take leases of him, regardless of former grants or deeds, or actual possession, and by force ejecting from their homes those who refused compliance. He laid out the territory between the Sheepscot and Muscongus rivers into three townships, Townsend, Harrington, and Walpole. Townsend includes the present Boothbary, Edgecomb, and Newcastle; Harrington is the south part of Bristol; Walpole is the northwest part of Bristol, with the present town of Damariscotta. These names are still current in the ordinary intercourse of the inhabitants, while the south part of Walpole obtained, many years since, the homely appellation of "Dog Town."

After the enforced removal of Dunhar, in 1734, the province reverted to the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, and, under the fostering care of that Colony, began greatly to prosper. A garrison was still continued at Fort Frederic; which, in time of war, consisted of about fifty men. The fort was several times attacked by the Indians, but without success.

In 1765, the town of Bristol was incorporated, which included most of what was anciently known as Pemaquid. Abont thirty years ago, the town of Bremen was taken from Bristol on its eastern side ; it was the residence of the intrepid Commodore Tucker of the Revolutionary time. The northwestern part of Bristol was taken, in 1847, to form the town of Damariscotta. The town is still of large dimensions, abont thirteen miles long and six broad. When the present writer was in the ministry there, he had to go six miles in one direction, and six miles in the opposite direction, to visit his people. I spent two years on that peninsula, as the acting pastor of the church; and, while I had a lively sense of the great natural advantages of the place, which in the olden time made it a place of so much importance, I was painfully impressed with the languishing state of religion, and the low standard of morals which presented itself to view on every hand. The Sabbath was little regarded. Education was neglected; one man told me he never went to school but three wecks in his life. One man had not entered a house of worship for forty years. But what better things could be expected of a place, where, during more than one hundred years of its history, the Gospel was not preached, and the worship of God, except in a very few families, was wholly unknown I it seemed to me, when I was there, that I was ploughing and sowing on a rock !*

A considerable portion of the present population are Sprung from families which came originally from Scotland to the North of Ireland, and then to this country. Rev. Robert Rutherford is the first minister of the Gospel, in Pemaquid, of whom we have any account. He eame with Dunbar, about 1729, and preached there four or five years. From him Rutherford's Island derives its name. He died at St. George's River [Thomaston] in 1756. Rev. John Murray of Boothbay, afterwards of Newburyport, preached in Bristol occasionally, in 1766, when there was a revival of religion here, and a church gathered. Rev. Alexander McLean, a native of Scotland, was settled in the ministry in 1773, and disinissed in 1795; died in 1807, aged 61. His successors were Rev. William Riddel, settled 1796; Rev. Jonathan Belden in 1807; Rev. Nathaniel Chapman in 1822. Since Mr. Chapman's dismission in 1832, they have had a large number of ministers, having been addicted to change. But the meeting honses in Walpole and in Harrington, which are still occupied, were built nearly ninety years ago. They are so old-fashioned, it provokes a smile to see them.

I proceed now to a view of the peninsula, fort and hay of Pemaquid, as they sppeared to me on a visit which I made to that interesting locality, September I, 1848. This visit gave occasion to two letters of mine, which were printed in the Boston Traveller of October 21 and 28, 1848, from which, and from my diarry, I shall now copy, premising that my residence was at the village of Bristol Mills, near the centre of the town, and that a pleasant ride of three miles from my house bronght us to Pemaquid Falls, (on Pemaquid River) where Thomas Gyles was killed in 1689. Three miles fnrther down was the site of the old fort. A mile or two below the fort is Pemaquid Point, crowned with a lighthouse.

One man, a member of the Church, repaired old ressels, and sold them for new. Another man had ressels insured (it was said) for the purpose of having them wreaked. Only three-fourths of my salary were paid. The entire amount paid to me was 600 dollars in two years. But there were some excellent families, who formed noble exceptions to the general character.

My sensibilities on visiting Pemaquid* were wrought up to an unwonted height, as I mused upon the ancient glories of the place; as I thought of the resistance there opposed to French Catholicism, sometimes with too little success; and as I contrasted the present lonely and forsaken aspect of the place with the stirring scenes of former days. The scenery itself is surpassingly beautiful and picturesque; the land is gently undulating, presenting an agreeable variety of surface. A charming ride of an hoar over a good road brought me to a peninsula, of about two miles in circuit; on a gentle swell of which, overlooking the water, are the ruins of the open sea, whitened with sails. I counted thirty-two vessels of different classes ; among them, a steamer, proudly pursuing her way to Portland. Here are the waters, visited by the English traders and fishermen two and a

Here are the waters, visited by the English traders and fishermen two and a quarter centuries ago in such numbers as to lead to the erection of a fortress; which, after being three times destroyed, was rebuilt each time with new strength. And here stood the old fort itself, the scene of many severe struggles of English Protestantism against French Popery; the bulwark for agos against Jesni intrigue and Indian massaere; where were illustrated some of the noblest and some of the most malignant attributes of man. Here, as I roamed over the ground, I saw the remains of Dunbar's intended eity. Here are the old cellars, and the paved street; here also are the graves and monumental inscriptions of the old inhabitants—now, alas I thickly overgrown with bushes. Here were the scenes of busy traffic and aeive negotiation, of noisy merriment and of martial array. But now, how strangely still and quiet! The same sun looks serenely down upon this beautiful spot; the same waters beat upon this rocky shore; the sea gulls seream and flap their wings as aforetime; but the old settlers, where are they ?

In the interval between my first and second visit to the Fort, I spent part of an afternoon in conversation with a venerable old gentleman, who was born within the walls of the fort, in the year 1756, and was, consequently, in 1848, ninety-two years of age. It was Captain Nickels, father of Rev. Christopher Martinborough Nickels, formerly of Gloucester, Mass., afterwards of Barré in the same state. He was one of the most remarkable instances I ever met with of sprightliness and vigor at so great an age. He had his hearing perfectly, and retained his memory and under-standing, to a surprising degree. He gave me some interesting reminiscences in reference to the condition of Fort Frederic in his youthful days. His father had the command of it at the time of his birth, which was during the "Seven Years' War." It had a garrison of fifty men. Ten twelve pounders were mounted on the west side, next to the harbor. There were two bastions, one at each end of the western wall. The walls were of rough, unhewn stone, to the height of ten feet, and were raised by timber-work four feet higher, and the whole was crowned with an oaken palisade, ["sharp, pointed stakes," he called them.] The western wall was still higher, as the ground sloped towards the water. Within were barracks for the soldiers, and a honse, one story high, over where the cellar-hole now is, on the north side, for the accommodation of the officers. Colonel Dunbar, who had com-mand of the fort twenty-five years before, viz, in 1731, had all the trees eut down, within the distance of a mile, that Indians, lurking near, might be discovered. After the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, the people of Bristol, fearing that the British might take possession of the fort, and from it annoy the neighboring territory, destroyed the fortifications. Portions of the walls, however, remained, of nearly the original height, till about 1820. The stones of the wall have been gradually removed, as materials for fences; till at last, about the year 1844, the wall was reduced to the level of the ground; so that only the foundations, and part of the western wall are now seen. This was the condition of the Fort, when I saw it in 1848.

Within the memory of my informant, the peninsula of Pemaquid was a place of considerable importance. There were about twenty dwelling-houses in the immediate vicinity of the Fort. Considerable husiness was transacted there. Vessels were owned there, which traded to foreign ports, e. g. to the West Indies. Capt. Nickels mentioned one man residing there, who owned three vessels. There was, and still is, an excellent harbor; no bar obstructs the entrance; it is easy of access from the sea; with about fifteen fathoms of water at the usual tides. There was a wharf a little above the fort. During the war of the Revolution, the business of the place was wholly ruined; and a total change came over it. The glory then finally departed. It was no more, and it can be no more the Pemaquid of olden days. It has declined more and more, till but one solitary house remains on the peninsula. This house, a good, substantial, wooden, two-story house, was occupied by Capt. Nickels himself, till a few years previous to 184.8^*

^{*} The designation "Pemaquid" is now limited, in the common speech of the place to the narrow territory below the Falls, some four miles long, and from one to two broad. A still narrower limitation will be observed as we proceed.

A few years ago there were on the peninsula about thirty empty cellars, from which the houses had disappeared; and these cellars were in pretty good repair. Vestiges of some of them yet remain. A former owner, a Mr. Blaisdell, filled up many of them; who also used the stone-walls of the fort for his fences! The paved street was also ploughed up, as far as possible. Would that these things had been suffered to remain ! We have but few antiopaties in this country; and it is a great pity that what we have should be thus wantonly sacrificed. Certainly the noble fort at Pemaquid should have been spared, to attest to distant generations the story of the "Indian wars." What a loss for all time!

The site of Col. Dumbar's city and of Fort Frederic, now forms a beautiful farm. It is now, or was in 1848, known as the "Fort-farm." It is a peninsula, almost wholly enclosed by the waters of Pemaquid river and bay. The scenery is uncommonly attractive, and the natural advantages are superior. The bay spreads out to a circumference of ten or twelve miles, in which the tides ordinarily rise from fourteen to sixteen feet. The natural features are the same, but the settlement is utterly gone, and can never rise again to anything like its former importance. That very peculiarity in its position, which formerly threw it in the way of almost all the travel "down East"—the outward curvature in the outline of the coast at this point—now throws it out of the way; the travel having betaken itself to the solid land, and to the railroad. But vessels still enter its noble harbor at the approach of a storm. Several came in while I was on the spot, to my no small gratification, as it reminded me of the ancient prosperity of the place.

It is very remarkable that Pemaquid should have had such a total decline, even to absolute annihilation. I know not that the case has a parallel on this side of the Atlantic. It is more noted in the early history of our country than any other eastern plantation. The English ministry, as well as the Colonial government, regarded it as a place of great importance, both in a commercial and a military point of view. "Sic transit gloria mundi."

The oldest inscription in the grave-yard on the "Fort-farm," is—"J. M. 1695." Some have read it, 1625. Tradition says, it marks the grave of the captain of an armed vessel.

Both education and religion, I was told, were always low in Bristol. Revivals of religion were not known. Large quantities of ardent spirit were sold and used. Still, there were three meeting-houses—one in Harrington, one in Walpole, and one in Broad Cove, now the town of Bremen. In compliance with custom, people generally went to meeting on the Sabbath. Mr. McLean and his successor preached in each of these houses, alternately. When the meeting was at Walpole, on the West, or Broad Cove, on the East side of the town, the people of Harrington, the South section, were there; and so of the other places, in turn. They either walked, or rode on horseback, or came in boats. There were no chaises or sleighs in those days. Capt. Nickels introduced the first chaise into town.

Before Rev. Alex. McLean came (1773) the people of Bristol went to Boothbay on the Sabbath to hear Rev. John Murray. They went on foot about half way, and in boats about half way; about six or seven miles to the nearest; to the remoter parts of Bristol it was twice as far. They started about sunrise, and did not return till after sunset. Mr. Murray was a powerful, pungent, awakening preacher; his sermons were long, often continuing till the going down of a summer's sun. He produced a strong impression in Boothbay, in Bristol, and wherever he went. He was an ardent friend to the liberties of this country. After hostilities commenced with the mother country, fearing that the British would seize and carry him off, he removed to Newburyport. Mr. McLean, I was told, was far inferior to him as a preacher.

After Mr. McLean had preached in Bristol many years, he went back to his native Scotland, and during this absence became, as he supposed, for the first time, a subject of renewing grace. He returned to Bristol, and resumed his ministry there. His memory is cherished with much respect by the aged people of that place.

* In 1848, he resided at Pittston on the Kennebec, and was now at Bristol on a visit, with his wife, and with his son and son's wife.

APPENDIX.

It has long been understood that Professor Johnston, of the Wesleyan University at Middletown, Ct., who is a native of Bristol, has made some progress in collecting materials for a History of Pemaquid. If he, or any other person, should succeed in compiling such an account of that ancient Capital of the East, as its former importance merits, it would supply a want which has long been felt, and be a valuable contribution to American history.

APPENDIX F-page 110.

Instead of the "large extracts," from John Gyles's "Narrative," which I thought of adding, in this place, I must content myself with one or two short ones. The first extract is from the beginning of the Narrative.

"The flourishing state of New England, before the unhappy Eastern wars, drew my father bither; whose first settlement was on Kennebec river, at a place called Merrymeeting Bay, where he dwelt for some years; until, on the death of my grandparents,* he, with his family, returned to England, to settle his affairs. This done, he came over with the design to have returned to his farm; but on his arrival at Boston, the Eastern Indians had begun their hostilities. He therefore begun a settlement on Long Island.[‡] The air of that place not so well agreeing with his constitution, and the Indians having become peaceable, he again proposed to resettle his lands in Merrymeeting Bay; but finding that place deserted, and that plantations were going on at Pernaquid, he purchased several tracts of land of the inhabitants there. Upon his highness the duke of York resuming a claim to those parts, \hat{s} my father took out patents under that claim; and when Pernaquid was set off by the name of the County of Corawall, in the Province of New York, he was commissioned Chief Justice of the same by Gov. Duncan. ¶ He was a strict sabbatarian, and met with considerable difficulty in the discharge of his office, from the immoral-ities of a people who had long lived lawless. He laid out no inconsiderable income, which he had annually from England, on the place, and at last lost his life there, as will hereafter be related."

After a particular account of the attack on Pemaquid, the murder of his father, and the capture of himself, his mother, brother, and sisters, he proceeds-

"When we turned our backs on the town, my heart was ready to break! I saw my mother. She spoke to me, but I could not answer. That night we tarried at New Harbor, and the next day went in their canoes for Penobscot. About noon, the canoe in which my mother was, and that in which I was, came side by side ; whether aecidentally or by mother's desire, I cannot say. She asked me how I did. I think I said, 'pretty well,' but my heat was so full of grief I scarcely knew whether audible to her. Then she said, 'O my child I how joyful and pleasant it would be, if we were going to Old England, to see your nucle Chalker, and other friends there! Poor babe, we are going into the wilderness, the Lord knows where !' Then bursting into tears, the canoes parted. That night following, the Indians, with their captives, lodged on an island.

"A few days after, we arrived at Penobscot fort, where I again saw my mother, my brother and sisters, and many other captives. I think we tarried here eight days. It pleased God that after this my mother never saw me more! She and my two little sisters were redeemed, after several years' captivity; but she died before I returned."

This familiar talk about Old England seens to indicate that the speaker came from that land not many years before. "Uncle Chalker" was probably the speak-er's brother, or his wife the speaker's sister. "Penobscot fort" was Castine's fortification, on the peninsula which now bears his name. See p. 111.

^{*} Here it is clearly implied that the parents of Thomas Gyles died in England. not long before 1675: perhaps in 1674. Thomas Gyles went to England, late in the autumn of 1674. See p. 105. He did not return till "the Eastern Indians had begun their hostilities." Of course he was not "driven away by the Indians," though he was kept away by them. I suppose he was absent from [&]quot;driven away by the Indians," though he was kept away by them. I suppose he was absent from New England a year, or more ‡ Possibly this was Long Island, near the mouth of Penobscot Bay. § This was In 1678 which was probably the year of the narrator's birth. Thomas Gyles, it seems, was at Pemaquid before 1678; and it is likely that the narrator was born there # The whole tract east of Sacatahoek river, claimed by the duke of York, received this designa-tion As claimed and held by Massehusetts (1668) B(78) it was called the County of Deronshire. # Call Themas Denret Proceeding the County of Deronshire.

T Col. Thomas Dongan was appointed Governor of New York, under the duke, Sept. 30, 1652.

I beg you, dear Madam, to Remember me to your son, and to Receive my best LAFAYETTE." Respects,

The foregoing letter is post-marked "Boston, Nov. 12," and is addressed on the outside to "Mrs. Helen Treat, Boston." The word "Boston" was cancelled by a stroke of the pen, and the words-" At the Cotton Factory, Waltham," were substituted, after the arrival of the letter in this city. If I mistake not, Mrs. Treat was then keeping boarders at Waltham.

Mrs. Treat speaks of her only brother as "now living," at the date of her letter. But at the date of the reply, he was supposed to be deceased. The sum recovered by the generous exertions of Lafayette—less than five thousand dollars—was but a small fraction of what was justly her due.

ELEGY OF JOHN MARSHALL ON THE DEATH OF HIS WIFE,

Entitled :- MEMOIRS OF THE HOLY CONVERSATION, TEARS SHED AT THE IN-CINERATION OF MRS. MARY MARSHALL, WIFE OF JOHN MARSHALL OF BRANTREY, WHO DECEASED OCTOBER 1, 1718, AGED 55 YEARS.

> The Death of this dear Saint of whom I write, Is very precious in Jehovah's sight. I'll venture to characterize this Saint, Altho' my Muse, through Grief, is weak and faint.

This word is obseurely written in the original; it may be Bauer; it may be Barnes.
 ‡ Hon. William Eustis, minister of the United States to Holland, had been, by his permission, mentioned by Mrs. Treat as a friend with whom Lafayette might consult, relative to her affairs.

"Favour deceitful is, and Beauty vain; But she that fears the LORD shall Praises gain. The virtuous Woman's Children blessed call Her, and her Husband praiseth her withal." Which warrants this Essav for to declare The holv Actions of this Person rare; More of true Worth was scarcely to be found In one sweet Woman, seek a Province round. She gave herself to GOD in early Days, Form'd for Himself she was, to shew his Praise; And as she did to elder Years arrive, Her care and study was that she might live To honour GOD. 'Twas then her greatest Pride, "To know CHRIST JESUS, and him crucify'd." To Knowledge, she join'd Practice : 'tis but vain To know, only thereby Applause to gain. Therefore to Knowledge she did Practice join, Which made her in her youthful Days to shine ; In virtuous Practices she did excel, As those that knew her then, can truly tell.

At Twenty-three years old, she did adventure, By Friends' consent, in Marriage-State to enter: A virtuous Wife she was, her Husband's Crown, As he himself would often say and own. They liv'd in Love one Month above two Years, And then, by Death's arrest, he disappears. An only Son GOD gave them; but grim Death At sixteen Months of Age did stop his Breath.

Then she a Widow sorrowful was left, Of Husband dear, and pleasant Babe bereft. Altho' she thus did feel the chast ning Rod, She ne'er repin'd, but humbly blesseth GOD; And did endeavour to make sure of that, From which not Death itself shall separate. By these sad Dispensations, GOD her Heart Subdu'd, and willing made from Sin to part.

She mourn'd for Sin ; did Faith in Christ profess ; God's Work of Grace on her she did express, With holy Fear, in Church-Assembly great, Who for Church-Fellowship did judge her meet. Two years in pious Widowhood she spent, In honest godly Life, with chaste content.

Then GOD, who wisely orders each Event, Gave her in marriage for an Ornament Unto another, one who dearly lov'd The Person, and her Virtues well approv'd. Twenty-eight Years, four Months, and twenty Days, With him she liv'd, walking in Wisdom's Ways. And, now she is by Death remov'd away, He lives her Mourner to this very Day. Eight pleasant Babes then GOD unto her gave, Four Sons, as many Daughters ; but the Grave Hath hid one half; but CHRIST their Clay will raise One Day, and make them Vessels of his Praise. Oh may the Four that do survive, inherit Large Measures of GOD'S Grace and Holy Spirit! Children, remember well your Mother dear, And as she follow'd CHRIST, so follow her.

She lov'd GOD'S Word ; it was her great Delight To read and meditate both Day and Night. GOD'S holy Day was her Deli.ht always, And Scasons set apart for Prayer and Praise. Come Weather what it would, Winds high or low, Or Heat, or Cold, or Rain, or Frost, or Snow, She'd to the Temple go, GOD'S Word to hear, Her Place was rarely empty once a Year. CHRIST's faithful Ministers she much did prize, Their very Feet were lovely in her Eyes. She, Mary-like, would sit at JESUS' Feet, To hear and heed his Word, and practise it. With her own Hand she wrote the Sermon down, Then by perusing oft, made them her own; Then into Practice she reduced all :-Here is a Pattern, both to great and small. An helpful Friend unto the Sick ; the Poor She oft reliev'd and helped with her Store; At Midnight-Call she'd rise with speed and run, A Season to do Good she would not shun. In Closet-Duties she did much abound, There, there, her Soul's Belov'd she sought, and found. Sound in the Faith she was; of holy Life; A tender Mother, and most pleasant Wife; A steady Friend; you might her safely trust; She always to her Word was true and just. She faithfully did serve her LORD and Master, And as she grew in Years, she grew the faster In Grace and Virtues many .- But I fear I shall transgress; and therefore I'll forbear Farther to add, her Praises to rehearse, Too many they, to be compris'd in verse .--She's gone, but is not lost. Farewell my Dear, Sweet Body rest in Grave, till CURIST appear. Thy Toils and Labours, Sins and Sorrows cease, Thy precious Soul doth rest with CHRIST in Peace. But for my Loss ! my Loss ! Ah, if I could, I would have writ these Lines with Tears of Blood.

Bless, LORD! the Children of thy Handmaid dear; In their Hearts write thy Laws, and put thy Fear. Let them know GOD, and JESUS CHRIST, which is, Eternal Life; of that, let them not miss.

Bless thy bereaved Servant; let this Rod Be sanctify'd to bring him near to GOD. Lighten his darkness, LORD: dwell in his Heart; Thy Grace and Favor, LORD, to him impart. This, shall cheer his Heart abundance more, Than Corn and Wine's Increase, and Riches' Store.

Now cease, my Muse ! repose, my lab'ring Quill ! I here shall end, now having wept my Fill : "GOD'S in his holy Temple ; Earth, be still."

The foregoing Elegy, though more remarkable for the religious spirit and tender conjugal affection it breathes than for poetic merit, has yet a value, as a memorial of the earnofst piety, the thorough christian character, which we may hope was not uncommon in the early days of New England. Those men and women "walked with God I" and God took them to himself. The eareful reader will notice the interweaving of Scripture language in almost every line. The compiler looks back with a tender interest to the writer of the Elegy and the excellent subject of it; they were ancestors of his.

In the Diary of John Marshall, the husband, are notices of prayer-meetings held frequently in 1700-1702, at private houses in Braintree, "at ben savils, brother brackets, Mr. Saunders, Joseph penimans, deacon bases," and the names of those who prayed are recorded; they are generally those of laymen, and commonly three prayers were offered at each meeting.

Under date of Sept. 28, 1727, he says that his daughter Mary, b. Sept. 28, 1697, is now a married woman-her husband's name is Benjamin Soper-she is the mother of three children, one son and two daughters, and is now 30 years old.

P. 72, note. I have lately become aware that neither at the Braintree Iron Works, nor at those in Lynn, do we find "the first establishment for the manufacture of iron in America." The Virginia Company, in 1620, sent out to their Colony 150 persons to erect Iron Works, and for other purposes. An Iron Work is mentioned as existing on Falling Creek, a tributary of James River in Virginia, "where they made proof of good Iron Oar," as early as 1620. The Iron Work there is mentioned in proof of good from Oar, as early as rozo. The from work meters memory and connection with a mourinful event. On the 22d of March, 1622, the Indians fell unexpectedly on the English Colonists, and massacred 347 persons; reducing the number of the white settlements from eighty to eight. "A little boy and girl escaped, by biding at the Iron Work at Falling Creek." [Beverly's History of Virginia, London, 1705; of which a copy is in the State Library of Massaclusetts.

The Virginia Iron Works are mentioned in Holmes's American Annals.

He embarked with his Regiment at Boston in the United States Mail Steamer Cahawba, for Newbern, N. C., July 21. Soon after their arrival at the place last named they were ordered to Folly Island, to take part in the operations connected with the siege of Charleston, S. C. Probably John Giles, after living awhile in Beverly (then a part of Salem) removed to Boston. He may have been the father of Robert and Valentine Giles, p. 160, and ancestor of several who are mentioned on page 162.

P. 336, note. JOHN WINTHROP,² Governor of Connecticut, was b. Feb. 12, 1606. His first wife was his cousin Martha Fones. His second wife, married in England, 1635, and mother of all his children, was ELIZADETH READ, dau. of Col. Edward Read of the Connty of Essex, Eng. Waitstill Winthrop,³ their son, died Nov. 7, 1717. John Winthrop, 4 died in England, Aug. 1, 1747. P. 337. Rev. Benjamin Tappan, D. D., was b. in Newbury, Mass., Nov. 7, 1788; the last of ten children of Rev. David and Mary (Sawyer) Tappan, then of that town. He died Dec. 22, 1863, a. 75, greatly and extensively respected. P. 341. The mother of Margaret Winthrop (wife of Capt. John Curwen²) was not a daughter of Hugh Peters, but of Peters's first wife, who was the widow of Col. but a daughter of Hugn Peters, but of Peters s next wile, who was the whow of Con-Edward Read of the County of Essex, Eng. She was probably some years his senior, and died before he came to America. The mistake arose from a letter of Roger Williams, in which Peters is called the father of the younger Winhrop. Hugh Peters, during his imprisonment in the Tower, composed "A Dying Father's Last Legacy to an Only Child." This was for his own daughter Elizabeth, h in Salem, 1640, of his second wife, Deliverance Sheffield. See p. 350, note. This dau. afterwards married a Barker of Deptford in Kent, where she was living in 1703.

See Savage's Notes on Winthrop's Journal, p. 64 ; also his last Preface. P. 350, at bottom. Deliverance Sheffield was the second wife of Hugh Peters, or Peter, as he wrote his name. She was living in London, 1677, supported by one of the churches there.

P. 364. Rev. Richard Clifton, with a portion of the Scrooby Church, passed over to Holland, and settled in Amsterdam in 1608. Mr. Robinson, with the remainder of the Church, followed soon after. Mr. Clifton reached Amsterdam in Augus, 1608, and dwelt there till his death, May 20, 1616, a. 63. He therefore accompanied his flock to Amsterdam, but not to Leyden.

P. 365. In the Boston edition of the Works of Rev. John Robinson, at the end of the Memoir in Vol. I., is an Account of the Descendants of this eminent divine, by Rev. William Allen, D. D., formerly President of Bowdoin College. This Account contains several errors. He says, that in 1629 or 1630, the wife and children of Mr. Robinson came from Leyden to Plymouth; whereas there is not the slightest evidence that the widow ever came, and it is not known that any of the children ever came, except isaac. He thinks that William Robinson of Dorchester, 1636, was a son of Rev. John Robinson, and gives his posterity a place among the descendants of the Leyden divine. It has been conclusively proved by Rev. Edward Robinson, D.D., Professor in the Union Theological Seminary, New York, a descendant of William Robinson, that this notion has no foundation whatever. Another error will be corrected in the paragraph next to follow.

P. 367. Martha Robinson [43] could not have been the wife of Barnabas Allen, as is positively stated by Rev. Dr. Allen in the "Account of Descendants" just referred to. For 1. The earliest Barnabas Allen, whom a recent and very thorough examination of the Church and Town Records of Canterbury, Ct., has brought to light, was born in Windham, Ct., January, 1730, and was consequently near seventeen years younger than Martha Robinson. 2. Barnabas Allen, at the age of 22, viz., on the 21st of April, 1752, married Elizabeth, dan. of Rodolphus Fuller of Mansfield, Ct. Within ten months afterward, Martha Robinson died. If therefore Martha was ever the wife of Barnabas, it must have been when his age was 20 or younger, and hers 37 ; and they must have been divorced, in order to his marriage with Elizabeth Fuller ; of which there is not a particle of evidence.

Same page. In the notice of Israel Robinson, expange "Scotland Society." In the note, last line but one, for Benjamin read Peter [19]. P. 368. I avail myself of Dr. Allen's Account of the Descendants of Rev. John

P. 495. To these "Detached Notices," I here add another :-

Robert Sampson, a young man, came to New England with Governor Winthrop in the Arbella, 1630. He was a son of John Sampson who m. Bridget Clopton, sister of Thomasine Clopton, second wife of the Governor. The Sampsons were an ancient knightly family of Sampson's Hall in Kersey, near Groton in Suffolk, the Governor's native place. [Life and Letters of John Winthrop, edited by Robert C. Winthrop, and just published, January, 1864. P. 496. By Elizabeth Samson [1938] who died July 11, 1794, according to Charlestown Records, is doubtless meant Elizabeth Lamson, dan. of Nathaniel and

Dorothy Lamson. She was baptized Sept. 5, 1725, and died July 15, 1794, æ. 70, as per Devens's Diary

P. 502. Samuel Webb [8] married Mary Adams, b. 1664, daughter of Capt. Samuel² and Rebecca (Graves) Adams of Chelmsford ; of that part of Chelmsford where is now the City of Lowell. For Samuel Adams,2 see Vinton Memorial, p. 296. The proof of what I have now stated, is full and unquestionable. Administration of the estate of Capt. Samuel Adams, late of Chelmsford, was committed, Sept. 19, 1692, to John Waldo, Daniel Waldo, and Samuel Webb, who married Rebecca, Susanna, and Mary Adams, the three daughters of Capt. Samuel Adams, late of Chelmsford, deceased. [Midd. Prob. original, 8:6; copy, 8:12. Also, copy, 8:692. The will of Joseph Adams² of Braintree, dated July 18, 1694; proved January 10, 1694-5; recorded Suff. Prob., 13: 264; mentions his sons Joseph, John, and Peter Adams, and "my five daughters, Hannah Sables [Savil], Abigail Bass, Bethyah Webb, Mary Bass, and Mehitable Adams ;" making bequests to every one of them; but says not a word respecting a dau. who was wife of Samuel Webb.

The Vinton Memorial, therefore, does not mistake, page 298, first line, in regard to Mary Adams, No. 151, the dau. of Joseph Adams of Braintree. She must have "died young," as her name was given to another daughter, b. afterwards, viz., Feb. 25, 1667-8, who appears in the will as Mary Bass. But the Vinton Memorial errs, and so does Thayer, Savage, and others, in making this second Mary (whose name is rightly entered on the Town Records) to have been the wife of Samuel Webb, before her marriage to Samuel Bass, "cooper."
